Haley Fiske, a Good Worker
Boy Scout Aviation.
Exports and Prosperity.
Russia to Rockefeller.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

HALEY FISKE, president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, died suddenly yesterday, aged seventy-seven.

His death is a loss to the world of insurance and to American business generally. Mr. Fiske had developed his great company with amazing success. Shortly before his death, his energies had been concentrated upon works of public utility, including the financing of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, and especially on providing dwelli gs at reasonable rentals for families of moderate means.

HIS own employes had first call on the Metropolitan Life apartments, high grade at low cost. Then came teachers, firemen, policemen. There were thousands on the waiting list.

MR. FISKE did not merely indulge a philanthropic impulse.

With his associate, Frederick Ecker, vice president of the Metropolitan company, he proved that apartments at moderate rentals, wisely planned, could pay a fair return on the investment of insurance moneys. Thus he promoted such building on a large scale.

AN important public service rendered by the Metropolitan Life, under Mr. Fiske's direction, was a persistent advertising campaign giving invaluable information on health and the prevention of disease. It would be difficult to exaggerate the value of this public service.

AT Lakehurst yesterday a group of 40 Boy Scouts from Monmouth county organization established the first Boy Scout contact with aviation. Commander Rosendahl, of the Los Angeles, arranged to start the Scouts on the "air-minded" road.

COMMANDER STARR, of the Foreign War Veterans, drills the boys, and they are proud of their teacher, knowing that he has made more than 100 parachute jumps.

To recruit fliers of the future among Boy Scout organizations is a good idea. A million boys of today will be fliers 20 years hence.

ONE feature in our prosperity is the growth in United States exports. James A. Farrell, president of United States Steel, reminds you that this country is exporting products now at an annual rate exceeding by one billion dollars a year the exports of six years ago.

And this is done in spite of high ocean freights, and of foreign wages and living costs, far below ours.

EACH state has something that calls for a foreign market.

Pennsylvania supplies wire fencing to the fields of Argentina. New England sends shoes all over the world. Virginia sends tobacco to Venezuela. Ohio sends to Spain glass bottles in which Spain ships port and sherry to England. Illinois sends farm tractors to Brazil and Russia. The South sends cotton to Finland.

MR. FARRELL shows that big prosperity depends on making what you need, and a lot more, to sell abroad. Generally speaking, we have exported raw materials, cotton, copper and other goods in which high wages play a less important part.

But we also dominate the world in moving pictures and automobiles, with high wages involved.

THIS makes the present French effort to shut out our moving picture competition important to everybody.

And it makes reasonable caution in increasing our tariffs important.

American labor and business must be protected, but unless we buy of others, they cannot buy of us.

RUSSIA accuses political enemies of working disguised as a Baptist organization. Counter revolutionary work, it appears, is usually, in Russia, done under some religious disguise.

MR. ROCKEFELLER, perhaps because he is a Baptist, is accused of "using oily money to corrupt the Soviet proletariat." It would be good for the Soviet proletariat if Mr. Rockefeller's organizations would show Russia how to fight disease and organize industry.

Capital may be a fearful octopus, but it does know how to get things done.

WHILE the League of Nations talks of saving China by preventing opium shipments to that country, you learn that China herself produced nearly 10 times as much opium as the rest of the world, not relying on outside supplies.

MEN, no matter how poor, will always buy two things, whisky and drugs. China's revolutionary and other generals, according to a dispatch from Pekin, compel all land owners to plant a certain area with poppies for opium production and from the crops extract tens of millions a year.

The heathen, in his blindness, bowing down to wood and stone, does not, however, spend as much for deadly drugs as our own enlightened country.

GERMANY, according to press observers, is passing through the most dangerous crisis since the war's end. Reactionaries, tired of the republic and longing for more kaiserism, threaten a dictatorship preliminary to res-

TWO HELD ON ARSON CHARGE

Arrested in their fire-swept home, James Barberry, 44, shoemaker, and his wife, Lena, 42, were held for court, charged with arson today, after firemen, testifying before Magistrate A. D. Brandon in Morals Court, told of finding oil soaked rugs and newspapers partly burned, in a fire in the Barberry home, 1930½ Broadway, Beechview, last night.

The prisoners denied the charge.

During the absence of the Barberrys last evening, neighbors saw smoke issuing from the home, a five-room brick, and sent a still alarm to Engine Company No. 60. Fire Capt. J. R. Sheridan found the partly-charred oil-soaked paper and rugs, he reported to Battalion Chief Sol Klein.

While the firemen were making an investigation, the Barberrys returned. They were questioned and denied knowing anything about the rugs and paper, or a two-gallon can which had contained oil, found in the house. They said they had not been threatened by enemies.

At the hearing, Chief Klein testified the damage amounted to about $1,500. He said the Barberrys had admitted having $2,000 insurance on their furniture and characterized this as being excessive. Aside from a denial of the charge, the two prisoners had nothing to say.

The building is owned by John Bulkiency and had been occupied by the Barberrys three years.

LINDY, MORROW IN MEXICO CITY

MEXICO CITY, March 4.—(AP.)—Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, accompanied by Mrs. Morrow, his daughters Anne and Elizabeth, and Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, his prospective son-in-law, arrived at the American embassy this morning from the Morrow residence in Cuernavaca.

Ambassador Morrow had planned to remain at Cuernavaca until tomorrow, but news of the outbreak of a revolt caused his decision to return to the Mexican capital as soon as possible.

Campaign to Reduce Earned Income Tax Launched Here

BEGINNING an active campaign for the downward revision of federal taxes on all earned incomes, leaders of groups of organized professional men and women in Pittsburgh have taken the initiative of a movement which is extending to all parts of the country.

Congress will be petitioned at its coming session in the effort to secure a lower rate on EARNED INCOMES than that assessed against permanent property and invested capital. Proponents of the movement believe that 1,000,000 signatures to the petition may be obtained in Pittsburgh and Pennsylvania.

Professional men and women and all salaried people and wage earners are included in the groups now being organized. Doctors, lawyers, laborers, actors, millworkers, dentists, clerks, architects, bricklayers, engineers, artists, railroaders, motion picture players, street car men, journalists, bus drivers, fiction writers, teachers, blacksmiths, electricians and all other professions and divisions of labor and clerical work will be included in the personnel of the movement.

PETITIONS TO BE CIRCULATED

The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph is sponsoring the action in Western Pennsylvania. On page 5 of this issue is printed a form of petition which is being prepared for presentation to Congress. These will be put in circulation immediately.

The Allegheny County Bar Association has the movement under consideration. A resolution was adopted at a meeting of the Bar Association Friday night preceded by 24 hours a meeting held in the office of the Mayor of New York City where petitions were presented for signatures. Presiding at this meeting was Supreme Court Justice John Ford, of New York. Action by the legislative committee, William S. Dalzell, chairman, would be the next action of the Allegheny County Bar Association.

The resolution adopted by the local bar association is as follows:

"WHEREAS, A movement is being started in various parts of the country among lawyers, physicians, journalists, people of the stage and screen and other professions, to secure a reduction in taxation on earned incomes, it being declared that earned incomes should not pay the same rate of taxation as permanent property and invested capital; therefore, be it

"RESOLVED, That the Allegheny County Bar Association take cognizance of this effort to secure a lower rate of taxation on earned incomes and that the question be referred to the proper committee for study, its findings to be reported at the next meeting of this association."

TO ATTACK $30,000 LIMIT

The assumption by Congress, as expressed in the income tax law that $30,000 is the limit of a man's earnings for taxable purposes is another point which it is hoped to straighten out. On this matter Attorney Charles F. C. Arensberg, of the law firm of Patterson, Crawford, Arensburg & Dunn in the Oliver Building, made this statement:

"The limitation by Congress of the amount of earned income for taxation purposes to $30,000 is based upon the assumption that no

TWO NAME ORIE AS 'COLLECTOR'

Two saloonkeepers of the "Strip," in Criminal Court, today identified Stanley Orie, brother of John W. Orie, suspended police magistrate, as the official "liquor and gambling" collector. Stanley is on trial charged with maintaining gambling devices.

Frank Pelch, saloonkeeper at 3325 Penn avenue, testified that Stanley Orie put two slot machines in his place and collected on a 60-40 basis, Orie getting the big end. He had purchased liquor from Orie for two years, he testified and had paid Orie weekly.

DUAL COLLECTING CHARGED

L. A. Lessick, 3522 Smaliman street, testified two machines had been put in his place and that Orie collected for them as well as for liquor.

Orie, on the stand, denied knowing Lessick or Pelch, said he rarely entered a saloon and didn't know much about the Penn avenue district.

REBELLION SWEEPS MEXICO

Associated Press.

Former President Calles today took over the duties of quelling a serious revolt in Mexico, being called out of retirement to the office of secretary of war.

Thus far all indications have been that the revolt is entirely of a military nature, no mention being made in dispatches of any connection with the so-called Catholic uprisings reported at various times.

EIGHT STATES CLAIMED

Two states—Sonora and Vera Cruz—are in control of the rebels, headed by Gen. Jesus Aguirre, who also claim that six other states have joined the movement.

While loyal troops were being dispatched to the affected regions, there had been no bloodshed thus far, the revolting military commanders simply taking over the state under their control without fighting.

President Portes-Gil issued a lengthy statement in which he asserted that the authorities had the situation in hand and that the revolt was engineered by a dissatisfied military-political group.

FAVOR VALENZUELA

While there has been no pronouncement to that effect, it is understood the movement favors the candidacy of Ilberto Valenzuela, former Mexican minister to Great Britain, who has been outspoken in his denunciation of President Portes Gil and Gen. Calles.

Rebel "prounucimientos" claimed collusion of eight states, Vera Cruz, Sonora, Oaxaca, Sinaloa, Nayarit, Coahuila, Chihuahua and Durango.

COOLIDGE OFF FOR HOME.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—(AP.)—Former President Calvin Coolidge left the Hoover inaugural stand at 1:50 p. m., today, for the Union station to board a train for his home in Northampton, Mass.

A short ride down historic Pennsylvania avenue, a brief pause at the capitol to affix his signature to the last-minute legislation of the dying Congress and to witness the inauguration of his successor in office, a dash to the station through the tightly packed holiday throngs, a 10-hour train ride to the North, and midnight will find him back at his old home in Northampton, Massachusetts—a private citizen for the first time in 30 years.

Great Parade Goes Through on Schedule Despite Rain; Many Quit Circus Seats

WASHINGTON, March 4. — (INS.) — Herbert Hoover was inducted into the presidency today in a cold, driving March rain that threw a partial damper on the most glittering inaugural ceremony in years.

For half an hour the new President stood on the east steps of the Capitol, where so many men before him have undertaken the chief magistracy of the nation, with the cold rain beating pitilessly on his uncovered head and into his face while he spoke the aims and high purposes of his administration.

CROWD PATIENT

The crowd that had waited patiently for hours on the broad plaza was perhaps the greatest that ever attempted to see a new President take the office.

It was a fashionable throng, too, attired in pre-Easter finery. But by the time the new President had concluded his 30-minute inaugural speech, thousands had deserted the scene for shelter and those remaining presented a somewhat bedraggled appearance.

Mr. Hoover became the thirtieth President of the United States at 1:07 p. m. At that moment his booming "I do, sir!" rang out to the oath that he took with uplifted hand from Chief Justice William Howard Taft, who 20 years before, in a great blizzard, had stood in the selfsame spot and assumed the presidency.

HISTORY REPEATS

History, oddly enough, repeated itself in part. While today's chill, driving rain did not approach the blizzard of the Taft inaugural, it nevertheless, made thousands uncomfortable, even as they were a score of years ago.

Immediately after he had concluded his address at 1:39 the new President left the Capitol for the White House.

Determined that the throngs that had sacrificed so much and waited so patiently to see him should not be disappointed, the new President stuck to his plan of riding back down Pennsylvania avenue in an open car, despite the steady drizzle.

On his right was Mrs. Hoover. The only other occupant of the car

Stimson in Tokio As Chief Takes Oath

TOKIO, March 4.—(INS.)—Henry L. Invitations were extended to the entire Japanese cabinet and the diplomatic corps to attend.

New President Puts Dry Enforcement Up to Citizens Who Buy From Bootleggers

By GEORGE R. HOLMES,
International News Service.

CAPITOL PLAZA, WASHINGTON, March 4.—Herbert Hoover inaugurated his presidency today with a challenge and a plea to the American people to obey the laws which they themselves have fastened into the Constitution and written into the statutes of the land.

On the selfsame spot where so many of his predecessors have stood and solemnly voiced their hopes and high purposes, the man who is assuming his first elective office became the thirtieth President of the United States, declares in his first public utterance that the greatest menace to America today is "disregard and disobedience of law."

He took the oath of office at 1:05 p. m.

DIRECT CHALLENGE

It was no stereotyped plea for law observance that Mr. Hoover made at the outset of his administration. It was a direct and personal challenge to the ordinary citizen to quit buying bootleg liquor.

And he was addressing not only the thousands immediately in front of him, but tens of millions who constituted his radio audience.

"There would be little traffic in illegal liquor if only criminals patronized it," he said.

"No greater national service can be given by men and women of good will—who, I know, are not unmindful of the responsibilities of citizenship—than that they should, by their example, assist in stamping out crime and outlawry by refusing participation in and condemning all transactions with illegal liquor.

"Our whole system of self-government will crumble if officials elect what laws they will enforce, or citizens elect what laws they will support."

CITIZENS MUST HELP

For his own part, the new President pledged determined and unflagging efforts to secure better enforcement. But in the same breath he admitted that no efforts by the government can be successful without

REED, '97 HOBO, HOOVER'S HOST

WASHINGTON, March 4.—For 30 minutes today, shortly before he was inaugurated, Herbert Hoover was in the office of Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania, a visit that must have brought a chuckle to the Pittsburgh statesman when he recalled his struggle to see McKinley sworn in 32 years ago.

Mr. Hoover remained in the office while waiting for the start of the program in the upper chamber of the Capitol. For a half hour Hoover and Reed chatted.

Thirty two years ago Dave Reed, a freshman at Princeton, had few thoughts of entertaining Presidents. As the story goes, he and John E. J. Fanshaw bet two other freshmen $5 that, penniless, they could "beat" their way to Washington first for the McKinley inauguration.

CURTIS INDUCTED, SAYS RULES SENATE'S BUSINESS

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON,
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Charles Curtis, of Kansas, was inaugurated today as Vice President of the United States.

The genial resourceful Senator from Kansas, who once was a jockey on frontier racetracks, was sworn into office by his predecessor, Charles G. Dawes, before a distinguished assemblage that crowded every nook in the Senate Chamber. The incoming and retiring Presidents, Congress, the Supreme Court and a host of guests witnessed the ceremony.

Curtis achieved the second highest gift within the power of the American people after 38 years in public life, 20 of them in the Senate and 14 in the House. His ascension to office held one new note in that it brought for the first time to the vice presidency a man in whose veins runs the blood royal of Indian chieftains

The oath administered, Dawes banged his gavel for the last time, adjourned the old Senate sine die and turned the duties over to Curtis. The new Vice President, as his first act, convened the new Senate of the Seventy-first Congress in special session and delivered a modest, conservative inaugural address.

In his speech, Curtis paid graceful tribute to Dawes, but indirectly he gave him a dig by declaring the vice president has nothing to do with revising the Senate's rules. This assertion came in sharp contrast to that of Dawes four years ago when the latter ridiculed the Senate's rules and demanded their revision.

Whereas Dawes was audacious and blunt, Curtis was conservative and tolerant. Where Dawes paced his desk and shouted his defiance of Senate tradition, Curtis observed all the amenities and customs.

PENNSYLVANIANS SHOW WELL IN INAUGURAL PARADE

M'CORMICK'S PROXY GOES TO JOHN D.

Severed by divorce, the bond of relationship between the John D. Rockefeller family and Harold F. McCormick, the harvester king, has been reestablished by business, it was revealed in Pittsburgh today through McCormick.

The Chicago multi-millionaire, in Pittsburgh over the week-end to see his wife, Ganna Walska, who gave a song recital, said he had given his former brother-in-law, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., his proxy in the battle to gain control of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

This battle—the younger Rockefeller in one corner, Col. Robert W. Stewart, the present chairman, in the other—will culminate Thursday when the stockholders vote on Rockefeller's plea to oust Stewart for the part he played in valuable government oil leases, a part that brought Senate criticism.

McCormick was divorced by Edith Rockefeller.

Licked Hoover As Boy, Honor Guest Today

On the white and gold platform, mingling with the hoity-toity of officialdom, was a group of Herbert Hoover's boyhood neighbors, from out where the corn grows tall. The proudest of the lot was "Old John" Reeder, 92, holding the hat of the man he remembered only as a barefoot boy in West Branch, Ia.

Hard by "Old John" was Newt Butler, another Iowan, who once "licked" the round-faced man standing there so solemn and stern-visaged. Newt wasn't belligerent today. He was awed.

Conspicuous by their absence in the procession of prominent personages in Pennsylvania public life in the states section of the parade were W. L. Mellon, of Pittsburgh, former chairman of the Republican state committee; Samuel S. Lewis, of York, state treasurer, and Jay Cooke, III, of Philadelphia, all of whom sent regrets that they would be unable to participate.

Several members of the cabinet of Gov. Fisher, of Pennsylvania, brought their wives to the inauguration, but they were unable to take them with them in the parade. The tables were turned in the case of Mrs. E. Grace McCauley, secretary of welfare, who was accompanied by her husband, Dr. E. S. H. McCauley. He was unable to ride with her up Pennsylvania avenue.

A conspicuous, though withal lonely figure in all the glittering array of fashion and pomp in the Senate chamber was Oscar de Priest, the newly-elected Negro member of Congress from Chicago. He sat in the rear row of the chamber, an interested spectator to all the proceedings.

For the day of days, Mrs. Lou Henry Hoover was attired in a dark swan hued velvet dress, edged with lace about the neck. She wore a full coat of the same shade with felt hat to match, and brown shoes and stockings.

Twenty-six governors were present and in the line of march to do honor to the new president. Others were represented by officials of the state administration. The governors were those of Delaware, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Georgia, Connecticut, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Virginia, Rhode Island, Vermont, Kentucky, Tennessee, Ohio, Mississippi, Texas, Illinois, Alabama, Maine, Missouri, Michigan, Florida, Iowa, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Wyoming and New Mexico.

the co-operation of the average man and woman.

"The measure of success that the government shall attain," he said, "will depend upon the moral support which you, as citizens, extend."

As a start toward clearing up the prohibition mess, Mr. Hoover proclaimed his intention of appointing a fact-finding commission "for a searching investigation" of the whole structure and as a further step he proposed the transfer of enforcement from the Treasury to the Department of justice.

The importance with which the new President regards the prohibition and law-enforcement situation was exemplified by the fact that he devoted nearly a third of his inaugural address to it—and the first third, at that.

COVETS WORLD PEACE

The only other subject to receive such extended treatment was world peace.

"I covet for this administration," he said, "a record of having further contributed to advance the cause of peace."

And to this end, he proclaimed America's willingness to "take a practical part in all useful international undertakings," made a "sincere offer" to the world powers to engage in further limitation of armament; and expressed a hope that a way will yet be found for the United States to fully subscribe to the World Court.

He recognized American aversion to the League of Nations by observing that "our people have determined that we should make no political entanglements such as membership in the League of Nations."

REASSURES NATIONS

For the benefit of those foreign governments that profess to doubt American good faith, he declared that this country seeks no territorial expansion, and no domination of other peoples, whether in this hemisphere or any other.

"Such purposes," he said, "are repugnant to our ideals of human freedom."

To American business, he spoke reassuring words. The policy of his administration, he said, will be to let business alone. The election, he observed, "has again confirmed the determination of the American people that regulation and not government ownership is the course rightly to be pursued."

"The larger purpose of our economic thought," he declared, "should be to establish more firmly stability and security of business and employment and thereby remove poverty still further from our borders."

GREAT PAGEANT ON SCHEDULE

was Senator George H. Moses (R.) of New Hampshire, chairman of the inaugural committee, and a secret service operative.

CURTIS SHELTERED

A second automobile, a landau, followed the Hoover car containing Vice President Curtis, Mrs. E. E. Gann, his sister, and Representative Snell (R.) of New York, chairman of the house rules committee. The half-top of the landau afforded the vice president some protection from the rain, but there was none at all in the first car.

Meanwhile Calvin Coolidge, private citizen, from 1:07 p. m. on, repaired to Union Station and boarded the train that is to carry him back to his native Northampton.

The outgoing and the incoming Presidents said good-bye to each other on the high platform from which the new President made his speech.

COOLIDGE FAREWELL

Their farewell was in plain viey of the multitude.

Shaking the rain from his hair and face as he finished, President Hoover walked back to where Mr. Coolidge was sitting, grasped his hand, spoke a few words to his predecessor and to Chief Justice Taft and without further ado left for the mansion and dry clothing.

As his car swept through the Capitol grounds, the units of one of the biggest inaugural parades in history were beginning to form in his honor. The rain dampened the ardor of the marchers somewhat, but it did not seem sufficient to cause any change in the plans.

CROWD HUNTS SHELTER

Down Pennsylvania avenue, the thousands of circus seats thrown up last week in anticipation of a great spectacle were only half filled. The rain had driven thousands of seat-holders to shelter from there as well as in the plaza.

The procession back to the White House was preceded by a battalion of the Third Cavalry, horses moving at a trot. The horses had some difficulty keeping their footing on the slippery pavement.

Back at the White House the new President and official party ate a lunch prepared by the direction of Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, her last White House act, before proceeding out to the glass-enclosed stand in front of the mansion to review the parade.

livelihood and received $35 a week. He is charged in the Federal Courts with having had an income in two years of $74,000.

The defense sought to show that Lessick had threatened to "get even" with Orie for failing to "fix" a case before his brother, the former magistrate, suspended last Saturday by Mayor Kline following his conviction for failing to file an income tax return.

The commonwealth introduced records of the Franklin Savings and Trust Company showing that Orie had deposited as high as $3,900 in one week to the joint account of himself and Martin O'Grady.

"How do you explain your ability to make such deposits on a salary of $35 a week?" asked Assistant District Attorney Earl Jackson, of the defendant.

"O'Grady and I played a game of cards or two," replied Orie.

FAMILY OF 11 IMPOVERISHED IN GAS CRASH

In a little frame house at 5 Marohn street, that only yesterday resounded with happy shouts and laughter, a widow and her 10 children mourn today beside the bier of William J. McLaughlin, killed in the wreck of the Amoco gasoline truck at the Point yesterday.

McLaughlin and John E. O'Brien, of 3728 Bainton street, were burned to death when the gasoline ignited.

Ten pairs of eyes, sparkling with youth but a short time ago, look through a film of tears now into the saddened eyes of Mrs. McLaughlin today, with a question:

"What will we do?"

"Now that Bill is gone, I hardly know which way to turn, but Providence will be good to us, I know, and something will turn up," was Mrs. McLaughlin's optimistic comment. "My two oldest daughters can help. Catherine is 18 and Irene, 16. Catherine is a waitress, but Irene doesn't have a job. The others are too young to work. Charlotte is 14; William, 13; Celestine, 11; George, 9; Jack, 7; Margaret, 6; Betty Jane, 4, and Richard not quite 2.

"Something is bound to turn up, though," she finished sobbing, "so we'll have to make the best of it."

While police and civilians vainly attempted to get through the fire that ringed in the victims, the burning liquid ignited buildings in Liberty avenue and caused damage estimated at $30,000.

CUT AND BRUISED

Six firemen were injured in the fight to save the burning structures. The injured are Battalion Chief William Draves, Capt. Michael Brown, Driver John Welsh, Hoseman Louis Beutchel, William Hart and Victor Majestic. They were treated at the scene by Police Surgeon D. E. Sable for bruises and lacerations.

Police said the driver, O'Brien, might have lost control of the heavy vehicle, owned by the American Oil Company while it was descending the approach of the Point Bridge. He turned it into Liberty avenue at high speed, it struck the curb and turned over. There was a burst of flame and as the gasoline flowed across the street, the flames spread with it.

not to be a candidate to succeed himself at a time when another term might have been his for the asking.

Wearied of the exactions and rigors of public service that have been his from that day back in 1899 when he first entered politics as a member of the town Council of Northampton, he relinquishes the reins of office regretting only the severance of the many pleasant personal ties that have been his during his eight years in Washington as Vice President and as President.

Members of City Council, city department heads, the County Commissioners, county department heads and members of the county bench were invited guests.

JACKIE COOGAN HERE

JACKIE COOGAN TAKES THE CAKE

When Jackie Coogan, child movie star, and his "kid" brother, Robert, arrived at Webster Hall today they found a cake of welcome prepared by the hotel chef at the direction of Capt. Benjamin F. Jolly, an old friend. Replicas of the two children and a miniature motion picture camera all in frosting are on the cake.

JACKIE COOGAN'S IN TOWN, AND HE WANTS TO BE FLIER

Jackie Coogan came to town today.

Jackie is unaffected, despite his world-wide popularity. He sat nervously on a chair, in his suite at Webster Hall, submitting to an interview, and held his 3-year-old "kid" brother on his knee. He stood up and pulled a top cord, a jackknife and a stub pencil out of his pocket. Then he started talking about aviation.

"I'm going to be an aviator," he said. "Do you have any airports here?" Then he told of going to Tempelhof airport in Berlin, Le Bourget in Paris, and Croydon in London.

GOEBEL HIS HERO

"Who's your hero?" a reporter asked him, expecting the conventional answer of "Lindbergh." But—

"Art Goebel," he said without hesitation, "I knew him 'on the lot' when he was doing every kind of stunt—before he even learned to fly."

Then Mrs. Coogan, who incidentally disagreed with her noted son about his future aeronautical ambitions, told of how when Jackie was working in his "kid" pictures most of the time he was off in a corner somewhere with Goebel, who later gained fame as winner of the Dole flight to Hawaii.

HE'S A MOVIE FAN

Jackie is just like millions of other boys. He's a movie fan, seeing at least five each week in every town he visits. He is appearing this week at a local theater.

Soon he's going to do another picture. Probably it will be Kipling's immortal "Kim."

Jackie was met at the station by a large delegation of Pittsburgh friends.

MISSING, CHILDREN ILL

MRS. IRMA E. FISH AND CHILDREN

Ill at their home at Cheswick, Pa., these children are sobbing for their mother, who left them a week ago last Thursday. Russell, 7, is at the point of death from pneumonia. Harold, 6, and Norma, 5, are also ill and in need of a mother's care.

MEXICO WARS ON REBELS

Fausto Topete, who engineered the coup in this state.

Revolutionists under the command of Gen. Manuel Aquirre quietly occupied Nogales last night and posted guards on all roads after placing the customs collector, the federal treasury chief and the postmaster under arrest.

DOUGLAS TO ASK U. S. TROOPS

DOUGLAS, Ariz., March 4.—(AP.—Mayor Millard Haymore, of Douglas, today declared he would ask that a detachment of United States troops be sent here pending settlement of revolutionary conditions on the Mexican side of the international border.

TOPETE BLAMES CALLES

AGUA PRIETA, Sonora, Via Douglas, Ariz., March 4.—(AP.)—In a telegram to the Associated Press, sent from his official residence at Hermosillo, Gov. Fausto Topete, of Sonora, today declared he and his state were in revolt not against the government of Mexico, but against what he termed the "domination" of the government by Plutarco Elias Calles, former President.

"It is only after the greatest effort on the part of all right-minded men in this republic that we finally have decided that only armed resistance will attain the ends sought," said Gov. Topete's telegram. "We have demanded that perpetuation in office cease, and our accusation is that Calles is still the head of the Mexico City government.

Rum Raid Follows Woman's Plea to Save Daughter

PHILADELPHIA, March 4.—(AP.)—The appeal of a woman prominent socially to save her daughter from a "bootlegger who has ruined more young men and women than any other man in the city," resulted in the arrest late last night of a man known as Alfred Stillman and Jack Bokel.

According to detectives several quarts of pre-prohibition whisky were found under the floor in the man's apartment.

At a station house the woman and her daughter, unseen themselves, identified the suspect as the man in whose apartment the girl said she had obtained liquor. He had boasted to her, the girl said, that he paid high protection against police interference and that he "could not be bothered."

MOTHER GONE, 3 SICK TOTS FADE

At the point of death from pneumonia in the home of his parents at Cheswick, Pa., Russell Fish, 7, is sobbing today for his missing mother to return and care for him.

Two other children, Harold, 6, and Norma, 3, also have been ill, and continually ask their father, C. L. Fish, "When is mother coming home?"

Mrs. Irma E. Fish, according to her husband, left their home 10 days ago.

"She told me she was going out to earn some money doing housework," Fish explained. "I thought nothing of her going out as she had done so on previous occasions to earn money and help out with the family expenses."

He did not ask where she was going, but when she did not return inquiries were made at homes at which she previously had been employed. Then a wider and more frenzied search was begun.

But all it revealed was that she had been seen last Thursday in a downtown restaurant.

Fish is greatly worried over his wife's disappearance and fears for the life of Russell if she fails to come immediately to the bedside of the sick child.

Fish described his wife as a blonde with blue eyes, weighing 140 pounds. When she left she wore a black hat, gray coat with gray fur and a black satin dress. He has asked the Missing Persons Bureau for aid.

"Although my wife's mother, Mrs. George Walker, is doing all she can to take care of the sick children, they will not get well unless their mother comes back to take care of them," Fish laments.

toration of the Prussian monarchy and German imperial government.

TO THE outsider it would seem that one German kaiser ought to be enough for this country.

However, Germans are intelligent, trained in politics. And it is not likely they will get rid of their republic and invite the days following 1914 to come back. The 20-cent franc is worth 4 cents, the 20-cent lira is worth 5 cents. The 25-cent German mark is worth 25 cents. Not so bad.

'I TAKE BACK NOTHING,' DAWES' ADIEU TO SENATE

WASHINGTON, March 4.—(AP.)—Vice President Dawes' farewell address was reminiscent of that which he delivered four years ago in denunciation of Senate rules.

"I want to express my heartfelt gratitude to the members of the Senate for their courtesy to me," he said.

"I take back nothing," he shouted as the chamber soared.

The financial world stood the gainer today as Dawes let slip the mantle of the vice presidency after a four-year interlude in high station of American politics.

A financier of domestic and international reputation before he came into the office which he now turns over to Charles Curtis, of Kansas, Dawes once more becomes the head of a great banking house in Chicago which he founded years ago, but this time as a man free to devote his talents to the public interest wherever he may be called.

By a contrast almost romantic in comparison to the stupendous financial undertakings he has supervised in the past, the first job the retiring Vice President will tackle will be to bring order to the treasury of the tiny Dominican republic in the West Indies.

Assured in the closing hours of his administration of the kindly feeling held for him by the senators who declined to meet his demand for a change in the Senate rules to prevent filibusters, Gen. Dawes, invited to take part in the parade of Hoover and Curtis to the Capitol, chose to remain close by the Senate as it wound up its business. Ever since he was caught napping when his vote would have broken the tie decision on the confirmation of Charles Beecher Warren as attorney general, Dawes has stuck close to his desk.

WORLD WAR COLORS STIR BIG CROWD

By WILLIAM I. GRUNDISH,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Escorted by a picked color guard, the battle flags of the Pennsylvania regiments that served in France during the World War received a great ovation as the inaugural parade swung along Pennsylvania avenue today toward the stand where Herbert Hoover, the new President, waited to review the marchers.

The delegation representing Pennsylvania, the state which gave Hoover his largest majority, was in the second division. The first was composed of Army, Navy and Marine units, and the second was made up of the governors of states and their escorts. First in line was Delaware, with Pennsylvania second, the order being determined by the date the state ratified the Constitution.

PATROL HEADS DELEGATION.

Leading the Pennsylvania delegation was a squad of highway patrolmen. Then, in automobiles four abreast, rode the governor and the members of his official party.

They were escorted by Gov. Fisher's staff, composed of Generals William G. Price, Jr., Frank D. Beary, E. C. Shannon, Edward Martin, Robert M. Brookfield, Col. S. George P. Kemp, Robert Vail, C. Blaine Smythers, William R. Dunlap, E. C. Stackpole, Jerre M. Leaman, John Aiken, Charles P. Finley, William A. March, Eric Fisher Wood, Stephen Elliott, Edward N. Iland, and Majors George P. Drake and Charles Jones.

Col. T. D. Boal rode with the Governor and his aide.

Then followed the guard and battle flags.

BEAVER VALLEY IN LINE

The Lincoln Marchin Club of the Beaver Valley, with over 200 in line, completed the official delegation. The Langley High School Band, its big drum pounded by Albert J. Cobbett, Jr., was in the final division of the parade, composed of independent organizations.

AMERICUS CLUB MISSED

Three special cars carrying members of the legislature and their families left Pittsburgh. Others took the train at Johnstown, Greensburg and Altoona. Another special car was added at Harrisburg.

Throughout the proceedings one familiar organization is missing. That is the Americus Republican Club of Pittsburgh, which carried its red, white and blue parasols and wore its beaver hats in many an inauguration parade here.

32ND DENTIST'S OFFICE ROBBED

The thirty-second dental office robbery in city and county in the last two weeks was reported to police today.

Thieves, by using a master key, entered the B. R. Protas dental laboratories, 524 Methodist Building, Penn and Fifth avenues, and stole instruments and gold valued at $2,000, police were notified.

Despite that many buildings in which robberies have occurred are guarded by private watchmen, police say they do not have even a description of the thieves.

Citizens State Bank of Dormont	1,261
Bank of Secured Savings	6,012
Manchester Savings Bank	11,086

HARRY P. ROHSNER, 232 East McIntyre street, North Side, an insurance agent, was the first to claim money deposited to the credit of bank book numbers by the Sun-Telegraph in the movement to promote thrift.

Mr. Rohsner and his wife, Mrs. Estella M. Rohsner, have a joint savings account in the Workingman's Savings Bank & Trust Company. He called Friday on a man to whom he wished to sell insurance, and the conversation turned to the subject of thrift.

"Have you noticed," the other said, "what the Sun-Telegraph is doing? To stimulate interest in the practice of thrift, it is making deposits in various banks to the credit of the holders of bank books."

Mr. Rohsner, interested, looked at the list in the Sun-Telegraph of that day to see if any Workingman's Savings Bank & Trust Company was in the list. Finding No. 2,322 of that institution, he asked Mrs. Rohsner, on returning home, what the number of their passbook was. It was 2,322, and so their deposit is $10 greater for having opened a bank account.

Mr. Rohsner said his experience in the insurance business has brought to his attention again and again how important and desirable it is to have a savings bank account.

Sharon Legion Band In Inaugural Line

NURSE GETS LIFE TERM FOR KILLING POLICEMAN

DENVER, March 4.—(AP.)—Farice King, Denver nurse faced life imprisonment today for killing her former sweetheart, Patrolman John C. Bobzine, alias Robert K. Evans in the General Hospital here November 28.

A jury convicted Miss King of first degree murder yesterday after 24 hours deliberation. Sentence to life in prison is mandatory.

Miss King shot and killed Bobzine when she was assigned to his case in the hospital after he had been wounded in a liquor raid. She then attempted to commit suicide. The meeting was by chance, the couple not having met in two years. After mutual recognition in the hospital, she said Bobzine taunted her with the statement that "happiness and future are not for you." Bobzine married shortly after returning from the war.

The defense alleged that continual brooding sent the nurse into a "love mania," finally serving to unbalance her mind.

Miss King's attorney was granted 20 days to file a motion for a new trial.

HOOVER TO CALL SPECIAL SESSION OF CONGRESS

WOULD REVAMP ANTIQUATED PROCEDURE

WASHINGTON, March 4.—(AP)—Here is the text of the inaugural address of President Herbert Hoover:

My Countrymen:

This occasion is not alone the administration of the most sacred oath which can be assumed by an American citizen. It is a dedication and consecration under God to the highest office in service of our people. I assume this trust in the humility of knowledge that only through the guidance of Almighty Providence can I hope to discharge its ever-increasing burdens.

It is keeping with tradition throughout our history that I should express simply and directly the opinions which I hold concerning some of the matters of present importance.

Our Congress
Great Heights Attained By U. S. Since War.

If we survey the situation of our nation both at home and abroad, we find many satisfactions; we find some causes for concern. We have emerged from the losses of the great war and the reconstruction following it with increased virility and strength. From this strength we have contributed to the recovery and progress of the world.

What America has done has given renewed hope and courage to all who have faith in government by the people. In the large view, we have reached a higher degree of comfort and security than ever existed before in the history of the world.

Through liberation from widespread poverty we have reached a higher degree of individual freedom than ever before. The devotion to and concern for our institutions are deep and sincere. We are steadily building a new race—a new civilization great in its own attainments.

The influence and high purposes of our nation are respected among the peoples of the world.

Praises Coolidge
Nation Indebted for His Guidance in Recovery.

We aspire to distinction in the world, but to a distinction based upon confidence in our sense of justice as well as our accomplishments within our own borders and in our own lives.

For wise guidance in this great period of recovery the nation is deeply indebted to Calvin Coolidge.

But all this majestic advance should not obscure the constant dangers from which self-government must be safeguarded. The strong man must at all times be alert to the attack of insidious disease.

Crime Warning
Sees Disobedience of Law Increasing in U. S.

The most malign of all these dangers today is disregard and disobedience of law. Crime is increasing. Confidence in rigid and speedy justice is decreasing.

I am not prepared to believe that this indicates any decay in the moral fiber of the American people.

I am not prepared to believe that it indicates an impotence of the federal government to enforce its laws.

It is only in part due to the additional burdens imposed upon our judicial system by the Eighteenth Amendment.

The problem is much wider than that. Many influences had increasingly complicated and weakened our law enforcement organization long before the adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment.

To re-establish the vigor and effectiveness of law enforcement we must critically consider the entire federal machinery of justice, the redistribution of its functions, the simplification of its procedure, the provision of additional special tribunals, the better selection of juries, and the more effective organization of our agencies of investigation and prosecution that justice may be sure and that it may be swift.

Urges Reformation
Legal Standards Retarded By Antiquated Machinery.

While the authority of the Federal government extends to but part of our vast system of national, state and local justice, yet the standards which the Federal government establishes have the most profound influence upon the whole structure.

We are fortunate in the ability and integrity of our Federal judges and attorneys. But the system which these officers are called upon to administer is in many respects ill-adapted to present day conditions. Its intricate and involved rules of procedude have become the refuge of both big and little criminals. There is a belief abroad that by invoking technicalities, subterfuge and delay the ends of justice may be thwarted by those who can pay the cost.

Reform, reorganization and strengthening of our whole judicial and enforcement system, both in civil and criminal sides, have been advocated for years by statesmen, judges, and bar associations. First steps toward that end should not longer be delayed.

Liberty—Justice
Remedy for Failure of Enforcement Needed.

Rigid and expeditious justice is the safeguard of freedom, the basis of all ordered liberty, the vital force of progress. It must not come to be in our republic that it can be defeated by the indifference of the citizen, by exploitation of the delays and entanglements of the law, or by combinations of criminals. Justice must not fail because the agencies of enforcement are either delinquent or inefficiently organized. To consider these evils, to find their remedy, is the most sore necessity of our times.

Rum—and People
Citizens' Fault Liquor Traffic Can Exist.

Of the undoubted abuses which have grown up under the Eighteenth Amendment, part are due to the causes I have just mentioned; but part are due to the failure of some states to accept their share of responsibility for concurrent enforcement and to the failure of many state and local officials to accept the obligation under their oath of office zealously to enforce the laws.

With the failures from these many causes has come a dangerous expansion in the criminal elements who have found enlarged opportunities in dealing in illegal liquor.

But a large responsibility rests directly upon our citizens. There would be little traffic in illegal liquor if only criminals patronized it. We must awake to the fact that this patronage from large numbers of law-abiding citizens is supplying the rewards and stimulating crime.

"Law Is Law"
Citizens' Duty to Support All Statutes.

I have been selected by you to execute and enforce the laws of the country. I propose to do so to the extent of my own abilities, but the measure of success that the government shall attain will depend upon the moral support which you, as citizens, extend.

The duty of citizens to support the laws of the land is co-equal with the duty of their government to enforce the laws which exist. No greater national service can be given by men and women of good will—who, I know, are not unmindful of the responsibilities of citzenship—than that they should, by their example, assist in stamping out crime and outlawry by refusing participation in and condemning all transactions with illegal liquor.

Our whole system of self-government will crumble either if officials elect what laws they will enforce or citizens elect what laws they will support. The worst evil of disregard for some law is that it destroys respect for all law. For our citizens to patronize the violation of a particular law on the ground that they are opposed to it is destructive of the very basis of all that protection of life, of homes and property which they rightly claim under other laws.

If citizens do not like a law, their duty as honest men and women is to discourage its violation; their right is openly to work for its repeal.

To those of criminal mind there can be no appeal but vigorous enforcement of the law. Fortunately they are but a small percentage of our people. Their activities must be stopped.

Plans Inquiry
Searches for Modern Way To Run Courts.

I propose to appoint a national commission for a searching investigation of the whole structure of our Federal system of jurisprudence, to include the method of enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment and the causes of abuse under it.

Its purpose will be to make such recommendations for re-organization of the administration of Federal laws and court procedure as may be found desirable. In the meantime it is essential that a large part of the enforcement activities be transferred from the Treasury Department to the Department of Justice as a beginning of more effective organization.

The election has again confirmed the determination of the American people that regulation of private enterprise and not government ownership or operation, is the course rightly to be pursued in our relation to business. In recent years we have established a differentiation in the whole method of business regulation between the industries which produce and distribute commodities on the one hand, and public utilities on the other.

In the former, our laws insist upon effective competition: in the latter, because we substantially confer a monopoly by limiting competition, we must regulate their services and rates.

Sees No Need for Control Of Private Business.

The rigid enforcement of the laws applicable to both groups is the very base of equal oppor-

man can earn more than that amount by his personal efforts. Anything in excess of $30,000 a year is presumed by Congress to be paid on account of considerations other than a man's earning power.

"Such action by Congress seems to be wholly arbitrary and without any justification in fact. If a valid distinction is to be made between earned income and income derived from investments, the only test of the amount of earned income to be allowed for taxation purposes should be whether or not the salary or compensation in excess of $30,000 was in fact paid for services rendered.

"Certainly a statute which fixes the limit, even for taxation purposes, of what any American can fairly earn at $30,000, is a reflection upon the great engineers, businessmen and professional men who are creating the prosperity upon which the revenues of the country depend."

VARIETY CLUB BACKS MOVE

Members of the theatrical profession also are taking a leading part in launching the movement. The Variety Club in Pittsburgh which voices the sentiments of stage folk in Pittsburgh was the first organization to take up the preparation of petitions. At its clubrooms in the William Penn Hotel President John Harris called several prominent members together today and prepared for a canvass of this entire district.

The matter has been brought to the attention of the Pittsburgh Chapter, American Institute of Architects, the Western Pennsylvania Engineers' Society, the Professional Women's Club, the Allegheny County Medical Society and other leading organizations of professional men and women.

Agitation for lowering taxes on earned incomes is spreading over the country like wildfire, it was learned here today. While professional people were getting into print on account of their more mobile organizations, the groups of unorganized wage earners were no less active and it was declared that they would respond en masse and their petitions would outnumber all others.

DOCTORS INTERESTED

Dr. Robert L. Anderson, president of the Allegheny County Medical Society, showed interest in the proposal. After a conference, he asked Dr. W. H. Mayer, chairman of the finance committee and a former president of the society, to act as his spokesman.

Dr. Mayer said the proposal that the society join in the movement for revision of the tax law to reduce the burden on earned incomes would be referred to the legislative department of the American Medical Association at Chicago, and that the local society would be guided by the advice of the parent organization.

Dr. Mayer said there was unquestionably "plenty of room for argume as to the fairn of taxing earned incomes at the same rate as those that come from permanent pr rty or invested capital." He mentioned that there were persons in Pittsburgh with incomes "20 times as great" as physician's' annual earnings who paid little or no income tax becaus their income came from municipal bonds or other tax-exempt sec ities.

DAVIS TO STAY IN CABINET LABOR POST BUT ONE YEAR

By GEORGE R. DURNO,
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—James J. Davis will remain in the cabinet of Herbert Hoover as secretary of labor but one year.

The labor chief, who already has served eight years in the post under Presidents Harding and Coolidge, has "consented to serve for one year to complete certain projects now in course by the department," it was said last night.

Who will succeed to the portfolio at the end of that time was not made known.

Earlier reports that Davis would run for governor of Pennsylvania were revived.

Further, it was learned that Mr. Hoover might not send the names of Davis and of Andrew W. Mellon to be Secretary of the Treasury to the Senate for confirmation along with the eight other names that will comprise his cabinet. Both are holdovers, it was explained, and do not necessarily have to be reconfirmed.

The significance of such a move might lie in the fact there is opposition to the continuance of Mellon in office. This opposition is in the distinct minority, but it might show itself in such a determined way as to block the usual enmasse confirmation of the new official family if Mellon's name were included. If the latter happened, the Senate would have to remain in session to consider the nominations.

Foch Spends Better Night, Doctors Say

PARIS, March 4.—(AP.)—The morning bulletin of the physicians of Marshal Foch said he had spent a "better night."

The bulletin said: "The patient spent a better night. His temperature is 99.8, pulse 88."

G. O. P. RULES EXTRA SESSION

WASHINGTON, March 4.—(AP.)—The Republicans had an overwhelming paper majority, but an actual control threatened again by the insurgent balance of power when the new senate convened this afternoon in the first special session of the Seventy-first Congress.

The new Senate lined up with 54 Republicans, 39 Democrats, 1 Farmer-Laborite and two vacancies. The vacancies will be filled by Republicans—one from Kansas to succeed Vice President Charles Curtis and one eventually from Pennsylvania to fill the seat of William S. Vare.

The Republicans therefore will have a paper majority of 16 votes, but this number includes four or eight to ten insurgents who seldom vote with the administration on controversial issues.

Sign This Petition and Help to Cut Taxes

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

To the Congress of the United States:

We, the undersigned, respectfully urge that the Congress of the United States give immediate consideration to the proposition that there be a downward revision of all income taxes on all earned incomes, such as salaries or fees, or commissions for personal service.

We urge this because of the many instances where wage or fee or commission earners sometimes have just a few years of good incomes and prior to and after that period have substantially less incomes. Their period of better earnings which might give the average wage earner a chance to accumulate some capital is heavily taxed and they seldom have a new opportunity for the accumulation of savings which might tend to make more useful citizens of them.

Labor in general, lawyers, doctors, architects, clerical workers, salesmen, dentists, engineers, journalists, accountants, actors, motion picture actors, singers, musicians, and all the other professional people are in the same plight in the matter of earned income, as distinguished from earnings on capital, and, since they represent a great percentage of the citizenry of the country, we beg the gravest consideration of this proposition. Each signer below hereby enrolls as a member of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph League for the Downward Revision of Taxes on earned incomes and will work with that newspaper toward the end stated.

Permission is hereby granted the Sun-Telegraph to list the signer in the proper Labor, Clerical or Professional Division of the said League for presentation of our signatures to the United States Congress for the stated purpose.

The signer is not obliged to make any kind of contribution or to do anything except to give his moral support to this movement.

tunity and freedom from domination for all our people and it is just as essential for the stability and prosperity of business itself as for the protection of the public at large.

Such regulation should be extended by the Federal government within the limitations of the Constitution and only when the individual states are without power to protect the citizens through their own authorities. On the other hand, we should be fearless when the authority rests only in the Federal government.

"Banish Poverty"
Seeks to Stabilize Business, Employment.

The larger purpose of our economic thought should be to establish more firmly stability and security of business and employment and thereby remove poverty still further from our borders. Our people have in recent years developed a new-found capacity for co-operation among themselves to effect high purposes in public welfare. It is an advance toward the highest conception of self-government.

Self-government does not and should not imply the use of political agencies alone. Progress is born of co-operation in the community—not from governmental restraints. The government should assist and encourage these movements of collective self-help by itself co-operating with them.

Business has by co-operation made great progress in the advancement of service, in stability, in regularity of employment and in the correction of its own abuses. Such progress, however, can continue only so long as business manifests its respect for law.

There is an equally important field of co-operation by the Federal government with the multitude of agencies, state, municipal and private, in the systematic development of those processes which directly affect public health, recreation, education and the home. We have need further to perfect the means by which government can be adapted to human service.

Education
A Chance for Every Child, Hoover's Plan.

Although education is primarily a responsibility of the states and local communities, and rightly so, yet the nation as a whole is vitally concerned in its development everywhere to the highest standards and to complete universality.

Self-government can succeed only through an instructed electorate. Our objective is not simply to overcome illiteracy. The nation has marched far beyond that. The more complex the problems of the nation become, the greater is the need for more and more advanced instruction.

Moreover, as our numbers increase and as our life expands with science and invention, we must discover more and more leaders for every walk of life. We cannot hope to succeed in directing this increasingly complex civilization unless we can draw all the talent of leadership from the whole people.

One civilization after another has been wrecked upon the attempt to secure sufficient leadership from a single group or class.

If we would prevent the growth of class distinctions and would constantly refresh our leadership in the ideals of our people, we must draw constantly from the general mass.

The full opportunity for every boy and girl to rise through the selective processes of education can alone secure to us this leadership.

In public health the discoveries of science have opened a new era. Many sections of our country and many groups of our citizens suffer from diseases, the eradication of which are mere matters of administration and moderate expenditure.

Public health service should be as fully organized and as universally incorporated into our governmental system as is public education. The returns are a thousand fold in economic benefits, and infinitely more in reduction of suffering and promotion of human happiness.

World Peace
Conquest Not Policy of United States.

The United States fully accepts the profound truth that our own progress, prosperity and peace are inter-locked with the progress, prosperity and peace of all humanity.

The whole world is at peace. The dangers to a continuation of this peace today are largely the fear and suspicion which still haunt the world. No suspicion or fear can be rightly directed toward our country.

Those who have a true understanding of America know that we have no desire for territorial expansion, for economic or other domination of other peoples.

Such purposes are repugnant to our ideals of human freedom. Our form of government is ill adapted to the responsibilities which inevitably follow permanent limitation of the independence of other peoples.

Superficial observers seem to find no destiny for our abounding increase in population, in wealth and power except that of imperialism. They fail to see that the American people are engrossed in the building for themselves of a new economic system, a new social system, a new political system—all of which are characterized by aspirations of freedom of opportunity and thereby are the negation of imperialism.

High Ideals
Americans Doing Share To Aid Civilization.

They fail to realize that because of our abounding prosperity our youths are pressing more and more into our institutions of learning; that our people are seeking a larger vision through art, literature, science and travel; that they are moving toward stronger moral and spiritual life—that from these things our sympathies are broadening beyond the bounds of our nation and race toward their true expression in a real brotherhood of man.

They fail to see that the idealism of America will lead it to no narrow or selfish channel, but inspire it to do its full share as a nation toward the advancement of civilization. It will do that not by mere declaration, but by taking a practical part in supporting all useful international undertakings. We not only desire peace with the world, but to see peace maintained throughout the world. We wish to advance the reign of justice and reason toward the extinction of force.

The recent treaty for the renunciation of war as an instrument of National policy sets an advanced standard in our conception of the relations of nations. Its acceptance should pave the way to greater limitation of armament, the offer of which we sincerely extend to the world.

Peace Tribunal
Americans Among First To Offer Plan.

But its full realization also implies a greater and greater perfection in the instrumentalities for pacific settlement of controversies between nations. In the creation and use of these instrumentalities we should support every sound method of conciliation, arbitration and judicial settlement.

American statesmen were among the first to propose, and they have constantly urged upon the world, the establishment of a tribunal for the settlement of controversies of a justiciable character.

The permanent court of international justice in its major purpose is thus peculiarly identified with American ideals and with American statesmanship.

No more potent instrumentality for this purpose has ever been conceived and no other is practicable of establishment.

U. S. Unselfish
No Privileges Sought In Reservations.

The reservations placed upon our adherence should not be misinterpreted. The United States seeks by these reservations no special privilege or advantage but only to clarify our relation to advisory opinions and other matters which are subsidiary to the major purpose of the court.

The way should, and I believe will, be found by which we may take our proper place in a movement so fundamental to the progress of peace.

Our people have determined that we should make no political engagements such as membership in the League of Nations, which may commit us in advance as a nation to become involved in the settlements of controversies between other countries.

They adhere to the belief that the independence of America from such obligations increases its ability and availability for service in all fields of human progress.

New World Trust
Fear, Suspicion Dispelled Among Our Neighbors.

I have lately returned from a journey among our sister republics of the Western Hemisphere. I have received unbounded hospitality and courtesy as their expression of friendliness to our country.

We are held by particular bonds of sympathy and common interest with them. They are each of them building a racial character and a culture which is an impressive contribution to human progress.

We wish only for the maintenance of their independence, the growth of their stability and their prosperity.

While we have had wars in the western hemisphere, yet on the whole the record is in encouraging contrast with that of other parts of the world. Fortunately the new world is largely free from the inheritances of fear and distrust which have so troubled the old world. We should keep it so.

War Unworthy
Battlefield Can Be Made a Myth.

"It is impossible, my countrymen, to speak of peace without profound emotion. In thousands of homes in America, in millions of homes around the world, there are vacant chairs.

It would be a shameful confession of our unworthiness if it should develop that we have abandoned the hope for which all these men died.

Surely civilization is old enough, surely mankind is mature enough so that we ought in our own lifetime to find a way to permanent peace. Abroad, to West and East, are nations whose sons mingled their blood with the blood of our sons on the battlefields.

Most of these nations have contributed to our race, to our culture, our knowledge and our progress. From one of them we derive our very language and from many of them much of the genius of our institutions. Their desire for peace is as deep and sincere as our own.

Peace can be contributed to by respect for our ability in defense. Peace can be promoted by the limitation of arms and by the creation of the instrumentalities for peaceful settlement of controversies. But it will become a reality only through self-restraint and active effort in friendliness and helpfulness. I covet for this administration a record of having further contributed to advance the cause of peace.

Party Policies
Keep Faith—But Put Nation First.

In our form of democracy the expression of the popular will can be effected only through the instrumentality of political parties.

We maintain party government not to promote intolerant partisanship but because opportunity must be given for expression of the popular will, and organization provided for the execution of its mandates and for accountability of government to the people.

It follows that the government, both in the executive and the legislative branches, must carry out in good faith the platforms upon which the party was entrusted with power.

But the government is that of the whole people; the party is the instrument through which policies are determined and men chosen to bring them into being.

The animosities of elections should have no place in our government for government must concern itself alone with the common weal.

Action upon some of the proposals upon which the Republican party was returned to power, particularly further agricultural relief and limited changes in the tariff, cannot in justice to our farmers, our labor and our manufacturers be postponed.

I shall therefore request a special session of Congress for the consideration of these two questions. I shall deal with each of them upon the assembly of the Congress.

Other Trusts
Problems Must Be Solved —Not Evaded.

It appears to me that the more important further mandates from the recent election were the maintenance of the integrity of the Constitution; the vigorous enforcement of the laws; the continuance of economy in public expenditure; the continued regulation of business to prevent domination in the community; the denial of ownership or operation of business by the government in competition with its citizens; the avoidance of policies which would involve us in the controversies of foreign nations; the more effective reorganization of the departments of the Federal government; the expansion of public works; and the promotion of welfare activities affecting education and the home.

These were the more tangible determinations of the election, but beyond them was the confidence and belief of the people that we would not neglect the support of the embedded ideals and aspirations of America.

These ideals and aspirations are the touch-stones upon which the day to day administration and legislative acts of government must be tested.

More than this, the government must, so far as lies within its proper powers, give leadership to the realization of these ideals and to the fruition of these aspirations.

No one can adequately reduce these things of the spirit to phrases or to a catalog of definitions.

Faith in Men
No Short Road to Realization of Aspirations.

We do know what the attainments of these ideals should be: The preservation of self-government and its full foundations in local government; the perfection of justice whether in economic or in social fields, the maintenance of ordered liberty; the denial of domination by any group or class; the building up and preservation of equality of opportunity; the stimulation of initiative and individuality; absolute integrity in public affairs; the choice of officials for fitness to office; the direction of economic progress toward prosperity and the further lessening of poverty; the freedom of public opinion; the sustaining of education and of the advancement of knowledge; the growth of religious spirit and the tolerance of all faiths; the strengthening of the home; the advancement of peace.

There is no short road to the realization of these aspirations. Ours is a progressive people, but with a determination that progress must be based upon the foundation of experience. Ill-considered remedies for our faults bring only penalties after them. But if we hold the faith of the men in our mighty past who created these ideals, we shall leave them heightened and strengthened for our children.

Wonderland
President Sees Bright Future for Nation.

This is not the time and place for extended discussion. The questions before our country are problems of progress to higher standards; they are not the problems of degeneration.

They demand thought and they serve to quicken the conscience and enlist our sense of responsibility for their settlement. And that responsibility rests upon you, my countrymen, as much as upon those of us who have been selected for office.

Ours is a land rich in resources; stimulating in its glorious beauty; filled with millions of happy homes; blessed with comfort and opportunity. In no nation are the institutions of progress more advanced. In no nation are the fruits of accomplishment more secure. In no nation is the government more worthy of respect. No country is more loved by its people. I have an abiding faith in their capacity, integrity and high purpose. I have no fears for the future of our country. It is bright with hope.

In the presence of my countrymen, mindful of the solemnity of this occasion, knowing what the task means and the responsibility which it involves, I beg your tolerance, your aid and your co-operation. I ask the help of Almighty God in this service to my country to which you have called me.

HIGHWAY PLAN, 'GAS' TAX, UP THIS WEEK

HARRISBURG, March 4.—(AP.)—The probelms confronting the Pennsylvania General Assembly were forgotten for the time being as members went to Washington to witness the inauguration of Herbert Hoover.

Upon their return Tuesday, however, the legislators plan to consider and act on some of the most important subjects to come before them.

The anthracite tonnage tax repealer is among the highly controversial subjects which will receive consideration during the week under present plans. Gov. Fisher continues to hold that if any tax reduction is to be effected the tonnage tax should get first consideration, and he has given his approval to plans to report it favorably from committee in the near future, advance it on the calendar and recommit it for public hearings. In the last week many of those urging the repeal said they were more optimistic as to the ultimate disposition of the bill than ever before.

HIGHWAY PROGRAM

Introduction of the measure establishing a new highway program for the state is also expected Tuesday. This measure would transfer the 4,500 miles of unimproved roads on the state system from the secondary to the primary system and would forbid further additions to the state system until construction catches up with the present mileage. The sum of $25,000,000 would be appropriated to start on this construction program and details as to the allocation of this money by counties are being worked out in such a manner that counties which have not been able to take advantage of state rewards will get the preference in early road construction.

Most legislators believe that adoption of this program will necessitate passage of a 4 cent gasoline tax bill, which has yet to be introduced. If there is to be any fight in the present legislature it is generally believed that it will center about the gasoline tax. It is conceded that the present emergency third cent of the tax will be made permanent.

While Gov. Fisher has said that the addition of a fourth cent is a matter which is strictly up to the Legislature, he has remarked repeatedly that the additional revenue from such an increase would be ample to carry out the proposed programs of greater aid to townships and the taking over of county bridges and city streets on the state system.

LEWIS STICKS TO GUNS

State Treasurer Samuel S. Lewis has stood by his guns in opposition to the proposed increase, basing his activity on a desire to be consistent in that he advocated defeat of the $50,000,000 road bond issue on the ground that the highway department had sufficient funds for all purposes out of current revenue, without new sources.

The whole subject may be aired at a public hearing set for Tuesday night after the session, when the Talbot bill, which Lewis is backing, will be discussed. This measure provides for the collection of the gas tax from the wholesaler rather than the retailer. Proponents of this bill believe it would result in collection of a million dollars a year more than under the present system of collection from retailers. Gov. Fisher has asked the attorney general for an opinion as to the constitutionality of the proposed bill.

Two Miners Fined For Ignoring Safety

BUTLER, Pa., March 4.—(AP)—Because they failed to protect themselves and others who might be working near them, E. A. Livingston and Pete Spinette, miners in the Little Buffalo Coal Company, were fined $25 and costs by Judge James M. Galbreath. The men were arrested by a mining inspector who said they had not put enough timbers to support the roof in a section of a mine in which they were working.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

THE DOUBLE LEGACY

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

THE Jaspers were tickled to pieces over being promised a legacy of $5,000 by their aunt Julia out in Nebraska, but they did wish it could be obtained without her old housekeeper thrown in. They had a dozen places to put the one and no place at all for the other.

Yet Aunt Julia's letter had left them no choice in the matter.

"Dear Nephew Will—

"I'm over 70 years old and liable to go any day. Although never having seen any of you, I feel a natural affection toward you as my only living relatives and want you to have $5,000 on condition you'll give my poor old housekeeper a home for the rest of her life. She has enough money to live on, but I want to be sure she will end her days among those who will treat her as one of the family.

"If this is agreeable to you, let me know and she will arrive with the $5,000 when I have departed for other lands.

"Your affectionate aunt,

"JULIA ARMSTRONG.

"P. S.—She is crabbed at times but means well."

The family made comments according to their several natures.

"We can finish paying off the mortgage and own our home clear!" exclaimed Will Jaspers.

"I can have a regular ritzy party and repay all my social debts!" cried his daughter Elaine, who was pretty, popular and 17.

"But where will we put the housekeeper?" This was Elaine's mother.

"Well—" declared young Bill, who had troubles of his own with a garage that wouldn't show a profit and a girl who wouldn't marry him until it did. "We might take a part of the $5,000 and build on a room for the old girl!"

In due season, both the $5,000 and Miss Mattie, as she said she would like to be called, arrived, and her appearance at their front door one windy, rainy April night was the first intimation the Jaspers had of Aunt Julia's death.

She proved a wiry, white-haired little woman probably, not far from 70 herself, yet still possessing what Elaine termed "pep."

Likewise a bit of a temper as was shown one night at the supper table.

"I had always supposed," Will Jaspers had chanced to remark, "that my aunt was a very wealthy woman, owning several blocks of business property in Omaha. When Uncle Jim died—"

"What if she was?" interrupted Miss Mattie tartly. "She had a dozen pet charities. Any reason she should cut them out and leave her money to a parcel of relatives she had never even met?"

"I reckon not," said Will quietly, and the meal proceeded in uncomfortable silence.

As time passed, having Miss Mattie around proved all the annoyance that had been feared. Even Elaine, who had given up her bedroom to the newcomer and had gone into the attic, was driven to frequent complaint of Miss Mattie's outspoken criticisms.

"I thought you were bad enough, mother, but this old pest's a hundred times worse. 'In my day, young girls didn't try to improve the faces God gave them!' 'It was after one, young woman, when I heard you come in last night!' 'Didn't I see you and that Stanwood boy holding hands?' Gosh!"

Young Bill saw less of Miss Mattie than the others did. Rising at a ridiculously early hour in the morning and frequently coming in after the family were in bed, he gave over every possible minute to working the old garage for a large enough sum on the profit side of the ledger to browbeat Peggy into marrying him.

Not that he wanted to condemn Peg to a life of poverty, but she was altogether too pretty and smart a girl to leave around loose and nothing short of the matrimonial tie would make him feel secure.

Yet persistently he refused any share in the $5,000. "No, Dad, you've had a hard pull and this will ease things up a bit."

He and Miss Mattie had their first run-in on the evening of Elaine's party.

Bill had been requested to close up early for once and be on hand to do any of those little odd jobs that arise at such a time, from borrowing chairs of the neighbors to playing extra man and releasing wall flowers from their posts.

Bill had demurred at first. "Lose a whole evening's trade to that new garage across the street?"

"Get in a helper!" begged Elaine. "It isn't as if I had a party every day in the year!" Her cupid's bow mouth curved downward.

"All right, kiddo, all right," yielded Bill hastily, "but helpers don't grow on bushes."

So it happened that Miss Mattie waylaid Bill in the kitchen on the evening of the party shortly after the arrival of the last guest. "Isn't your girl coming to this party of Elaine's?"

Bill frowned. "No, she isn't," he said shortly, not feeling called upon to explain that Peg had declined Elaine's invitation and given no reason for doing so. Why must the old lady be forever nosing about in the affairs of people, who, when you came right down to it, were no better than strangers!

"Time you were settling down," pursued Miss Mattie. "In my day, young folks didn't think they had to start in where their parents left off. If this here Peg—crazy name—was worth her salt she wouldn't be so demanding!"

"Look here, Miss Mattie," said Bill gruffly, "I wouldn't stand for Aunt Julia herself talking that way about the best girl in the world, much less——"

"Your aunt's meddlesome old housekeeper? Well, well—don't get so highty-tighty. Only, if your girl really loved you, she'd want to do her bit to help you succeed. If she won't, she don't!"

The incorrectly expressed phrase continued to ring teasingly in Bill's ears. "If she won't—she don't. If she won't—she don't!"

"By George, I'll put it up to Peg!"

Going to the telephone, he called Peg's number. After a moment, "They don't answer!" floated back over the wires.

He looked at the clock. Surely at nine-thirty the entire family were not in bed.

Then it occurred to him that he might run down to the garage just to make sure everything was O. K. He couldn't remember whether or not he had closed the rear window.

Poking his head in at the living-room door he saw that Elaine's party was in full swing. Radio was working perfectly. All the girls were dancing. No time yet to serve the cream. Yes, he could get down and back again before he was missed.

Three doors away he noticed that the tiny garage office was lighted. How come!

Breaking into a run, he dashed in through the door only to stop short in breathless, wide-eyed amazement.

"Peg! Miss Mattie!"

Miss Mattie was the first to speak.

"I wanted to have a talk with your girl. When I found she wasn't coming to the party, I decided it was a good opportunity for me to slip over to see her without being missed. Met her coming down her steps on the way here and we've had a first-rate little chat."

"But Peg, what on earth—"

"Oh," spoke up Peg airily, "I had a hunch some job would pass you by if there was nobody here to tend to things. And my hunch was right. The Belmonts sent their chauffeur down with the limousine and if I hadn't promised you'd fix up the timing first thing in the morning he'd have gone straight across the street to Sloan's and—biff!—there would have gone all the Belmonts' work!"

"Little bit of all right, isn't she?" said Miss Mattie with a funny twinkle in her faded eyes. "I take back all I said. Guess girls today are just sensible instead of sentimental. Why, when I married your Uncle Jim—" she clapped a hand over her mouth.

"Bill gasped. "You—when you married my Uncle Jim. Why—Miss Mattie—I believe you're Aunt Julie herself!"

But not until she had gone back to the house with both Bill and Peg and the whole family, the party over, were gathered in the dance disordered living room would she explain further.

Then, "I've got a great deal more than $5,000 or five times that to leave when I die," she said calmly, "even after my pet charities are taken care of. Not knowing any of you I wanted to find out just what sort of people you were and what you would do with my money. I'm satisfied. Any girl that will tend garage instead of going to a dance will make Bill a good wife, and, on the day they are married I'll buy out Bill's rival across the street for a wedding present!"

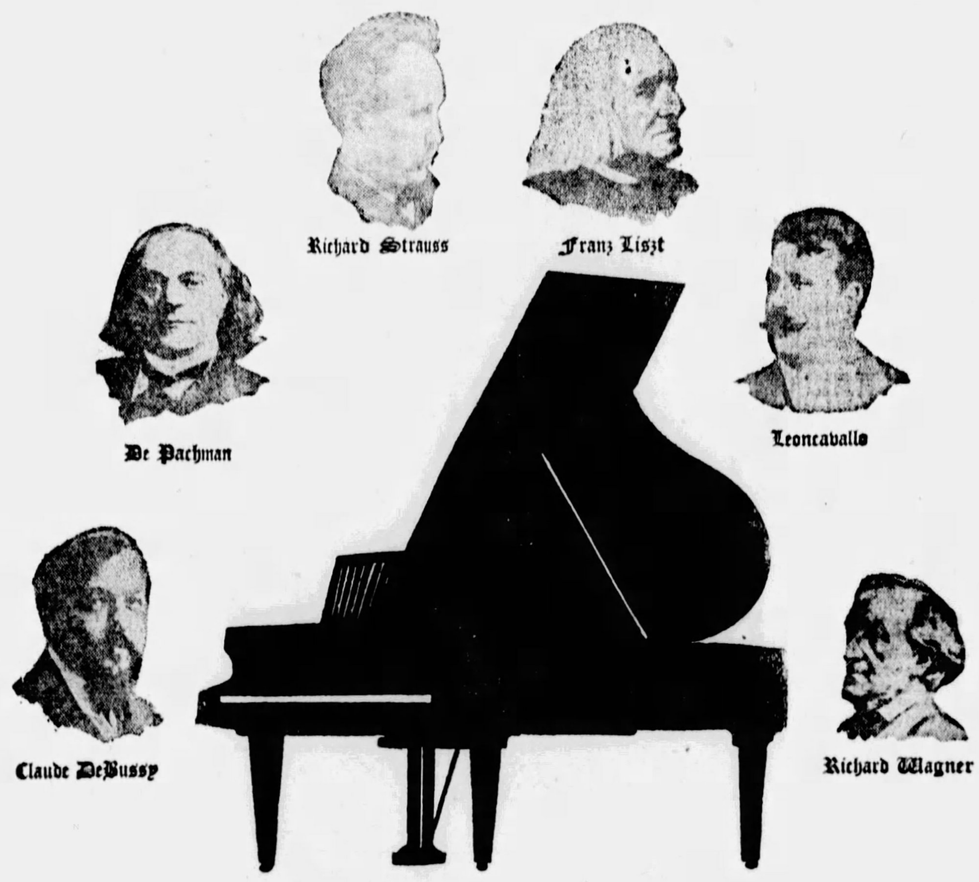
"In a Word Your Instruments are Perfect"—FRANZ LISZT
(Excerpt from letter to Carl Bechstein)



The Boggs & Buhl Piano Galleries Present to America

BECHSTEIN

The Piano of the Masters

Acclaimed by Master Musicians as Incomparable Among the World's Pianos

HERE it is in all its glory; a symbol of this store's determination to make easily available to its patronage the finest commodities the world affords. Whenever and wherever the musical elect gather, the name of Bechstein evokes a sense of that finality of attainment characteristic of the violins of Stradivarius and other supreme achievements of human skill.

RICHARD STRAUSS:
I consider the Bechstein the most beautiful—the most refined in the world.

EUGENE D'ALBERT:
I cannot play upon any other instrument—only on a Bechstein do I feel safe.

FREDERIC LAMOND:
The Bechstein piano is the most perfect instrument the world has ever produced.

NEARLY three quarters of a century ago, Hans Von Bulow spread broadcast the news of the first grand piano made by Carl Bechstein with his own hands in a little shop in Berlin. Since that time the masters of the Golden Age of Music—from Liszt, Wagner and Brahms to Strauss, Scriabine and DeBussy—and untold thousands of musical cognoscenti throughout the world, have joined in a crescendo of praise which has made the Bechstein the inevitable standard by which fine pianos everywhere are judged. Indeed the written word of the masters, as revealed in Bechstein archives, has placed the Bechstein not only in the forefront but actually above all other pianos in the world.

DE PACHMAN:
In all the world there is not a more beautiful or perfect piano than the Bechstein.

RICHARD WAGNER:
C. Bechstein pianos are resounding benefits to the musical world.

ANTON RUBENSTEIN:
I use Bechstein Pianos almost exclusively.

And Now
THE BECHSTEIN IS HERE IN PITTSBURGH
at BOGGS & BUHL

INFINITE care—painstaking craftsmanship for which the old world is justly famous has produced in the Bechstein an instrument of surpassing durability under all conditions. On this very point in physical construction as well as for tone quality, it is guaranteed both by Bechstein and Boggs & Buhl.

Despite its International Reputation it is Moderately Priced

70TH CONGRESS ENDS IN FINAL FLAREUP

WASHINGTON, March 4.—(AP.)—The Seventieth Congress ended quietly today, its passing overshadowed by the spectacle of a presidential inauguration.

At 10 o'clock the House assembled in a chamber filled with empty seats and galleries. At 11, Vice President Dawes called the Senate to order for the last time.

A few minor measures were before the House on this last day of the session and the membership took turns in eulogizing those who answered the roll call for the last time.

DISTINGUISHED GATHERING

Before distinguished crowds, gathered to see Charles Curtis inducted into office as vice president, Gen. Dawes called for the regular order of business. Senators did not appear to be very much interested in the legislative situation.

A motion was adopted appointing a committee to await on the President, who was en route to the Capitol. Mr. Dawes named the two leaders, Senator Watson (Rep.) Indiana, and Robinson (Dem.) Arkansas.

The calm of the short session did not last long in the Senate for as the galleries filled and the wives of the outgoing and incoming presidents took seats in the gallery, there was a period of turbulancy over the National Origins bill.

DISAPPROVAL SHOUTED

Six senators leaped shouting to their feet when Senator Bingham moved adoption of the measure. Four of them made the point that a quorum was lacking. But Gen. Dawes recognized Senator Reed, Pennsylvana, who recalled that it would be necessary to read the resolution three times under strict interpretation of the rules. It was then 11:30 and soon the Congress would be ended.

Just then Senators Watson and Robinson came in from their visit to Mr. Coolidge. Standing in the center aisle, his left hand typically in the trousers pocket of his morning dress suit, Watson announced that the president had no further communication for the Senate.

SEARS-ROEBUCK BUYS NEW PLOT

Sears, Roebuck & Co. has purchased the Brainerd and the Emory Methodist Episcopal Church properties at the northwest corner of North Highland avenue and Rural street, almost opposite the site they bought recently for their $3,000,000 retail store.

It is understood the ground will be used to display a series of the company's ready-cut homes. The ground fronts 218 feet on North Highland avenue, 460 feet on Rural street, and 218 feet on Beatty street at the rear.

Justin D. Lees, of the Nicola Realty Company, was the broker in the transaction. Special representatives of Sears, Roebuck & Co. were in town last week preparing to start construction work on the new store.

Flu Claims Second In Verona Family

Death again has cast its shadow over the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Baratta, in Verona, taking their daughter Eleanor, 8, Saturday night. She was the victim of influenza-pneumonia. January 6, their son Joseph, Jr., died from the same disease. Two other children are still sufferings from the malady. Baratta is superintendent of the Suburban Water Company in Verona.

Ousted Bible Class At First Communion

The Callender Bible School, composed of groups ousted from the South Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, Wilkinsburg, during a church dispute, held its first communion yesterday in Malta Temple, Wilkinsburg. More than 300 worshipers participated, with the Rev. W. H. Hall, pastor, and the Rev. Fred Pennington, evangelist, in charge.

LOEW PURCHASE MAKES FOX FILM KING

NEW YORK, March 4.—(AP.)—William Fox, president of Fox Theaters Corporation, yesterday announced purchase by the corporation of a "substantial block" of the common stock of Loew's Incorporated. The stock was acquired from the family of the late Marcus Loew and its acquisition was said to make the affiliated companies the largest operatives of motion picture theaters and companies in the country.

Gross assets of Fox Theaters and Loew's, Inc., were more than $137,000,000, as of December 31, 1928, and Fox Films Corporation had gross assets of that date of more than $36,000,000, according to the Film Daily Year Book.

The Fox Theater Corporation controls about 65 theaters all over the country, including the recently purchased Poli chain in New England. Loews, Inc., owns and operates about 175 to 200 theaters and in addition controls Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Pictures Corporation. Fox is head of the Fox Films Corporation, but said the films corporation was not involved in the transaction.

"It is the intention," a statement given out by Fox said, "that Loew's, Inc., shall operate as a separate unit in the amusement field. Nicholas M. Schenck will remain as president and David Bernstein as vice president and treasurer. The officials and executives of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio in California will continue in authority and the production, personnel and activities will be unchanged."

Negotiations are almost complete, Fox said, for acquisition of 334 theaters in the Greater New York district.

HIGH BUS FARE PROTESTED

A protest in behal' of the Allied Boards of Trade against the 25-cent bus fare proposed for the new Bellevue route of the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company was on file with the Public Service Commission today. It was filed for the organization by George A. Young, president of the Twenty-seventh Ward Board of Trade.

The fare rate is scheduled to become effective tomorrow, and it was the strategy of the trade boards to block this by a last-minute protest. The protest recites that the rate is "unreasonable, unjustly discriminatory and unduly preferential."

The protest is another step in the campaign by the transit committee of the trade boards to force down bus fares in Pittsburgh. The allied boards comprises 48 boards and has constituents throughout the city and county.

Poison Rum Blamed For Woman's Death

Poison liquor was blamed today for the death of Mrs. Tillie Mullins, 48, of 1127 Western avenue, who died yesterday after a party in her home. Woods Run police arrested the woman's husband, Henry Mullins, and her son-in-law and daughter, Edward and Mrs. Lillian Kaylor. The prisoners were released after Deputy Coroner Joseph Oliffe had questioned them.

THE CRUELEST TEST A SKIN CAN MEET

Under the glare of the huge new incandescent "sun-spot" lights, only the most flawless skin can stand the test of the close-up. JOAN CRAWFORD, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer star, faces it confidently. She says: "Exquisite smooth skin is the all-important asset for the star who must face into the glaring lights of the close-up. Never have I had anything like Lux Toilet Soap for keeping my skin fresh and smooth."

CLARA BOW, popular Paramount star, in the luxurious bathroom—one of the finest built in Hollywood—which sets off so well her vivacious charm.

"A beautifully smooth skin means even more to a star than to other women. Lux Toilet Soap is a great help in keeping the skin in perfect condition."

Clara Bow

"Smooth, lovely skin is the most appealing charm a girl can have," say 39 leading Hollywood Directors

IT ATTRACTS you instantly whenever you see it—a skin that is exquisitely smooth and lovely.

In Hollywood, where loveliness and magnetism mean success, they know this. "I don't know a single case where a girl without beautiful skin has been able to win enough popularity to become a star," says William Beaudine, Fox director, voicing the experience of the directors.

"Exquisitely lovely skin is the greatest asset a star can have," Mary Astor explains. "Without it you cannot photograph successfully in a close-up." For with the new incandescent "sun-spot" lights pouring down on face and arms and shoulders, little make-up can be used.

Mary Astor keeps her ivory smooth skin always lovely with Lux Toilet Soap—it is made by the famous French method. In fact, 9 out of 10 screen stars use Lux Toilet Soap.

Notice the exquisite texture of Joan Crawford's skin the next time you see her, or May McAvoy's, Doris Kenyon's, or Phyllis Haver's. Of the 451 important actresses in Hollywood, including all stars, 442 use this soap.

All the great film studios have made it the official soap in their dressing rooms. Beauty is important in Hollywood.

Caressing, instant lather even in hard water! Start using this fragrant white soap today—a lovely, fine skin plays such a big part in feminine charm.

PHYLLIS HAVER—the next time you see her in a Pathé film notice how softly smooth Lux Toilet Soap keeps her skin. Miss Haver says: "Lux Toilet Soap leaves my skin so gently smooth that I have no fear of the high-powered lights of the close-up."

Luxury formerly found only in French Soaps at 50¢ or $1.00 a cake—now 10¢

MARION DAVIES, whose clear beauty has endeared her to an enormous public, says: "Deliciously smooth skin is a great asset to a star. I am delighted with Lux Toilet Soap."

BEBE DANIELS, enchanting Paramount star, says: "The girl with smooth skin need not fear the close-up. Lux Toilet Soap is a great help in keeping the skin smooth and lovely."

ELEANOR BOARDMAN, the exquisite young star—her loveliness is reflected in that of this garden-like bathroom that is unique even in Hollywood.

"Lux Toilet Soap is excellent for the very smooth skin a screen star must have. It is such a very good soap."

INAUGURATION OF MR. HUM STARS, TOO

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Radio Editor.

Until 4 o'clock this afternoon, and perhaps later, Pittsburgh stations will give a radio panorama of Herbert Hoover's induction into office as the thirty-first President of the United States. KDKA and WCAE are definitely scheduled to carry the entire ceremony regardless of its length, while WJAS may change its plan of running only until 3.

Bringing the day to a grand climax, the inaugural ball will be broadcast tonight at 11 o'clock by WCAE and WJAS. Radio reporters will describe Washington society folk as they enter the hall. Five famous bands will play. The orchestra of the United States Marine Band, a crack dance orchestra from the Navy Band and a similar unit from the Army Band will be heard.

The American Indian Reserve Band, a colorful musical unit, will be present and Paul Specht's Orchestra, one of the best known dance aggregations in the country, will complete the musical ensemble. Phillips Carlin will announce through WCAE, while Norman Brokenshire will probably be heard over WJAS. President Hoover and Mrs. Hoover are not expected to attend the ball.

Because of the inauguration the usually wonderful Monday night becomes an extraordinary Monday night, with both chain systems offering a variety of excellent talent. Local stations, too, have outdone themselves in program arrangements.

STARS OF SCREEN

From WJAS at 9:30 we expect to hear Al Jolson, Colleen Moore, Dorothy Mackaill, Conrad Nagel, Monte Blue, Alice White and others. The "and others" will include Davy Lee, the youth who took the part of "Sonny Boy" in Jolson's famous talkie.

At the same time Mme. Frances Alda will forsake operatic conventions to sing "Love Me or Leave Me," from "Whoopee," WCAE.

Next in importance will be Belle Baker, Jackie Coogan and other stellar acts from the Davis Theater, the Enright and the Stanley. They will "meet the mike" at WCAE, 7 p. m.

Vice President Dawes will hardly become plain Mr. Dawes until Edison artists sing and play his favorite numbers through KDKA, 9 o'clock. An excellent program.

Thompkins Corners may be a small place but they do things in a big way. For instance, they inaugurate their mayor on presidential day. Tonight at 9:30, KDKA.

More comedy will be furnished when Henry Burbig burlesques the "Kid's Last Fight," WJAS at 8:30.

HAMP AT WABC

MAYOR'S INAUGURAL.

Monday, March 4, has a double significance to the folks of Thompkins Corners. It is the day when President-Elect Hoover is to be inaugurated in Washington. But even more important, the day when the Hon. Matt Thompkins is reinaugurated for his tenth consecutive term of office as mayor of Thompkins Corners.
All the best traditions of inaugural ceremonies will be carefully observed. There is to be an inaugural parade to the Enterprise office, where Supreme Judge Wilpole will administer the oath of office to Mayor Thompkins, then follows an inaugural speech, and a drill by the school children.

FIGHT WITH INDIANS.

The return of the Lewis and Clark Expedition from the Pacific Coast will be the principal theme. It will tell how Lewis and Clark separated in the mountains, Clark to journey south to the upper reaches of the Yellowstone, which river he followed down to its junction with the Missouri, while Lewis traveled east to the Great Falls of the Missouri and then swung north and west to the Marias River. Lewis' side trip up the Marias resulted in the only fatal encounter these explorers had with the Indians, and a feature of the program will be this dramatic fight and the subsequent escape of Lewis and his companions down to the banks of the Missouri.

Dick Sees Kidnapers From Airplane and Makes Parachute Jump

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Dick Stuyvesant and Felicia Brett, both in Reno for divorce, meet and fall in love with each other. Dick is staying at the hotel with an old friend, John Berkeley. Felicia is visiting at the home of Dr. Tom Hodge, his wife Ann, and their lively daughter, Peg. Felicia receives a wire from her mother, Mrs. Henley-Martin, saying that Brett is on his way to Reno. She goes East by airplane, gets her 6-year-old son, Alex, and returns to the Hodges just as her husband arrives. Felicia refuses to go back to him. He learns that she is going about with Dick and has her shadowed by detectives. He also engaged two men to kidnap little Alex. Dick and Felicia, returning to the Hodges from a party, find Tom and Ann bound and gagged and the child's crib empty. On a stretch of narrow mountain road about 17 miles out of Reno, the kidnapers' car is stopped by a large boulder which has slid down the mountain side and blocks the way. With the only rope they have, a short halter lead, they bind the now wakeful and frightened child and leave him on a ledge, with a dirty handkerchief tied over his mouth. As the sun gets higher, a rattlesnake crawls out from the broken rocks. While Felicia is answering the questions of detectives and Dick is getting all the assistance his wealth and influence can command, a Desert Rat comes across little Alex and saves him from the snake, only to find himself threatened by the automatic of a mountain "bad man."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XIII.

WITH one leap the Desert Rat knocked over his assailant, and the squat dark body of what was probably the most surprised man in Nevada went rolling down the rock slope, his gun clattering after him.

The Rat scrambled back and smiled at the boy. That smile worked miracles. Wide-eyed, the child had watched the attack, but craned forward to follow with his gaze the precipitous descent of their attacker. The six-year-old mind had been grappling with far more than it could understand, but here was something it knew.

Little Alex grinned. "He got it, didn't he?" he asked, and regarded his companion with admiration.

The Rat nodded. "But he'll be back for more, sonny. We'd better be moving."

Trustingly, the warm little fingers gripped the old hand and the two climbed swiftly higher into the mountain.

A grotesque pair, the straggler from the desert and the tow-headed boy in pajamas striped like peppermint candy.

"Aren't we 'most there?" the child demanded. He was getting out of breath and the Rat was panting, his wrinkled face flushed and perspiring.

Below them, two figures were climbing steadily in pursuit, dark men who knew better the winding ways of Below-the-line than the trackless paths of the Sierras.

"Take a shot at the old guy," urged one. "Naw; might hit the kid." They wasted no more breath.

"'Most there," the Rat agreed. He looked down at the child gently; then, smiling, "Want to ride piggy-back?"

Why, this was fun. "Giddap!" shouted Alex, and pounded the shoulders with enthusiastic fists.

In the Hodges' living room, Felicia waited, and Dick waited with her.

"Would you rather be alone?" he asked her, finally, in a low voice.

She stirred. "Oh, no! Just you!. . . . "She looked at him sadly. "Oh, Dick, my dear—"

"All right, darling."

Side by side they sat, silent, and Dick's heart swelled with love and pity. Was it only nine days that he had known this girl, only a week that he had loved her? So deeply had they lived that it seemed as though everything in the past had been but a prelude.

"Oh, I love you so!" he whispered, and her fingers clung to him.

Tragedy and terror had welded their love into something greater than themselves, a force which would continue throughout all their lives. Misunderstandings, quarrels—such things could never be for them now, thought Dick. Waiting there, hour after hour, he felt that they had become one person. Marriage, divorce, remarriage—such things were merely forms to be gone through, empty and without meaning. This woman beside him was his mate. Some day they might share happiness together; now her tragedy and suffering were his.

The telephone rang. He sprang to answer it.

A faint glow of color appeared in Felicia's cheeks as she heard his voice, eager, excited.

"J. B.," he told her, "He's got hold of Mr. Nevada, and he's putting everything he can lay hands on at our disposal. He says to tell you you that if your child is in Nevada, he'll get him for you. The roads and railroads are all being watched. He's sending a state policeman named Lanier up here—"

Ann, who had just come in, sighed in relief.

"Felicia, honey, we'll have little Alex back by night! Don't you worry. If Mr. Nevada—"

Perhaps her confidence was not so great as it seemed, but the color remained in Felicia's face. . . .

Sam Lanier was a man to inspire confidence. Broad-shouldered and brown, with the mild voice of one who doesn't have to sound hard-boiled, he filled the room with his presence.

He addressed Dick without preliminaries: "If we take a plane and scout around—of course we can't land, most places—but we may get a trace of them."

Felicia gave a little cry of anguish. The picture of seeing, from the air, her boy in the hands of his captors—seeing him and being powerless to reach him, was agonizing.

And as her eyes implored Dick, he started.

"Look here, Lanier—this is just a chance!" he said excitedly. "In case we do find them. I've never made a parachute jump, but a lot of bigger fools than I am are doing it daily. H—"

"Great!" said Lanier. "Come on."

"Oh, Dick!" Felicia was torn, now by fear for him. "If anything happened to you—"

"Rot!" said Dick. "What could happen? You try to get some sleep, Felicia—and don't worry, now."

"Don't worry!" She looked at him hopelessly.

"We'll get your boy for you, ma'am!" Sam Lanier promised.

Driving swiftly to the landing field, Lanier explained, in terse phrases, the workings of a parachute.

"Wait 'til you're clear of the plane. Count slowly—one—two—three. Then yank the cord. Can't go wrong."

Dick's young face was earnest, his jaw set.

"D'you think we stand a chance of finding them?" he asked.

Lanier's face, too, was sober. "A chance," he said. "They got off when—after midnight?"

"Nearly daylight," Dick replied.

As Lanier himself fastened the pack to his shoulders, Dick wondered, rather incredulously, if it really was only six days since he had stood on this very spot and watched Felicia vanish into the night, on her dash to New York.

The motor was roaring; the plane's wheel bumped, bumped . . . and then the craft soared smoothly upward. Lanier headed toward Carson City, flying low above the long highway that stretches out from Reno. Their eyes strained downward over the patchwork of little truck gardens that edged the road, stretching green to the edges of the white desert beyond.

Then the city lay beneath them: Lanier swung about and they retraced their way, moving now above desert, where clumps of sagebrush huddled and where startled jack-rabbits halted in their flight to seek on the ground a secret of the roar they could not know came from the air. The outskirts of Reno; another turn, and back over mountains, where choppy air currents and queer pockets set the plane bumping and bucking. Jagged peaks, sharp ravines. . . .

Dick's hand clutched the pilot's shoulder. He trained his glasses on the skip of motion his eyes had caught within the maze of rocks and scrubby trees.

In the bright sunlight a man with white hair was painfully mounting the rocky slope, while a tiny figure in gaudy pajamas clung to his back, as close as the parachute strapped to Dick's own shoulders. Below—and how near their quarry they looked, seen from so far above—two squat figures followed, relentlessly.

Dick's eyes met Lanier's. He nodded.

Up . . . up . . . the plane climbed, circling as it went soaring above those two dark forms, like an avenging eagle. One of the men heard their roaring motor, saw them—but evidently thought the craft a mail plane, and went on without another upward glance.

Dick climbed from the cockpit, crawled precariously along the wing.

He glanced back at Lanier, grinned, and jumped—out and back.

Far below, sharp rocks, jagged and ferocious, rose swiftly toward him. Dick coming.

"One—two—three."

He yanked the cord.

CARTER and DAUGHTER, INC. A Novel Complete In One Week by Rupert Hughes

Polly Discovers a Love Triangle Requiring a Tactful Solution

CHAPTER I.

POLLY CARTER thought she knew everything—wasn't she going to graduate in a week? She thought she was afraid of nothing and had outgrown all such quaint things as illusions and reverences.

Her chief regret was that nothing ever seemed to shock her any more. In fact she was saying to her roommate, as they dressed hastily, yawning with boredom and with the early morning drowse of half-awakened girls:

"Life's an awful plate of hash—nothing but warmed-over stuff. Nothing stimulates me any more. I've outgrown shocking other people. There's no more fun in that. What is there any fun in?"

Meg looked her over and shook her head.

"You may be graduating at the foot of the class, old lady, but you haven't wasted your time entirely. You haven't learned much about the inside of the books, but I reckon you know about all there is that goes on outside the books. And when you were a Freshman, you simply didn't know nothin' about nothin'."

"How could I? You never saw the dear old home I came from—and I've got to return to it, Gawd help me. But you've met my fond parents—did you ever see such innocents? Older than Noah, and still Babes in the Woods. I think they still believe the world is flat—life certainly is, back home. Why, the darling old dubs love each other as much as they did the day they were married, and neither of them has ever even looked at anybody else."

"Cheer up, you may be wrong," said Meg. "You haven't been home for three months."

Polly was jarred. Apparently there were one or two things after all that she held sacred. She was tempted to rebuke Meg harshly, but contented herself with lifted eyebrows and ladylike rejoinder:

"Your brains are dirty, my dear. You must wash behind the ears oftener."

"Be that as it be," said Meg, "it's honest dirt. But just suppose now that you should go home and find that your poor mother—while deprived of the moral support of your highly sanitary, sterilized soul—"

"Care be ful, now! I have an idea you're hunting trouble."

"I was only going to ask, what would you do if you found that your mother had fallen violently in love with—"

"Do you want a jab right in the eye?"

"I can worry along without it."

"Then keep your serpent's tongue off my family, or I'll step on it."

"Oh, you needn't be so superhuman. I've had a mother and a father myself—three fathers, in fact."

"Three! You're boasting again."

"Well, I haven't got the third one yet, but he's on the way. That letter I had from my mother the other day and didn't hand you to read as per usual—"

"You don't have to tell me everything."

"The newspapers will tell you this any day now. Fact is, my mother is suing for divorce on the ground of desertion."

"Great heavens, my darling! Your mother abandoned. Oh, the poor thing!"

"Save your symp. for them as needs it. That abandoned woman does all her own abandoning. I've told you how she divorced my own original dad before she divorced me from the bottle, she married him, of course, as soon as it was legal, and—oh, Percy!—how she made my poor stepfather step! Now she wants a change—she's fanatically neat, my mother, and she's worn her second husband for 18 years—a darned long time in this vicinity, as the poet said of Miss McGinnity. So she's making my step-papa walk the plank. And she calls it desertion. Don't you love it? Oh, I tell you, my revered mother is a little hellcat, net. And there's thousands like her."

"Thousands, you think?"

"Millions! If it weren't for the high-stepping wives nine-tenths of the dance halls would be dark."

"My mother doesn't dance. I tried to make her, but I couldn't. Divorce? Why she thinks 'divorced' ought to be spelled with a dash like d—d. You couldn't shake her loose from her husband. And there's millions like her, too. I've always been hounding her to come in out of the lavender and old lace. But she never will."

"You can't always sometimes tell about these quiet ones. Remember what the geometry says: Still waters run deep; and the corollary is, deep waters run still."

Polly shot her an angry look, but merely murmured:

"Really, if I weren't a sweet girl graduate, I'd hand you a kick in the neck for your own good."

"Save it till after chapel, darling. And don't forget to write me when you get to your poor old home. I shall have three homes to visit now—a regular circuit."

Polly began to grow almost conceited over the distinction of having an old-fashioned family to go to. Some of the girls seemed to boast of the domestic wreckage going on over their heads. Others said nothing and left one to imagine anything. Brayport and the Carter household were dull, but they would be restful until Polly could make up her plans for the future. They were still vague except that she hoped to marry an aviator or a naval officer or somebody exciting. She still said her prayers and added to them every night:

"Dear Lord, don't let me fall in love with any home town man."

After the commencement exercises she said to Meg: "Well, the old fat faculty gave me my diploma after all. Imagine my embarrassment and my surprise."

"Imagine the faculty's relief, my dear," said Meg. "When they thought of having you in their midst for another year, they just couldn't bear it. But if all you tell me of Brayport is true, you can do a lot of missionary work there. The town has my symp."

As Polly's train drew into the station she flattened her nose against the windowpane to catch the first glimpse of her parents. They would be waiting for her on the platform, as always, always looking a bit bewildered, a trifle shabby, and so innocent that she wanted to mother them. She also planned to do a bit of reconstruction in their lives. They needed modernizing and refurnishing with a few recent ideas.

Her father was not with her mother. She hoped he was merely busy and not ill. Her mother was looking well—strangely well. As Polly hurried to the door of the car, she was a little troubled. There was something the matter with Mamma. What could it be?

A second glance showed her that the only thing the matter with Mamma was that there was nothing the matter with Mamma. She seemed a little more alert, erect, eager than Polly remembered, but that, of course, was to be expected of a mother welcoming her daughter home. Perhaps in fear of her daughter's arrival she had actually bought herself an up-to-date hat, a perky one, drawn down so low as to give her eyes a suggestion of mischief in ambush. Imagine mischief and Mamma under the same hat!

She had on a short skirt of course, but now it was short enough to show that she had as pretty legs as anyone. Polly had never noticed that. Even now it struck her as quaint that her mother should have legs, and pretty ones! Of course she had to have; yet it was shocking, sort of!

Before the train was quite stopped Polly swung off and fell on her mother's neck. She came away from the first warm kiss with a sniff and a gasp:

"What's that new perfume you're affecting, Miss Mrs?"

Her mother laughed: "Oh, it has some jawbreaking French name—oon bazeer oh creepuscool or something."

Polly was amazed to find that her college course had not been entirely in vain. She took immense pride in translating her mother's bad French:

"A Kiss in the Gloaming, eh? Why, mother, that means 'Just a bite at twilight'."

Her mother did not wilt, but laughed: "Does it? Don't you like it?"

"It's a swell smell, all right; but for a matron isn't it rather—er—exotic, don't you think? Or do you? Quite a change from Wood Violet, anyway."

"Oh, that old Wood Violet! Your father bought me my first bottle of that before we were married."

"Has his dear old nose tired of it?"

"He would never know it if I put on anything weaker than mustard gas."

"Speaking of dad, where is the boy. He isn't ill, is he?"

"No, no, but he had a luncheon at the Civic Reform Association. They're entertaining some big visitor from Kansas, and your father had to be there. He's the secretary now."

"Just imagine! That's very important, isn't it?"

"Oh, very. He's two other secretaries, too, for two other big associations. He's treasurer of another club. He's on the board of another. He's director of the Community Chest. He's on the city hospital board, and—oh, I don't know what all."

"Who does he think he is—Mussolini? Still, in these days, its fine to see a citizen so public-spirited."

"Yes, it's fine! Your father is a natural born secretary. He has nearly every hard-working, nonsalaried job there is. If anything can save this town, he'll save it."

It was just striking Polly that there was a trace of acid in her mother's tone, when she was attacked by a young man who once rushed her pretty heavily. He wrung her hand, welcomed her home and tried to date her up for a dance that very evening. But Polly did the decent thing:

"Thanks a lot, Bob, but I've got to play the prodigal and eat veal with the parents tonight."

Her mother protested, sacrificing herself as always.

"Now, honey, you run right along with Bob. Your father and I still play cards with the Kelths every Tuesday and Thursday evening. I told him to tell them not to come tonight, but he forgot, of course. He'd forget his head if it weren't glued on. You go with Bob and we'll have our visit later."

Walter Keith was her father's law partner and he had a wife so stupid that Polly called her Chloroform. Polly turned to Bob a rather piteous face. "Well, since I seem to be kicked off my own doorstep, I've no place to go but to the dogs!"

"Great! I'll call for you at seven. There'll be big doings."

It was good to be home but there was such a scurry getting Polly's dresses out of the trunks and pressed that when her father came in late from a conference she had to fling on a kimono for a hasty kiss. His old moustache gave her the familiar sensation of being hit in the mouth with a curry-comb. She said to her mother:

"How on earth do you stand Dad's barb-wire kisses?"

Her mother laughed curiously and mumbled:

"I don't get many of them any more."

Polly cast a sharp glance at her; she did not seem to be especially blue about the loss. Her mother dressed up that evening for her own visitors, and Polly was amazed at her loveliness. Had she forgotten it? or was it something new?—an Indian summer evocation? What on earth was the matter with Mamma?

Bob was on time and so was Polly and they dashed away to the dinner dance. Bob was impetuously joyous over her return and she could not quite crush him, though he nearly crushed her. Still, it was part of the day's work and it was dangerous to fight a man when he was driving a car.

The party turned out to be rowdier than Polly remembered Brayport parties to have been. The old town was apparently waking up, without her help. The punch was spiked, too, and it made her a bit dizzy; in fact, a trifle sickish. The dancing was hilarious and each round was a honeymoon as elsewhere, but Polly could not catch the spirit of it. Her spirit was willing, but her flesh was tortured by a pair of cruelly new slippers. They ceased at last to pinch and began to bite. She had to stop dancing and take one of them off. Her stocking was flecked with blood, and she showed her foot to Bob:

"Geeve a look once! I'm Cinderella's elder sister. I've got to limp home."

He took her away regretfully and proposed a little excursion into the moonlight, but she was afraid of her foot, and made him hurry her home. She had to console him somewhat in the car, of course—nothing important, just a kiss or two. He wanted to linger at the curb before the house, but she felt a tacit rebuke in the visible presence of her parents, who could be seen playing cards with their guests in the living room. The curtains were up as usual, to show the world that their pleasures were honest.

Bob pleaded with Polly to recompense him for a ruined evening by going to the theater the next night. She consented as a bribe for release from his clutches.

Hobbling up the steps, she let herself in with the key her mother had given her, took off her murderous slippers in the hall, stole past the living room unobserved and up the stairs to her own room, where she ministered to her wounded feet, stuffed them into bedroom slippers and lolled at her ease in her kimono over a book, a would-be wild story of mad modern youth. It was rated outrageously wicked by the critics, but Polly found it quaintly tame.

The punch she had had gave her a raging thirst. Her throat was a little Sahara. Downstairs in the pantry there was a new electric refrigerator with ice water always on tap. Polly sneaked down the back stairs to the kitchen and went softly to the swinging pantry door. It opened noiselessly, but she did not press it far, for she saw her mother bending to take from the refrigerator a plate of cold chicken and a basket of tomatoes. Behind her stood Walter Keith, his white hair looking like platinum wire, his old face curiously young. He was watching Mrs. Carter with eyes of veiled eagerness. As she straightened up and turned, he caught her about the waist and drew her into his arms.

To Polly's stupefaction, her mother did not cry out or struggle, but looked up with a smile of beatitude and whispered:

"Walter, be careful!"

All she seemed to mean was that he might make her drop a plate or spill a tomato! Polly noted how red the tomatoes were and the thought flashed through her startled soul that people had once called them "love-apples," and had believed them poisonous.

The Polly who had boasted that she could not be shocked, had come home to be struck by lightning.

She fell back into the kitchen, staring aghast at the swinging door; it seemed to palpitate slowly to rest, with little puffs of contemptuous breath.

MAY HEAR COAL POLICE CASE

The grand jury that will be asked to indict or discharge the three coal and iron police of the Pittsburgh Coal Company who are charged with murdering John Borkoski, the Tyre farmer-miner, was sworn in today for the March term by Judge James B. Drew, in Criminal Court.

"The law is superior to all of us," Judge Drew told the jury, "and you must be guided not by your personal feelings but by the law."

There was a slight possibility that the grand jury would hear some testimony today as to the three prisoners, Lieut. W. J. Lyster, M. P. Watts and Frank Slapakis. The coroner's record of testimony taken at the inquest was in shape to be presented and witnesses to the attack of Borkoski in the coal company's barracks were available.

Doctor Sends New Truss on Trial

No Money Down Required; No Cash Deposit; No C. O. D.

Kansas City, Mo. — (Special.) — Having invented a rupture appliance with no leg straps, no elastic belt, no cruel spring bands, no hard gouging pads, an unusual offer is now being made by the Hernia Specialist, Dr. Andrew Kaiser, 196-D Koch Building, 2906 Main street, Kansas City, Mo. Without a cent in advance, no cash deposit, no C. O. D., he will send his appliance for 30 days' trial. Hundreds of people, many with double rupture of long standing, have declared it brought them quick improvement and freedom from the hampering and discomfort of previous truss wearing. If ruptured, and wanting quick relief and improvement, make this test. If entirely pleased and satisfied after the 30 days' trial, pay its small price and keep the appliance. Otherwise, simply return it and owe nothing. Accept this offer by writing today. The coupon below will do.

A new kind of cake

Made from a Cook-Book Recipe

Cherry Square Cake

It has that "home-made" taste

because it's made as you would make it yourself—here's a way to prove it*

TODAY, you can serve your family real "Cook-Book" cake—without baking it. A cake that is actually made just as you would make it yourself. From a Cook-Book Recipe and home ingredients. We offer you proof here.

Luscious CHERRY SQUARE is a new 2-layer white cake. Rich with milk and whites of eggs. Iced with red, ripe cherries in thick butter-cream icing. Delicious—as only rich icing and plenty of cherries can make it.

We give you the exact recipe

To give this cake its "home made" taste we make it as you would. From a tested Cook-Book Recipe—followed to the letter. (Inside each wrapper you will find the exact recipe we use. All ingredients and measurements.) Make a CHERRY SQUARE CAKE yourself from this recipe, if you care to, and compare it with ours. You will then see that this is a real Cook-Book Cake—that it must be baked with purest milk, freshest eggs and butter, and the best grade of sugar, pastry flour and flavoring extract to taste so good.

This is true of all Grennan Cook-Book Cakes.

Try one at our risk

Your grocer now has CHERRY SQUARE CAKE. Try one. If you don't agree that it is perfectly delicious—and that it has a real "home-made" taste—return the unused portion and get your money back. We want you to do this. We will repay your grocer.

STOMACH TROUBLE QUICKLY ROUTED BY NEW KONJOLA

"Glorious Was the Relief Famous Medicine Gave Me After All Else Failed," Said Happy Man.

"What is there about this new medicine, Konjola, that makes it the most talked-of remedy in Pittsburgh and vicinity?" This question and many others are asked daily by men and women who have read or heard of the many amazing accomplishments of this super-remedy. Those who would find the answer to this question are urged to call, without delay, on the Konjola Man, who is at the Dow Drug Company (formerly McCulloch's), Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, and hear his personal explanation of the merits of Konjola. He will tell you why three carloads of Konjola were sold in Philadelphia in three weeks; why more than a million bottles of this master medicine were sold in the state in four months. There can be only one reason for this astounding success and that is that Konjola contains real MERIT; that it does all that is claimed for it. The results that Mr. E. D. McKnight, 931 Rumsey Street, Wilkinsburg, Pa., a short distance from Pittsburgh, obtained from a brief treatment, hold a world of hope and cheer for all who suffer. Mr. McKnight, radiant with new and glorious health, recently called on the Konjola Man, and said:

"Glorious was the relief this famous Konjola gave me after all other medicines and treatments failed. I expected some benefits from Konjola as it was so highly recommended, but I was hardly prepared for the remarkable manner in which it ended my ailments. My health slipped away from me when my stomach and liver became disordered and upset. Nervousness resulted; sound sleep was out of the question, and I always felt completely tired out. My work was drudgery; I was unfit to take care of it properly and was of no great benefit to my associates.

"I was skeptical about Konjola, for in fact, I had little faith in any medicines. I continued to get worse, and knowing that something had to be done, I decided to give this medicine a trial. It was so highly recommended that I somehow felt it might benefit me. But, as I said before, I was hardly prepared for the surprise the first few days of the treatment gave me. Konjola went right to work on my ailing organs, new strength and energy flowed through my system. Konjola cleansed and regulated my stomach and invigorated my liver, so that both ailments completely vanished. My nerves were calmed and quieted and sound sleep was restored to me. Today I can hardly realize that I ever suffered so much. Indeed, Konjola is the master medicine—it deserves all the praise it is receiving."

A rare case, you ask? Not at all, not a bit of it. The files of this medicine are fairly overflowing with the glad, happy indorsements of men and women made well by Konjola. This medicine presents an opportunity for gaining back your lost health—make up your mind today to find out for yourself about its exceptional merits.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Company (formerly McCulloch's), Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, this city, where he is meeting the public daily, introducing and explaining the merits of this master medicine.

FOUR CAPTURED IN TEAR BOMB RAID HELD

Charles "Sailor Jack" Bauer, 25, arrested with the aid of tear bombs Saturday in the attic of his mother's home, at 1438 Loraine street, North Side, was held for court on charges of highway robbery, robbery, larceny and a morality count by Magistrate A. D. Brandon in Morals Court today.

Bauer's wife, Marie, was held for the probation officer, charged with violation of parole. Margaret Schaffer, 19, was ordered placed in the Home of the Good Shepherd. The two women, with Bauer, were brought from a concealed room in the attic of the Loraine street house by fumes of two tear gas bombs thrown in by detectives.

Mrs. Anna Bauer, 40, the mother, was held for court, charged with keeping a disorderly house, interfering with an officer, harboring criminals and larceny. Arthur Lutz, 25, arrested when detectives raided the house, was fined $100 with an alternative of 60 days in the workhouse. John Bauer, 19, brother of "Sailor Jack," was discharged.

Harry Lewis, street car conductor, living in Lincoln Place, Mifflin Township, identified Charles Bauer as the "tuxedo attired" bandit who held him up at the point of a gun and took $76.

Mrs. Henrietta Gerling, of 846 Concord street; Mrs. Margaret Schwartz, of 23 Woodville avenue, West End, and Miles Rooney, of 1126 Chestnut street, also testified to thefts.

Stomach Troubles Are Due to Acidity

Tells of Pleasant Home Treatment to Bring Swift Relief.

So-called Stomach Troubles—indigestion, dyspepsia, gas, sourness, etc., are, in probably nine cases out of ten, evidence of "too much acid in the stomach," souring the food, causing the formation of gas and starting acid indigestion.

Gas distends the stomach and causes a full, oppressive burning feeling known as heartburn, while the acid irritates and inflames the delicate stomach lining. Get rid of Gas and Acidity, and you get rid of Indigestion.

To stop or prevent the sourness and gas, to neutralize the stomach acids and keep the stomach sweet and free from Indigestion, a teaspoonful or four tablets of Bisurated Magnesia should be taken in a little ter after eating or whenever gas, rness, pain or acidity is felt. a quickly sweetens the stomach, tralizes the acidity, stops the n and is harmless and inexpena to use. Bisurated Magnesia, powder or lets only, can be obtained from drug store and its daily use ps the stomach in fine condition, bling it to do its work without aid of artificial digestants.

150,000 BOYS AND GIRLS IN FLAG CONTEST

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

BY HAVEY J. BOYLE

WHAT night life there is in Pittsburgh is kept going by playboys from surrounding towns. The native Pittsburgher feels almost like a stranger in the haunts that serve ginger ale and cracked ice and entertain diners with a song and dance act, a Tuxedoed orchestra. The picture is always the same—a few gray-haired men who insist on dancing; a few girls with a tired look in their eyes that an artificial smile heightens rather than lessens; a few of the collegiate type who get that way on one or two swigs of gin, the least expensive of the whoopee ingredients. On many nights the number of men in the orchestra outnumbers the customers.

There are to be found, unusual places, off the beaten track and known only to the regulars. One such place is the liveliest joint in the neighborhood. The ceiling is low, the trimmings are sparse, and the lights are nothing to speak of. In a corner is a colored orchestra of three pieces, piano, drums and saxophone. The dancing floor is larger than is usually the case, and the crowds are bigger. There are two songbirds who walk around the floor singing the sentimental ballads of the day. The closing hour is fixed by the crowd. The joint stays open until the last customer is willing to leave. A part of the entertainment is furnished by a colored girl who sings what are known as whisper-lows.

It is there, my spy reports, that men and women who work hours that prevent attending the more conventional places of amusement, go for their relaxation and entertainment.

A man with two cauliflower ears guards the door and acts as official bouncer, when some of the boys get too obstreperous.

I can never put much zest into a write-up about such places. The few I have observed from time to time produce a vague melancholy. Not that I'm all for the higher things of life, but cabarets and such always appear here as places where Johns are separated from their money. I much prefer the shell game.

THERE are peculiar contrasts among the men who are in the rackets. There are the unscrupulous who fake all ways from the ace and there are others who operate their places as if they were to come up next month for a license.

One place, for instance, is a replica of the old order of things, except it is operated behind closed doors, instead of swinging ones. One of my scouts reports the following on this latter place:

The bartender is dressed immaculately in white apron and vest. He would count that day lost when he didn't get a trim and a shave. He doesn't drink. His glassware shines like silver and his immediate domain is spotless. He is of the old school, a conversationalist who is up on the subjects of the day. The trade has a prosperous air. Over-drinking is discouraged; a boy under 21 would be turned away from the door.

The man who runs that place has no more idea he is violating the law than has the man in the grocery business.

Those merchants of the downtown who have been contributing food to the down and outers who put up at Number One Police Station may be interested in the following statistics submitted by the head of the statistical division: Exactly 5,789 derelicts were fed during February. They drank 10 gallons of coffee, two quarts of milk and ate a half loaf of bread daily. A prize will be awarded (a cream puff 2¼x3½) to the first person who guesses correctly what the hungry fellows said when given half a loaf of bread.

EXTRA WEEK GIVEN FOR ENTRIES

WASHINGTON, March 4.—More than 150,000 boys and girls throughout the United States are competing for the trip around the world, the "patriotic pilgrimage" to America's historic shrines, and the other awards for the champions in the first annual flag contest of the U. S. Flag Association, it was announced by Col. James A. Moss, president general of the association.

Almost as many more boys and girls are being formed into contest units by schools and patriotic organizations in every state in the Union, and in order that these boys and girls may not be disappointed, Col. Moss said it had been decided to extend the date for contest units to enter from March 8 to March 15. Under this ruling schools and organizations wishing to conduct flag contests may do so by applying to the flag contest editor of the nearest Hearst newspaper not later than March 15, instead of March 8, thus giving a full week's extension of time.

GIVE ALL A CHANCE

"Although the number of contestants and contest units already received has exceeded our fondest expectations," said Col. Moss, "we want to make certain that every boy and girl in America who wishes to do so may have a chance to participate in this great educational and patriotic movement. We have heard from so many local organizations that have indicated their intentions to conduct flag contests that we want to give them all the time possible.

"Nearly 2,000 contest units have been organized throughout the country with more than 150,000 contestants. I feel perfectly safe in saying that never before in history has a movement of this character reached such proportions as this one has reached. Never have I known of a movement to be so universally commended. In the past few weeks I have traveled over most of the eastern half of the U. S. and I have heard nothing but praise for the aims and purposes of this project."

SERVICES AT CAPITOL

Col. Moss said that as soon as the inauguration ceremonies in Washington were over, officials at the capital would start making plans for the Vesper flag services to be held on the steps of the Capitol on the Sunday preceding Flag Day. The regional flag champions, sent to Washington by each sponsoring Hearst newspaper, will be guests of honor at these services. At the first Vesper flag service two years ago, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was awarded the Cross of Honor of the U. S. Flag Association, the same decoration that will be awarded the regional flag champions while they are in Washington.

At the Vesper flag services this year there will be displayed the largest flag in the world. This flag will be brought from Detroit, accompanied by a special guard of honor, and will be hung across the front of the Capitol building. In order to do this it will be necessary to build scaffolding on the roof of the Capitol, in order that this huge flag shall not touch the ground.

In commenting upon the change from March 8 to March 15 as the last day for entries, Col. Moss said he was particularly anxious that Girl Scouts and Campfire Girls be given every opportunity to enter the contest. National headquarters of both these organizations recently sent to their local units full information about the contest with a recommendation that local contest units be formed.

Similar action by national headquarters of the Boy Scouts has brought a tremendous response from the troops of that organization and thousands of its members have enrolled to compete for the awards.

CUT IN FIGHT, BLAMES SELF

"My wife's not to blame, I was drunk," Sylvester J. Albrecht, 34, of 48 Albert street, told Acting Sergt. John Clark in the Mt. Washington Police Station yesterday, after he had been cut on the left wrist and above the right eye with a butcher knife and hit on the head with a plate.

According to the police, Albrecht came home intoxicated, started to quarrel with his wife, Mrs. Mildred Albrecht, 30, and threatened to kill her. When he attempted to grab her, she hit him on the head with a plate. "I grabbed a butcher knife from the table," Albrecht told police, "and I was accidently cut when my wife tried to disarm me."

Albrecht was treated at the South Side Hospital and later lodged in the South Side Police Station on a charge of disorderly conduct. Mrs. Albrecht, arrested on the same charge, was released on a $30 cash forfeit for her appearance in Morals Court today.

DRUG EVIL VISIONED BY BELLEVUE MINISTER

The drug evil was branded "the most monstrous devil with which we have to cope," by the Rev. Dr. John B. Magee, of the Bellevue Methodist Episcopal Church last night in his sermon on "The Dope Devil."

His personal experience in investigating the effects of the drug habit were related by the speaker. Basing his remarks on a text from Hosea, "My people perish for lack of knowledge," Dr. Magee in part said:

"The American people are stumbling toward sorrow through the darkness of their own ignorance of the narcotic evil.

MONSTROUS EVIL

"Many think because De Quincy wrote so interestingly in his Confessions, and Coleridge could produce a Kublai Khan largely under the influence of opium that there is something truly valuable and not greatly harmful in opium. But Dope Devil is the most monstrous devil with which we have to cope among the habits of our race.

"One of its greatest crimes, is that the users are missionaries seeking to convert others to their society. Especially is this true of heroin. Young people who have their 'snow parties' are not satisfied without the presence of some new recruit.

GRIP UNBREAKABLE

"Once in the grip of this devil, almost nothing can break his hold. When we know that it costs the small peddler $50 an ounce and that he sells it at the rate of $500 and that there are probably 1,200,000 users at least in the United States, we see what it costs, especially when we remember that most of the 'dope addicts' do not earn the money they spend for it.

"International agreements to choke the traffic at its source; a concentrated attack upon the peddlers with extreme penalty; the treatment of the victim as a hospital case and insane, rather than driving them from city to city by warning laws; education through the school, church and other public institutions; and finally religion, are the only cures, if any."

CODE DRAFTED NEW EMSWORTH

A building and plumbing code drafted by A. R. Robinson, building Inspector of Emsworth, will be introduced at the regular meeting of the Borough Council Thursday night.

LACKS ENGLISH, ARTIST IN WANT

Although Jose Borjas, a Mexican, is a master craftsman in art wood carving and an expert carpenter, and his wife an art needle worker of rare ability, they and their three children are living in the most abject poverty. This, because the head of the family has been unable to secure employment by reason of his inability to speak English. For months they have been dependent upon charity for the necessities of life, a most revolting situation for Borjas, who is eager to work and capable to do the most delicate piece of carpenter work.

Father Lawless has taken an interest in the Mexican family and is making every effort to secure employment for the head of the family.

Borjas' wife is an adept at fancy art needle work. Her articles, if sold at an art needle work shop, would bring high prices. But, then she does not speak English and is too timid to offer her wares to dealers. Two of their children, Ramon, 16, and Esther, 15, are attending Knox School. Guadelupe, 5, the youngest child, stays at home.

Will Rogers Says

NEW YORK, March 4.

I thought when we read that Mexico had ordered the pictures of the Lindbergh accident destroyed, they did one of the nicest things that was ever done. But leave it to us to steal out some and go to any expense and means to get them before the public.

Mexico knew what harm it would do aviation. And they also didn't want to see such a hero's picture with a smashed plane. We all know he would much rather have not had them used.

If the newspapers ever owed anybody in the world anything, they owe it to that boy. He has furnished them with the only hundred per cent clean topic they have had in two years.

Yours, WILL.

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

"Gentlemen Prefer Curves"

STYLES in ladies have changed again. Lissome, pineapple-and-lamb-chop beauties must pass into the back row of the chorus and give all the limelight to milk-and-honey-and-baker-potato partridges.

Skirts and bodices will be full, once more—and they've got to be full of something besides ruffles!

Poor, unhappy man, who was just getting to like the rag-and-a-bone-and-a-hank-of-bobbed-hair girl must readjust his optic nerves, his ideals and his imagination and learn to "prefer partridges." No wonder so many men suffer from astigmatism! It's the constant change of focus, from looking at women.

But it won't be half so hard as you might think for a man to learn to love plump and buxom girls, after all these years spent in cultivating a superficial taste for the animated bone.

Men have always had a subconscious weakness for feminine curves, AND softness. And roundness. Because curves and roundness and softness are feminine!

The Oriental, who follows his natural bent and does not allow his women to dictate his preference, fattens his wives and daughters to suit his taste. There is not a rubber girdle to be found in all his harem! And a hipless houri would be a positive anomaly!

The savage, too, likes his ladies to match the over-stuffed furniture. Pulchritude and avoirdupois are synonymous with him. And, in all history, from Venus down to Pompadour there has never been an actually BONY siren.

It is going to be a little hard for some women who have grown used to the spinach-and-lettuce diet, to revive a dead desire for creamed potatoes, sliced bacon and buttered muffins. But for most of us, it is a grand and glorious feeling! To know that once more we may sip a caramel sundae without risking a man's love! That cream in our coffee does not mean we are taking the first step toward divorce! Ah, sweet dispensation! Divine relief!

The hollow mockery of the reducing diet, for most women, was that it ALWAYS reduced them in the wrong place. It robbed them of their calves and their dimples and left hollows and furrows in their cheeks, which made them look like starving war children. But the hips clung persistently, and had to be rolled and banted off.

Oh, well! It's all over now—and we can go gleefully back to the full dinner pail and the joyous days when men were men—and women were butter balls!

We can be lazy and good-natured, and inert—and beloved! We can take our beauty naps and loll around eating chocolates until we choke.

Because the peppy, snappy mettlesome high-strung ninety-pound neurotic may be the girl men can't forget. But the placid, sweet-tempered, well-nourished, rococo house pet is the girl they MARRY!

Gentlemen, prefer CURVES—whether they know it or not!

Yesterday and Today -:- By Madge Geyer

YES, "the world moves!" And nowhere is the change so apparent as in the girls. Yesterday they were quaint and shy and demure and scared to death if so much as the tiniest bit of ankle showed beneath the frilly skirt. And now look at them!

Yesterday they were scared to death of everything. And love to them was something that met with everybody's approval and gave them a home of their own. Not so today! Love today meets the approval of the two chiefly concerned and what's their affair is no one else's business! Miss Today cheerfully helps "her man" through everything, instead of sitting down and bemoaning her hard lot. There's a lot of difference between Miss Seventeen of a century back and Miss Seventeen of today. And frankly, Miss Seventeen of today is my choice. How about you?

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Right Living and Thinking Needed for Universal Health.

IF you were called upon to define civilization and to give your ideas of what constitutes civilization, what would you say?

The dictionary says that civilization is "a state of social culture characterized by relative progress in the arts, science and statecraft." This definition would surely be called "high-brow" by most of us—wouldn't it?

DR. COPELAND

Well, anyhow, we need not worry over what Webster says about civilization. I'm going to give you a better definition. That is, I'm going to recite to you what a writer says about it. Let me quote:

"Civilization is a rather difficult term to define, but generally speaking, it represents the condition of an orderly society in which the objectives, ministering to health and happiness, are within the reach of practically the entire population."

Then, to make sure he is understood, the writer continues: "A civilized government is primarily concerned with the prosperity of the people and its best maintenance under given conditions of health and physical efficiency."

These are the words of a great man—Dr. Frederick L. Hoffman, the statistician of one of the largest insurance companies. Everything Dr. Hoffman says is worthy of study and confidence.

The Doctor has just written a book entitled, "Some Problems of Longevity." He points out the importance of developing, early in life, a sound philosophy of right living and right thinking. Then, as a matter of course, the life will be governed in such a way that long life is the natural result.

But we were talking about civilization: I have long preached the doctrine that the purpose of government is to serve humanity. It is not serving humanity unless it does everything a government should do to promote the health and welfare of all its citizens. When it does do this, then, as I view it, it is a civilized government, and its happy citizens are living under the high standards proclaimed by Dr. Hoffman.

But, until health and happiness are, as he says, within the reach of practically the entire population, we are not fully civilized. It is our duty as citizens to do all we can to arrive at this ideal condition.

After all, however, to have national health is not entirely a governmental function. We must do our part as units of a society that cannot be perfect physically until all its units possess health.

Health is not a personal matter alone. Disease of the individual brings hardships and sacrifices, unhappiness and misery, to family and friends and harm to the economic world.

We cannot have universal health until every member of society has developed a sound philosophy of right living and right thinking. It cannot be considered a sound philosophy until every citizen in his personal life lives up to his ideals.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Tuesday, March 5

AGAIN conflicting astral forces dominate the affairs of the day. While the splendid position of Jupiter trined by Luna should increase the substance and enhance the opportunities for attaining the ambitions, yet an unforseen situation of inimical character may crop up to undermine the fondest hopes. This situation is rather devastating and uprooting and should be handled with great caution. It may mean personal danger or accident.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of a certain prospect of fulfilled ambitions, with promotion and advancement and increase of means, but an event of unexpected menace may be precipitated. It would be wise to be conservative and guarded, especially as to personal safety and property.

A child born on this day may be talented and ambitious, but may be subject to sudden visitations in life of a revolutionary nature.

LOVE'S AWAKENING

A Continuation of Love's Embers

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge's First Move to Solve Blackmailing Plot Is Interrupted.

HARRY UNDERWOOD looked down at me quizzically when I asked him to get a look, if possible, at the letter which I was sure Mary meant to post at Riverhead.

"That's a large order, Little One," he said. "If you wanted me to frisk a burglar now, or trail a counterfeiter, I might be able to tackle the job with some promise of success. But to lamp a note that a girl wants to keep secret!—I'll do my best, but don't bank on me."

That he was really pessimistic, I saw, and the knowledge only increased my determination to look at the ink-stained blotter Mary had replaced with a new one. But, with speeding the departing motorists and listening to a dissertation from Mother Graham on the dishonesty of modern business as instanced by the supposedly faulty spring of the new motor car, it was fully 10 minutes after Mary's departure that I went into her room.

The new blotter, with not a trace of ink upon its freshness, was fitted into her desk pad. She must have written her letter before she spilled the ink. I turned to the waste basket and saw as I expected the crumpled pieces of the old blotter, together with neatly clipped strips from the new one which she had cut to fit her pad.

I stood irresolute for a few seconds trying to estimate the time I had spent in Marion's room during which Mary had said she was writing a letter. Surely Mary had had time to write but the briefest of notes in the interval between her going to her room and her coming to me with the request for the new blotter. But she would not need a long letter to this mysterious "Janet Rawdon" to whom she was checking most of her allowance each week. The preliminaries attending such a transaction no doubt had been attended to long before, and Mary probably was only addresing an envelope with check enclosed—if my suspicions were correct.

I moved to the door to lock it in order that I might be undisturbed while examining the torn blotter. But with my hand on the key I heard Junior's voice calling insistently "Mother!" and forgetting everything else I dashed down the hall to the room where my small son was convalescing from his fall out of the apple tree.

"Convalescing" was altogether too dignified a word for his condition. I decided as I entered the room and saw him seated in front of a small table vigorously attacking his breakfast. Indeed I knew most boys as well as Junior appeared would be considered cured and left to their own devices. But Katherine was taking no chances after the slight concussion he had suffered, and was keeping him as quiet as possible.

"I thought I heard you walking down the hall," my small son told me reproachfully, "and I called two or three times before you answered."

"I came the first time I heard you," I told him while his arms went tightly around my neck for his morning kiss. "How does my boy feel this morning?"

"Just bully—thank you," the last words patently an afterthought. "Aunt Katherine says I may go downstairs on the veranda most of the day today if I'm quiet and tomorrow I can take a ride in the new car. Isn't it spiffy, Mother? You know Dad carried me downstairs last night to see it."

"Who's talking about me" Dicky asked from the doorway, and as soon as I could get away I left my small son with his father and went back to Mary's room to find Katie in possession with all her cleaning day paraphernalia around her.

"Have you changed your cleaning day for this floor, Katie?" I asked her in astonishment.

"No, I no change me," Katie answered, her head lifted a bit defiantly, "but dose girls all time in rooms shoost ven I vant clean. Me, I tink today goot time to clean vile dey gone Riverhead."

In painting a chamber floor, if the baseboards are painted the same color as the floor, there will be no danger of soiling the baseboard when the floor is being cleaned.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Handkerchiefs for Men

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Do men wear handpainted kerchiefs for afternoon wear? I've painted many handkerchiefs for girls, and am wondering should paint one for a man friend? He appreciates my painting and always praises me.

PAINT.

Dear lady, I'm afraid that we can't allow you to paint a handkerchief for your man friend. Men's handkerchiefs are plain, or should be, and he would be embarrassed by a "fussy" handkerchief.

Matron's Signature

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

My mother and I have had an argument about signing an excuse for her daughter for being absent from school. We read a letter published by you stating that it is correct for her to sign her name Mary Davis Brown. My mother thinks that is the proper way if she is a widow. Is it also correct if her husband is living?

PUZZLED.

YES. The signatures of a married woman and a widow are exactly the same. She signs Mary Davis Brown, and then, if she wishes, writes her formal name under this, in parenthesis (Mrs. Henry Brown).

After the Dance

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

In a ballroom what is the correct thing to say when a young man thanks you for the dance? My girl friend and I have had many disputes over this question.

C. P.

SOMETHING that indicates that you enjoyed the dance—"It was a delightful dance," or "I enjoyed the dance so much," or "You are a glorious dancer, and I enjoyed so much dancing with you."

This Woman's Job is to try to ruin fine things

This New Way of Fadeless, Quicker Washing

A New Discovery That Ends Ruining Fine Things Even Under Most Frequent Washings—And Cuts Washing Time of Clothes and Dishes ONE-HALF or More

NEW light has been thrown on saving fine fabrics from ruin and fade, and fine china from dishpan wear, that often saves the average family hundreds of dollars yearly, and the housewife countless heartaches.

A fadeless way of heavy washing has been found. A way that makes any water (regardless how "hard" it may be) and ordinary household soap into a perfect NO-FADE cleanser.

Fine lingerie is washed 50 times or more—without noticeable fade. Expensive hosiery saved from fade and wear almost unbelievably. And results proved before this new way goes to you.

What It Is

It is a preparation called Climalene that you add to your washing water. Just a tablespoon or two.

Instantly, it takes all the harshness out of that water. Makes it soft as Rain-Water. So soft that it does the work with ONE-FOURTH the soap you use now. And thus ends danger of "soap eat" to fragile things.

At the same time, due to certain bland cleaning agents, it instantly DISSOLVES all dirt, stains and grime. And thus cuts washing time, too—in machine or on board—ONE-HALF or more.

10¢ packages (12 oz.)

CLIMALENE

Use any kind of soap or soap flakes—the same soap you ordinarily do. Some 2 million women now are using it—for washing, for cleaning and in the dishpan.

Laboratory Proved

To assure results to you, we buy fine things; lingerie and delicate fabrics. Then by repeated washings, try to spoil or fade them.

We wash delicate lingerie, often 50 times—without perceptible fade. Children's rompers, 60 to 90 times. That's over a year's home washing. We wash gold-encrusted china hundreds of times—without a trace of gold gone. And thus prove the blandness of this way.

Consider, please, what those things mean to you. Consider, too, that the minute you put Climalene into water, all harshness is taken away—your hands protected from roughness, made soft and smoothly white. Then try it.

Remember the name—Climalene. Your grocer has it in 10c and 25c packages.

FIGHT FOR DOPE INQUIRY TO BE RENEWED

WASHINGTON, March 4.—"We have not yet begun to fight."

Paraphrasing John Paul Jones' immortal words, Senate and House leaders have announced that efforts would be renewed in the special session, starting a month hence, to have Congress investigate the perils of the dope traffic.

Authorization of an inquiry at this session, which dies at noon today, was blocked by objections of Representative Snell, Republican, of New York, chairman of the House rules committee. He exerted his influence to prevent the House voting on the LaGuardia-Wheeler joint resolution. The Senate unanimously indorsed the project, with Vice-President-elect Curtis and Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, Democratic chief, leading the fight.

KING DISAPPOINTED

"I am disappointed that the investigation of this diabolical and serious problem was not authorized now," said Senator King, Democrat, of Utah, who drafted the favorable report on the resolution for the Senate Judiciary Committee.

"In slightly more than a month the Congress will return in special session. I feel confident the inquiry will be authorized then.

"I am sure I speak the opinion of the Senate when I say it is the plain duty of Congress to take the most drastic steps to curb this evil which is threatening the social and economic welfare of the nation."

If Snell remains obdurate, it was indicated in senatorial circles that a demand be made for an investigation by the Senate alone. Belief was expressed that such a proposal would be enthusiastically approved, inasmuch as the Senate already is on record for the probe.

PORTER PLANS ACTION

Senator Wheeler, Democrat, of Montana, and Representative LaGuardia, Republican, of New York, authors of the resolution, promised they would join the new effort in April to secure an investigation. Other senators and representatives pledged their support again.

"It is time the country should arm itself to break up the piratical traffic in drugs," said Wheeler.

From another angle, Representative Porter, Republican, of Pennsylvania, chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, will attack the drug menace in the Congress. He will seek action on his resolution calling upon the President to send protests to European nations which are not living up to the terms of the 1912 Hague opium convention to suppress the international traffic. He was chairman of the American delegation which withdrew from the 1925 Geneva opium conference because the powers declined to adopt effective measures of control over production and manufacture of dangerous drugs.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Wedding and Ball Only Social Events Listed For This Month

THESE March days already are giving me a sympathetic understanding of the sorrows of the ancient mariner who cried out against his fate, as every school boy and girl knows, that there was water, water everywhere, but not a drop to drink. When I happen to hear of all the fascinating mid-winter assemblies and costume balls and belated debutante parties being given in the big eastern cities, and then turn to the spinsterishly empty pages of my calendar for March, I despair.

With the exception of Craigie McKay's wedding on Thursday and the Aero Club ball on March 15, there'll be abstinence from social activity in Pittsburgh, I'm afraid, until Easter on March 31 brinks us spring, and the end of Lent, and the return of our migratory folks.

From time to time we hear of the social life led by society folks who've deserted the city for Florida or some other land noted for winter resorts.

DOWN at Nassau in the Bahamas, society has assumed a cosmopolitan tone with all the countries of Europe and all the states, for that matter, represented by its guests. Brilliant entertainments are the vogue there. At the exclusive New Colonial Friday was set aside as gala night with gay-hued balloons and lanterns used in decorating.

Among those entertaining was Mrs. John Woodwell, of Pittsburgh. And among her guests were the T. Howe Nimicks and Dr. and Mrs. Ogden M. Edwards.

I'VE just heard of an entertainment being planned in honor of two folks who had a winter wedding. You remember, don't you, the marriage of Ruth McCauley to Bradway Brown, son of the Charles Thomas Browns, of Moorestown, New Jersey?

His father and mother are planning a garden party, to be followed by a dinner, which they'll give on June 21 for their debutante daughter, Helen, and the young Browns.

OF course we always have news from our travelers. From now on most of such news will concern returns instead of departures, now that spring is drawing near.

The first of April will see the return of the junior Harry Darlingtons and their young sons. Just now they're in Havana, did you know?

THE inauguration today is attracting many to Washington. Mrs. James Lyall Stuart and her daughter, Emily, who was a bud of this season, are there with Mr. Stuart. Another debutante who'll see the inauguration is Jane Edson, who's in Washington with her mother, Mrs. John Joy Edson.

DOWN at Palm Beach recitals are weekly events. Most of these musical events are in the evening, but Rafaelo Diaz, tenor, will sing Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Edward F. Hutton, a former Pittsburgh woman, who now lives in New York. Among the prominent women assisting Mrs. Hutton will be Mrs. William Thaw III and Mrs. Henry R. Rea.

THE Woman's City Club decided to emulate the example of Palm Beach women, and sponsored a recital Saturday night, one of the few notable social events of the Lenten season. Ganna Walska was the artist.

The William Penn Hotel ballroom was transformed, may one say, into a modernistic golden horseshoe? And before the concert were many dinners and before the dinners were luncheons.

Among the dinners was one given by Mrs. Ambrose Nevin Diehl, general chairman of the event, in the William Penn Hotel. Her guests included the artist and her husband, Harold F. McCormick, of Chicago.

To return to the concert, I must mention the attractive ushers, who are all members of the younger set. Geraldine West, chairman of the ushers, wore green crepe, and one of her aides, her sister Helen, a bud of this winter, was charming in black net, embroidered in gold. Another bud Katherine Schley, appeared in woodland violet chiffon, and Anne Keating in blue chiffon. Chartreuse green net over crepe of the same shade fashioned the attractive gown worn by Harriet Wainwright, another debutante.

I might mention, too, that Mrs. E. N. Calhoun, chairman of boxes, wore a simple, but distinctive gown of black velvet; Mrs. Clarke Hammond, vice chairman, blue satin; Mrs. Edward Vose Babcock, orchid georgette, and Mrs. William Watson Smith, black georgette and rhinestones.

THE marriage of Miss Lona May Buckley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy L. Buckley, of South avenue, Wilkinsburg, and Maurice Harrold, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Harrold, of Austin, Tex., was solemnized Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the Waverly Presbyterian Church by the Rev. T. C. Pears. The bride wore white crepe with a tulle veil and carried white roses showered with lilies of the valley. Her maid of honor, Miss Jean White, wore green crepe with a hat to match, and the bridesmaids were Miss Hazel Rhodes, wearing orchid crepe, and Mrs. Robert Kober, in peach crepe. They wore hats to match their frocks and carried spring flowers. Louise Highberger was flower girl, wearing a frock of pink georgette and carrying a basket of blossoms. Kenneth Hamblin was best man and the ushers included Robert Kober and Ernest Sampson. A reception in the Buckley home followed the ceremony. After an Eastren trip, Mr. and Mrs. Harrold will be at home in Hamilton, O.

MR. AND MRS. EDWARD J. SCHELLENBERGER, of the Schenley Apartments, are at the Mayflower Hotel, Washington, D. C., and are attending the inauguration today. After the ceremonies they will leave for the South, stopping at Newport News, Asheville, Pinehurst and Miami.

MISS MARGARET MENK will leave Thursday night for Orlando, Fla., to join her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Menk, of Club drive, Brentwood, who have been in the South since December, spending some time in St. Petersburg, Palm Beach and Miami. Before returning to Pittsburgh in April, they will stop for a few days at Sweet Briar College, in Virginia.

Greene County Debt Reduced $100,000

WAYNESBURG, Pa., March 4.—Greene County's bonded indebtedness was reduced one hundred thousand dollars Saturday, when bonds to this amount were retired by order of the county commissioners. The bonds were held by a Pittsburgh banking firm.

21 Criminal Cases On Greene Docket

WAYNESBURG, Pa., March 4.—With but 21 cases listed for trial, the March term of Greene County Criminal Court will open tomorrow. Although plans have been made for a two weeks' session, it is likely the trials will be completed in one week.

Youth Is Arrested In Attack on Sheriff

WAYNESBURG, Pa., March 4.—Elmus Brown, 17, alleged to have figured in an attack upon Sheriff Arno S. McClellan, on May 12, 1928, at Penn Pitt, where the officer had gone to arrest him and William Clark on charges of robbery, was arrested late Saturday at Enterprise, W. Va., and was returned to the county jail here. Brown and Clark were wanted on a charge of robbing and beating Daniel Parker, at the home of William Auvil, Penn Pitt, Sheriff McClellan was beaten unconscious with clubs. Auvil is serving a term in the Huntington Reform School.

Two Women Injured As Car Skids, Upsets

WHEELING, W. Va., March 4.—(AP.)—Two women were injured and their husbands, Corporal Alec C. Grey and Private L. V. West, aviation mechanics at the Army Air Field, Uniontown, were shaken up when an automobilee, driven by Grey, skidded and overturned on the National highway, near West Alexander, Pa. The party was en route to Moundsville.

Mrs. Wm. J. Cook of 940½ Virginia Ave., S. W., Washington, D. C. found it a great trial to have two children coughing at the same time. Then she found REM—and tells why she wouldn't be without it now!

Two coughs too many

—until she gave the children REM

"My two children, Joseph and Margaret, are subject to bronchial coughs," says Mrs. Cook. "They had severe ones that started early in the winter, and it's troublesome to a mother to have two children coughing in the house. I was in Herbert's Drug Store, at 10th & Virginia, S. W., and told him about the children's coughs. He sold me a bottle of REM and I'm glad he did. It gave them wonderful relief. Since then I've used nothing else for coughs. I wouldn't be without REM, for it's the only thing that gave Joseph any relief at all."

Youngsters quickly find out that REM doesn't taste bad. Mothers quickly find out it's a mighty good cough medicine.

SCREEN COMEDIENNE LAUGHS HERSELF OUT OF PICTURE JOB

By DOROTHY HERZOG

(Copyright, 1929, Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, March 4.

GOODNESS!

A certain casting director sent for Gertrude Short, W. K. Flicker comedienne. He gave her to understand, in his splashy accent, that her reputation preceded her and he heard she was a good emoter. Gertie took this big. On the next breath, the C. D. leaned toward her and unexpectedly shouted:

"Show me 'fraid face!!!"

Miss Short's eyes bulged. She burst out laughing. Some one else, it is to be expected, showed the amazing C. D. A. "fraid face" and landed the job. Ah, the quaint cinema. . . .

Bridge Climax To Turkish Bath

VIOLA DANA is landlady of a charming Beverly Hills home. Half the garage is leased to Dolores Costello. The other half to Jack Conway. PRISCILLA DEAN'S mother had the daylights scared outta her when she returned to her apartment 'tother eve and discovered an unscrupulous soul had walked off with all her clothes! . . . Six more hours in the air and BEBE DANIELS will be a full fledged pilot. That being true, what was Bebe doing at the chiropodist last noon? . . . MYRNA KENNEDY, Edythe ("Mickey") Flynn, Florence Dudley, and another fem—all of the "Broadway" cast—spent the night recently in a Turkish bath. The four played bridge after being boiled, with Myrna and Mickey winning the stupendous sum of 77 cents. . . . BESS MEREDYTH, W. K. Skinarist, has gone in for featherweight housekeeping at the Roosevelt hostelry. . . . And now they tell me that Richard Dix is here to make a picture.

Ruth's Ambition Is Bus Riding

A telegram from HERBERT BRENON'S office requests a suggestion from me as to who could enact the name part in Herbert's next flicker, "Lummox." Shucks, if my boss even suspected me of having an idea he'd fire me. But why not BELLE BENNETT, Mr. Brenon? . . . RENEE ADOREE has the most infectious chortle of any fem in Hollywood. . . . RUTH ELDER admits of a terrible yen. She craves to ride atop a bus, never having indulged in that kind of sport before. Wonder if the height will make Ruth dizzy! . . . MRS. BILLY SUNDAY, wife of W. K. Evangelist, is en route to Hollywood to visit her two sons. . . . NORMAN KERRY and Buster Collier espied spinning down Sunset blvd., ha-haing about something or other. . . . Somebody asked PAULINE GARON if she had married again and Polly snapped back with: "I don't commit bigamy." She suggested this be used so here 'tis. She and Lowell Sherman are divorced, but the final decree doesn't come through for months yet. . . .

Marion Writes Another Letter

A MESSENGER boy delivered another enveloped wallop this noon from Marion Davies. Miss Davies takes issue with yesterday's answer to her initial communication. Her letter follows:

"My dear Miss Herzog:

"If I couldn't act any better than you can write, I'd retire from the motion picture business tomorrow.

"MARION DAVIES."

To which I hasten to reply:

"My Dear Miss Davies:

"Have you handed in your resignation yet? I would like to know immediately so I can broadcast it to a long suffering public.

"DOROTHY HERZOG."

If you know that Clara Bow gave Hollywood the slip and chugged away to New York, skip this paragraph. She has been gone almost two weeks. Clara wanted to keep her vacational destination secret. Reason: She craved a hoop-de-da time minus stellar complications. And from what can be gleaned the flow gal is having just that in the lil' town of Manhattan. She hits West shortly, however, to begin work in her next outfond, a circus yarn yclept "Pink Tights."

Ere leaving town, Clara got rid of the honey bear for which she plunked out a $750 check. She couldn't find a customer to purchase the dern critter—even though she advertised in the classified ad pages! So she presented the bear to her cook and fired the cook! Good riddance. . . .

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

New Hot Cereal Supplies Needed Vitamin of Sunshine

Steenbock process of irradiation by Ultra-Violet Rays puts new health qualities into Quaker Farina

If children could always dress like this, danger of "sun starvation" would be much less.

WHAT is the vital effect of sunshine that promotes health? That insures children's bones developing properly; makes their teeth hard and strong?

Only recently physicians have found out. They have named it Vitamin "D," the sunshine vitamin. And now Professor Harry Steenbock distinguished scientist, has made a new discovery. He has learned that this sun vitamin can be passed on to you by irradiating Quaker Farina, a famous hot breakfast food, with Ultra-Violet Light.

A tremendous discovery this. For the sunshine vitamin may truthfully be called a "key" to good health. This vitamin enables the body to make use of the lime in milk and other foods.

Children's bones and teeth are made of lime. When the child gets plenty of sunshine, the lime in foods is rapidly fused into bone and muscle. The child flourishes, grows normally, has a good appetite. Leg bones are straight, teeth form naturally and grow hard and strong.

Let this "sunshine vitamin" be lacking, and the child is apt to be flabby and weak. Bow legs, poor teeth, are common symptoms. The child has no appetite, catches cold easily, is nervous and irritable.

Don't think that "sunshine starvation" is uncommon. As high as 90% of children in northern cities suffer, say health authorities. Gray skies, even clothing, prevent the sun's ultra-violet rays from reaching the skin.

Thus doctors hail this new source of "sunshine vitamin," for they've searched for years for easy ways of adding it to the normal diet.

Quaker Farina, famous hot breakfast food, made of the creamy white heart of the wheat, has been given the sunshine vitamin through irradiation by Ultra-Violet Light under the Steenbock Process. You can buy a package today—at your grocer's.

Why not start feeding it to your children? Quaker Farina is known and recommended by physicians for its nutriment. Babies are given it as their first solid food. Of fine flavor, easy and quick to digest, it makes an ideal hot breakfast for the whole family. And now, with the sunshine vitamin added, there is no other hot cereal in the world like it! Irradiating does not change taste or appearance. And the price is the same as before! Note: All Quaker Farina is irradiated although some packages are not so marked.

New Pirate Catcher---Potential Infield---Shoeing for Action

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

Old Mates Laud Petty. See Gain for Pirates. Collins Rivaling Cobb. | Another French Champ. Maloney's Come-Back. Horse-Training Skill.

ROBINS RATE BUCS POWERFUL CLUB

WHILE they are glad to have Glenn Wright in their lineup and are confident that the former Pirate shortstop is going to help them, members of the Brooklyn club regret the loss of Pitcher Jess Petty.

Jim Elliott

During a discussion of the winter trade at the Robins' training camp in Clearwater, Fla., Catcher Hank DeBerry, Pitchers Jim Elliott, Rube Ehrhardt and others expressed the opinion that the addition of Petty has given Pittsburgh one of the best pitching staffs in the major leagues and that the Pirate entry in the National League pennant race is one to be feared.

"There isn't a doubt in my mind that Petty will add a great deal of strength to the Pirates," said Jumbo Jim Elliott, himself a left-hand flinger, who has made Petty his model since he came into the big leagues. "Those Buccaneers sure look formidable. We should play some interesting games with them. In the first game we'll get Burleigh Grimes, and next day we'll have Jess throwing at us. Boy, won't he be bearing down out there? Guess we'll have to try cooling him off by sending Dazzy Vance against him as often as possible."

"YES," interrupted Rube Ehrhardt, "and when we get through with Grimes and Petty, we'll run into Kremer and Fussell, and maybe Hill and Swetonic. They're all pretty good pitchers, I'll say. I think the Pirates' staff is one of the best in either of the major leagues. Unless a couple of those boys get hurt, Donie Bush will have plenty of fine pitchers to help out his fielders and hitters. And they're good fielders and hitters."

"There can be no denying that we lost a good pitcher when Petty went to Pittsburgh," DeBerry put in. "He's about the best left-hander in our league. Yet, we have acquired a wonderful player in Wright. I think his presence in our batting order every day will make us a stronger team than we were last year. There's nothing the matter with Wright's fielding, and everybody knows he can hit, and hitters are what we need to carry our pitchers along."

DON'T overlook Edward Trowbridge Collins when you're talking about remarkable baseball veterans. Eddie will be 42 years old next May 2, but he's as full of pep and energy as any youngster in the Athletics' camp at Fort Myers, Fla.

Collins, though no longer a regular, is still able to serve in utility roles, and by reason of that fact he has a chance to approach, equal, or perhaps surpass the standing record for playing durability.

Eddie Collins

FOR this season will be the twenty-third in a row for Eddie in the majors, and if he can keep going next year he will equal Ty Cobb's record of 24 consecutive campaigns. "I guess my regular playing days are over, and I would not dare to attempt to play day in and day out on the infield," said Collins, in denying a rumor that he would try to play second base regularly in place of Max Bishop, who is a holdout. "But I'll be an active player this year, for all that, ready to swing a bat in a pinch or fill in on the infield if Connie Mack needs me for an occasional inning or two. I want to do enough playing this year to get my name in the records. In rounding out 23 seasons in the majors I am the veteran of the big leagues, I think, now that Ty Cobb has retired. I may even be on the active list in 1930 and equal Cobb's record of 24 years."

ONE of the disputed world fistic championships appears to have been straightened out convincingly by Emile (Spider) Pladner's one-round knockout victory over Frankie Genaro in Paris last Saturday night. As he previously defeated Corporal Izzy Schwartz and Johnny Hill, Pladner now holds triumphs over all three of the other flyweight title claimants and seems to have left no room for further argument as to who is the real king of the 112-pounders.

This is the fourth world ring championship that France has held within the last seven years. Georges Carpentier led the light heavyweight class until Battling Siki defeated him in 1922. In the following year Eugene Criqui snatched the featherweight crown from Johnny Kilbane, only to lose it less than two months later to Johnny Dundee.

LAST September Andre Routis became featherweight champion by defeating Tony Canzoneri, and now Pladner has established himself as boss of the flyweights, with a chance to cop a second title in the bantamweight division, which he plans to invade.

Jimmy Maloney

Pladner appears to have all the qualifications of a real champion, including a much harder punch than is generally found among fighters of his light poundage.

BY A vote that was practically unanimous, the fistic fraternity decided that Jimmy Maloney was done for all time after he had been knocked out by Jack Sharkey in five rounds and by George Godfrey and Tom Heeney in one round each in 1927, but the Boston battler has come back in surprising fashion. Possibly his victory over Tom Heeney the other night does not mean a great dal, except that it kills Heeney's hopes of gaining any new recognition as a heavyweight championship contender, but when it is considered that prior to that performance Maloney defeated Johnny Risko, Jack Renault, Clem Johnson, Moerese Artiom, Jack DeMave, twice, Henry Lamar, Tony Fuentes and Andy Mitchell, in succession, it will be seen that he has managed to get back on the winning road in consistent fashion, even though some of his opponents were far from being world beaters.

AT LEAST Maloney looms up as likely to add a little something to the income of Tex Rickard's promoting successors by giving them another bout or two in the so-called heavyweight elimination series. Whatever recognition they had intended to give to Heeney will now have to be shifted to Maloney.

Many ring followers will refuse to take Maloney seriously, and are of the opinion that if he is taken into the running again he will prove just as big a flop as he was before, but in any event he is likely to figure in the spring plans of the New York promoters for a match with Paulino or Schmeling as a preliminary step toward a possible fourth meeting with Sharkey.

MONESSEN FIVE TAKES ON HOMESTEAD

By JESS CAEVER

Homestead and Monessen will open the week's competition in the W. P. I. A. L. championship elimination tourney and close the first round play by clashing in the Stadium Pavilion tonight.

The biggest crowd that has seen a tourney game to date is expected. It's one of those games that will make both the welkin and cash register ring.

Bill Campbell, the genial coach of Homestead, brought his fine team through a tough campaign in Section VII, twice downing the defending sectional and league champions, Duquesne, to reach the position he and his team occupy today—that of tourney favorites.

Aliquippa, Uniontown and Braddock, prior to the opening of the event, were regarded in the light of dark horses, Aliquippa and Uniontown being more or less favored to at least reach the quarter-finals.

HOMESTEAD SMART

But this Homestead team, smooth working, smart and strong defensively, is the choice of the majority of those who have followed the doings of the high schoolers closely this season.

Monessen also came through with flying colors in Section V and proved its mettle by twice downing Earl Zoob's smart Waynesburg club.

Monessen lost three of its stars by mid-term graduation, which, while it has not ruined the teams' chances, hasn't increased them much either.

Saturday night, Uniontown entered the second round, which opens Wednesday, along with Fifth Avenue, Bellevue and Aliquippa, by removing New Brighton from the running.

The team from the coal region exhibited the outstanding player of the first round, unless Homestead or Monessen turn one up tonight, in Zaeovic, a rangy, Hyatt-like forward. In fact, Zaeovic looks to be a second Hyatt.

CITY TILT TOMORROW

Zaeovic, of Uniontown; Marty Reiter, of Fifth Avenue; Lippe, of Aliquippa; Smith, of Bellevue, and Hurley, of New Brighton, have been the outstanding players in the tourney to date.

Wednesday Aliquippa and Bellevue will begin the second round tilting. Tomorrow there will be no tournament games, but in the afternoon Fifth Avenue and South Hills will fight it out in the second game of the series for the City League title.

Fifth won the first encounter, 26 to 13, last Friday, and is a red-hot favorite to end the series by winning again tomorrow.

On Thursday night 13 of the state's foremost Roman Catholic high school teams will battle on the Bluff in the title tournament being sponsored by Duquesne University. The winner gets a trip to the national tournament in Chicago.

HOCKEY DATES CHANGED

The West Penn Amateur Hockey League titular series semi-finals will open at Duquesne Garden Friday evening, with the Blawnox skaters meeting the Hornets. The original plan was to have the series open Wednesday, and the change in dates was announced today by C. Bruce Lafferty, league president. The winner in the three-game series will meet Philadelphia Company for the title.

BELLEFONTE WINS

BELLEFONTE, Pa., March 4.—The Bellefonte Academy boxing team defeated the University of Pennsylvania freshmen here Saturday night, five bouts to two.

Hyatt, Pitt Star, Nears Record, Leads East

Chipper Charley Hyatt, Pitt's star performer, must make a total of 18 points in the two remaining games the Panther has to play this season in order to break his last season's record of 292 points. He ran up nine points Saturday night at Morgantown when Pitt avenged itself for a defeat by West Virginia earlier in the season by trouncing the Mountaineers, 41 to 19. Hyatt's total now is 275 for 19 games, and he is the leading scorer of the East. Baker, Pitt's mighty guard luminary, was the outstanding performer in the West Virginia game. He made 21 points.

GRAYS OBTAIN NEW STARS

Paul Stevens and Walter Gannady, two stars formerly with the Hilldale Club of Philadelphia, will be in the Homestead Grays' lineup when the locals pry the lid from the American Negro League season on April 27. The league has adopted a split-season plan, and the first half of the race will close on July 5. The Grays are to play their Sunday home games in Cleveland, and the Cubans another league entry, have no home field. The Cubans will play their "home" games at Hilldale, Baltimore, Protectory Oval, and the American League Park in Washington. The schedule for the first half of the season follows:

At Homestead Grays—Hilldale, June 21, 22, 23, 23; Baltimore, June 13, 14, 15; Lincoln, May 30, 30, 31, June 1; Bacharachs, May 4, 5, 5, 6; Cubans, May 10, 11, 12, 12.

NEW "RACKET" WORKED ON MASON

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

James (Red) Mason, veteran local fight manager, has just uncovered a new "racket," which has been worked against him for some time by gamblers without his knowledge.

The light dawned on Red at McKeesport last Thursday night, when Dominick Profio, making his first start under his management, rallied from a stormy first round to knock out California Joe Gans in the second session. The sensational result was a bit of an upset, in view of the fact that Profio a few months ago suffered his only defeat at the fists of Gans and was well on his way to another setback when his punching prowess saved him in the return clash.

On the way down to the ringside before the bout Mason overheard a slicker tell another one: "Go on down in the corner behind Mason and start to 'kid' him and take his mind off the fight. It always works. If things get to looking tough for Gans you can pick a fight with Mason and maybe have him thrown out of Profio's corner."

Red didn't answer back, but he took a tumble to himself. For years he has been having trouble with the McKeesport fans, who ride him and are ridden in turn by the redoubtable Mason, and several times Red has run afoul of the commission and been suspended for his conduct in the corners of his boxers. Now it all comes out in the wash. The gamblers have been betting against his men and then picking on Red to get him out of the way and leave the boxers to their own resources.

Forewarned is forearmed, and if they hook Red again it will be his own fault.

Mason got a great kick out of the turning of the tables in the Profio bout. It was not the first time a boxer under his wing has come from a mile behind to a mile in front with a single punch, but the fact that this was his first fight behind Profio accentuated the thrill.

Red's memory runs back to the night Frankie Loughrey, of Philadelphia, hammered Buck Crouse, managed by him, all around a ring in Boston during the first round only to see Buck come back and knock him out in the second. On another occasion the same thing happened with Buck in the ring against Australian Ted Nelson, also in Boston.

One night, in Milwaukee, Mason had the late Harry Greb in the ring with Ted Jamieson, the heavyweight. Red turned away from the ring for a moment in the first round and when he looked around again his champion was lying on the floor, dead to the world from a right hand smash on the chin. It was near the end of the round and Mason ran around the ring and hit the bell to save Greb. Harry rallied and handed Ted a bad beating before the finish.

An occasion the local fans who saw it never will forget was Greb's knockdown by Soldier Jones at Motor Square Garden. Saved by a careful count, Harry came back and hammered Jones into submission, almost finishing him in the 10 rounds.

Cuddy DeMarco, another Mason fighter, was flattened by Frankie Mahan, a deaf mute, at Columbus, some months ago, and Mason saved him by hitting the bell with a water bottle and getting away with it. Cuddy rallied and went the route.

A week or so ago, figures were quoted in this column by the writer to show how the boxing game is booming in the small towns around Pittsburgh, and McKeesport strung along with the others last week, when it drew the largest attendance in its history for the Profio-Gans battle in the Palisades Roller Rink. The gate, at the popular prices of $1 and $2, grossed more than $2,200, taking second place to the Kid Williams-Tommy Ryan record-breaker of a half-dozen years ago, at which higher prices were charged. Profio received $529 for his end, 25 per cent of the net receipts. It was the largest purse of his short and meteoric career, and, according to Manager Mason, more money than Greb, who went on to win two championships, received for his first five fights under his management.

Profio has knocked out Young Rudy and Gans in his last two starts and has stepped 16 opponents in 17 professional fights in six months, following an equally successful amateur career, and, on the whole, is the most sought-after young boxer in the Pittsburgh district. The promoters want him because he has plenty of the IT the fans demand, which is nothing more or less than a good old-fashioned mixer with a sock in either fist.

Ray Barbuti, the Olympic sprint star, stands suspended for going around saying things about the A. A. U. that a lot of folks have been thinking for a long, long time, which, in substance, is that a lot of money is being made by somebody out of the efforts of athletes who are supposed to remain amateurs in spite of the fact that they are being constantly exploited to draw large crowds to the meets. Where this money goes no one seems to know. At least, none of it is around when the begging starts every four years to raise funds to send the American team to the Olympic games.

Reds Release Pipp; Wally Signs With Newark

NEW YORK, March 4.—(AP.)—The Newark club of the International League has announced the signing of Wallie Pipp, veteran major league first-sacker.

James P. Sinnott of the Newark club, who made the announcement, said Pipp was a free agent, having been given his unconditional release by the Cincinnati Reds. The Reds had an overbundance of first basemen with both Pipp and Long George Kelly on the payroll.

Pipp broke into the big leagues as early as 1912 with Detroit, but he became one of the game's leading first sackers with the New York Yankees from 1915 to 1926. In that year he was sold outright to Cincinnati.

Pipp will join Manager Tris Speaker at St. Augustine, Fla., where the Newark club is training, at the end of this week.

ICE PIRATES FACE HAWKS TOMORROW

By CARL N. SHATTO

The Chicago Hawks, riding the crest of a one-game winning streak, will attempt to keep the Pirates from achieving a similar victory string at Duquesne Garden tomorrow night when they come here for their last appearance of the season. In downing the Montreal Maroons Saturday night the Hawks, nomads of the ice in that they are the only National League club without a home, scored their first goal in nine starts and the victory was the second that they have scored since December 27, just 23 games ago.

HAWKS NOT EASY FOE

In conquering the Maroons at Montreal the Chicagoans beat a club that is fighting desperately for a place in the ice world series, so it can be seen that the invaders are not exactly the pushovers that their sad record would indicate. Moreover, they held the New York Rangers and Detroit Cougars to deadlocks in recent frays, and Chuck Gardiner, the Hawk goalie, is one of the best net guardians in the business.

Regardless of their "spurt," however, the Chicago skaters will not be favorites in their fight with the Bucs tomorrow night. In scoring three goals on Detroit here Saturday the locals gave their best scoring exhibition of the season, and there is no reason to believe that the Hawks will be able to stem the Pirates' attack any better than were the Cougars.

Hib Milks, putting more speed and power into his thrusts, on Saturday looked better than ever before, and Frederickson and Bouchard, the latter subbing for the injured Darragh, kept pace so well that the Detroiters were on the defensive throughout much of the fray. The spares, with Drury setting a blistering pace, were just about as active as were the starters.

THRILLS COSTLY

Roger Smith and Bert McCaffrey, defense men, each broke through for a goal, and if the Bucs maintain the same stride tomorrow the Chicago goalie is going to spend a very busy evening.

It was the Bucs' desire to give the local fans a thrill that cost them the decision in the 4-3 overtime duel with Detroit, for they scorned defensive tactics after going into the lead no less than three times. Three-men combination plays were in order at all times, and it was generally agreed that defeat with such furious action was preferable to victory with dull play.

The Pirates have nothing to gain by beating Chicago, so they probably will continue to go out after the goals recklessly, and let the opposition pick up such tallies as it can.

TWO HURT IN DETROIT

DETROIT, March 4.—(AP.)—In a smashing National Hockey League game in which two players were injured seriously enough to remove them from the game for the rest of the season and in which major penalties were inflicted, the New York Rangers last night nosed out the Detroit Cougars, 3 to 2, in the last game between the two teams this year.

Sparky Vail of the Rangers received a slight concussion of the brain when he crashed into the boards during the play and Sailor Jimmy Herberts of the Cougars received a shoulder injury that may keep him out for the remainder of the season, physicians said.

FORMER DODGER MAY WIN OUT OVER STRONER

BY CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

PASO ROBLES, Cal., March 4.—An athlete whose press notices practically have been confined to the "among-those-present list" today stands high in the opinion of the strategy board after his sudden rise from obscurity.

If you have met Harry Riconda just casually, fans, please step up and shake the hand of this powerful Italian boy, now that he is being talked about by Manager Bush and all of Donie's lieutenants.

Replacing Jim Stroner at third in yesterday's workout, the silent member of the big trade with the Dodgers showed Bush and his aides a fine grade of third-base play, his peppery actions giving him a firm hold on his present job of utility infielder, if not a regular infielder.

MAY SUPPLANT STRONER

Stroner, the Western League wonder, has been playing under wraps, owing to a recent operation for removal of the appendix. Cicero Jim was brought to camp with the first squad, but his condition has militated against him to some extent.

Riconda blew into camp quietly enough, but when he reached the ball park he began to act like a real performer of the kind that enjoys his work. The upshot of it all was a change in Bush's plans.

Riconda had a remarkable season in the American Association before the Dodgers acquired him. Moreover, the Brooklyn infield of last season was an unsettled affair nearly all season, and there is a feeling among the Bucco leaders that Harry might have absorbed the indifferent attitude which appeared to exist among the Dodgers.

It is argued that with a club like the Pirates, the stocky boy may be altogether different in his action.

Bush appears to share this opinion, and he is watching the actions of Riconda closely. His movements at third base yesterday were most pleasing to the team's pilot.

HOLD BATTING DRILL

Wouldn't it be a big thing for the Pirates and Riconda if he were to come through in a big way? Judging by his snappy action, Harry is trying to get set to do something out of the ordinary.

And with Stroner still far off form, Riconda has a fine opportunity to grab an inside position. He has had much more experience than the Chicago boy.

The same routine of hitting was on the schedule for today. The Yannigans will do their stuff at the plate in the forenoon workout with the Regulars getting the benefit of the long drill of the afternoon.

The afternoon hitting sessions last almost one and one-half hours, the batting being pleasing to the first-string players.

The plan, however, is not so easy for the sharpshooters, many of whom would not be averse to the use of armor plate as they serve the rockets of the hard hitters.

The pitchers, nevertheless, are getting closer to top form each day. The many days of practice have given the hurlers the chance they wanted to get their arms oiled up. Some of them are throwing curves in profusion.

Skipper Bush announced yesterday that, due to the pressure of practice, only three games would be played here between the Regulars and the Yannigans.

Chillysauce

Baseball managers find that they cannot use the same methods on all players. A knowledge of human nature is just as important in diamond leadership as a keen knowledge of the game. Some players, for example, do not have to be instructed in the matter of reaching top form.

Fellows like Remy Kremer, Burleigh Grimes and Steve Swetonic acquire the desired form easier by using their own methods than by following any set schedule. A fellow like Swetonic needs no rules of discipline, and he is more anxious to be ready when the bell rings than are his employers.

Steve strove to put on some extra poundage during the winter. He was successful in getting on about six or four pounds, and despite the two workouts a day he has held his own in the matter of weight. Donie Bush realizes that Steve will prosper better by nursing himself along and he will not force Swetonic to do anything that might be too severe. But there are players who are somewhat indifferent as to their condition. Boys of this sort have to be prodded, and Donie gets after them.

Rolly Hemsley seems to go the limit in everything he does on the field. He is one of the hardest workers in the squad, yet he appears to suffer no ill effects, although his lame ankle has been giving him some trouble. This youngster hardly has an idle mo-

By JESS CARVER.

A smashing, battering force that is the University of Pittsburgh varsity basketball team has strong-armed its way to the very top of the tri-state college court heap, and today leads the pack toward the 1928-'29 championship.

Trailing back in third and fourth place, behind West Virginia, Bethany and Westminster because the schedule did not provide enough local opposition to give the team a high percentage, the Panthers on Saturday night cut down the hopeful Mountaineers at Morgantown, serving them the most decisive whipping they have received this year, and moved out into the van, with eight victories and one defeat, 34 percentage points ahead of Westminster's Titans.

The Pitt victory over West Virginia came as a distinct surprise in some circles, especially in those rippling about Morgantown. After West Virginia defeated Pitt here in the Stadium Pavilion by five points early in the campaign, you couldn't tell those Mountaineers that their ball club wasn't going to win a title this year. Even after Geneva bumped them off, also decisively, they still held to the hope that Pitt would be beaten again when the Panthers appeared in Morgantown.

MOUNTAINEERS FOOLED

What the Mountaineers failed to take into consideration was that Pitt wasn't thinking so much about West Virginia prior to that first game. That was Pitt's own fault, of course. They had the contest with West Point in mind, and Dr. Carlson could not get his boys to take West Virginia seriously. But this time it was different. They took West Virginia very much to heart and head, and the result of Saturday night's game showed it—very conclusively, I should say.

Pitt's new "delayed attack," taken up and developed after the defeat at the hands of Notre Dame, has improved the Panther game a great deal. Unable to make the trip to Morgantown Saturday myself, I delegated Agent No. 42 to bring me back a report of the game. He tells me that they checked Mr. Little Sleepy Glenn so closely that Mr. Little Sleepy was helpless; that Charley Hyatt directed the play of the Panthers with such skill and that Eddie Baker carried out his part of the work with such class that the Mountaineer defense never considered to be the best in the section, was completely at sea.

Agent No. 42 also told me that Lester Cohen turned Swede Hagberg inside out, keeping the big fellow from scoring from the floor, and found time to score two baskets himself.

You'd all be surprised if you knew who Agent No. 42 is.

PANTHERS IN LEAD

At any event, the Panthers are out in the lead today and will very likely remain there. With two more games to be played, both of which they figure to win (against Wash-Jeff and Penn State), it will be impossible, mathematically, for any of the rival clubs in the section to pass 'em.

Either Westminster or West Virginia is going to wind up in second place. Both have two more games to play. The Titans oppose Duquesne here tomorrow night and hook up with Thiel, a sure win, late in the week. West Virginia meets Wash-Jeff and Davis-Elkins. Andy Kerr's chances of taking the Mountaineers are not considered so "hot," but Elkins, playing on its own floor, will give the University lads a hard old evening.

Bethany, its schedule completed, must sit back this week, idle, and hope that Duquesne bumps off Geneva Friday night. Unless this happens, the Covenanters will be able to tie the Bisons for the conference title. I wouldn't be too sure that Geneva will beat the Dukes. Duquesne is due to make it tough for someone. Maybe it will be Westminster tomorrow.

RUDY TO BATTLE GIBBONS AT MOOSE CLUB

Young Rudy, of Charleroi, has been selected by Promoter Frank Flynn, of the Moose Temple Boxing Club to oppose T. N. T. Gibbons, of Cleveland, in the 10-round main bout of his weekly show next Friday night.

Originally, Flynn planned to show Dominick Profio, sensational puncher of Cecil, against Gibbons, but an injured ear, a souvenir of his bout with California Joe Gans at McKeesport last Thursday night, will keep Profio on the sidelines for a few weeks and Rudy, his stablemate, has been substituted. Rudy is a "club fighter" on the same order as Profio, although not as hard a hitter.

Gibbons, who will make his home in Donora beginning this week, comes highly touted as a socker. He has beaten Henry Firpo and other notables.

Puck McTiernan, clever lightmiddleweight, of Swissvale, will box the best opponent obtainable in the semi-final of the Moose card.

O'DOWD IN DRAW

Midget Mike O'Dowd, of Louisville, and Ward Sparks, of Detroit, boxed a six-round draw at Cincinnati Saturday night. Tomorrow night, Mike boxes Sailor Larson at Columbus.

Howard Mayberry's bout with Charley Van Reeden at Hamilton, Ont., has been set back from tonight to tomorrow night. Mayberry will remain in Canada for a bout with Johnny McCoy at Toronto next Monday night.

A rough battle is in prospect in the semi-final at McKeesport next Thursday night, in the melee between Johnny Windsor, of Herron Hill, and Leo Kyburski, of Swissvale, 135-pounders. Both are of the hard-punching, rugged type. Cuddy DeMarco, of McKeesport, and Larry Brignola, of Erie, will meet a third time in the 10-round windup.

Eight bouts will be on the amateur boxing card at the P. A. C. next Saturday night. Paul Palmer, of the North Side A. C., Greater Pittsburgh featherweight champion, will meet Tod Murphy, of the Duke O'Hara Club, of McKeesport, in one of the feature numbers.

PLADNER REAL CHAMPION

Spider Pladner, of France, moved into undisputed lead among the flyweights of the world when he knocked out Frankie Genaro, former champion, in the first round of their battle in Paris, Saturday night. This victory, coming on the heels of Pladner's earlier triumphs over Johnny Hill, of England, claimant of the European championship, and Corp. Izzy Schwartz, one of the world title claimants, makes him a standout and his claim to the crown likely will be generally recognized.

Boxing shows are listed tonight at the Jolly Bowl in New Castle and the Gardens at Washington, Pa. Willie Davies, of Charleroi, meets Frisco Grande, the Filipino, in the Bowl main event, while Battling Gizzy, of Donora, and Jack Heslip, of Massillon, O., furnish the main fireworks at the Gardens.

The Pennsylvania Railroad West Penn boxing and wrestling eliminations are slated at the Wilmerding Y. M. C. A. tonight.

Eddie O'Dowd battles Bushy Graham at Cincinnati, Ray Newton boxes Chuck Feldman at Toledo, Paddy Mahan mingles with Tony Leto at Hamilton, O. George Courtney boxes Nando Tassi in New York and Matt Adgie meets Con O'Kelly and Babe McGergary opposes Vincent Forgione in Philadelphia tonight.

George Pitfield, of Dinsing's, who played brilliantly in annexing four victories last week and who amazed local cue fans by defeating Billy Greenwood, league champion twice in as many nights, will attempt to clamber into fourth place tonight when he meets Matthew McClure at Crookston Recreation. A victory will give Pitfield a tie for the coveted berth.

Tener to Be 'Czar' Of Legion Junior League

PHILADELPHIA, March 4—(AP)—John K. Tener, former governor of Pennsylvania and one time major league baseball pooper, has announced acceptance of an invitation to serve as high commissioner of the Junior Baseball League, sponsored by the State Department of the American Legion.

His acceptance was presented at a meeting of the state executive committee of the legion, which voted financial backing for the baseball league.

La Barba to Meet New Flyweight Champ in May

PARIS, March 4.—With Frankie Genaro's managers, Joe Jacobs and Billy McCarney, still protesting that the National Boxing Association's world flyweight champion had been fouled in Saturday night's bout with Emile (Spider) Pladner, Promoter Jeff Dickson has announced that Pladner will meet Fidel La Barba, of California, former world champion, in an outdoor match at Paris the last week in May.

Jacobs and McCarney have sent a letter to Paul Rosseau, president of the French Boxing Federation, protesting that the Frenchman fouled Genaro and asked that the American be given a return bout.

Genaro was counted out after 58 seconds in the first round of their scheduled 15-round bout advertised for the world flyweight title. Referee Henry Bernstein ruled that the left which floored Genaro was fair and was supported by two judges. The American judge, Conti, ruled the blow was foul.

ment in either of the daily sessions. John O'Connell, of Verona, is a prototype of Hemsley in this respect. Both he and Rolly are in the physical trim of boxers ready to enter the ring.

As the training season advances the comment on the Waner holdouts becomes more appalling to the Pirates. The concensus of opinion is that the two little fellows are indispensable to the success of the club without going into any discussion as to the merits or demerits of their case.

Owner Barney Dreyfuss and Mrs. Dreyfuss have arrived in California after a two weeks' boat trip from New York by way of the Panama Canal. The elder Dreyfuss was in telephonic conversation with Treasurer Sam Dreyfuss when the boat docked at San Diego. He told his son that he probably would come to camp later.

With Paul and Lloyd adamant in their salary dispute there is much speculation as to what will develop in the next few weeks. Some in camp conjecture that neither will be on hand to take part in any of the Paso Robles action. The team will be here for 10 more days.

Meantime, Manager Bush finds it difficult to arrange his batting order. Donie is in need of two good hitters to take the second and third positions, which are being held open for the Oklahoma stars.

TOM RAKLETS COPS FLORIDA WEST TITLE

BELLEAIR, Fla., March 4.—(AP.)—A smiling youth, little known in National tournament golf, flashed across the horizon here and with deadly accuracy clicked off birdies and pars to win the annual Florida West Coast open crown from a field that included veteran titleholders.

Tom Raklets, a 23-year-old pro, of Youngstown, turning in a gross card of 278, two strokes under par, took the lion's share of the $4,215 purse, a cut of $1,000. It was his first major tournament victory in his five-year professional career.

The youth, after tieing with Billy Burk, Westport, N. Y., pro, for the leadership in the first round went into the van during the second 18 holes and unperturbingly stroked his way to victory.

Louis Chiappetta, of Hartford, Conn., finished third with 285, and Gene Sarazen, Newport, Richey, Fla., with 287, was fourth. Bob Stupplicz, Chicago, with 288, nosed out Densmore Shute, of Columbus, who clicked a 289.

Behind these came Leo Diegel, P. G. A., and Canadian open champion, in a tie with Al Watrous, of Detroit, with a gross of 290 and closely following were Johnny Farrell, St. Augustine, Fla., National open champion, Herman Barron, Port Chester, N. Y., and Joe Turnesa, Elmsford, N. Y., in a triple deadlock with 292.

NAISHAPUR VICTOR

TIA JUANA, Mex., March 4.—(AP.)—Naishapur won the $25,000 Tia Juana derby, a mile and an eighth race, here yesterday.

CARDS, GIANTS WORK; OTHER CLUBS REST

ATLANTA, Ga., March 4.—(AP.)—In all except two of baseball's spring training camps, players were given yesterday to devote to their own devices, but in one of the other two, all hands were out in uniform as though the day was not Sunday.

Billy Southworth, new pilot of the destines of the National League champion St. Louis Cards, sent his Redbirds through their paces at Avon Park, Fla.

CARDS WORK

The Cards were given an opportunity for an extra 40 winks in the morning, but the afternoon saw the squad that is here out in the sunshine taking a heavy workout. The remainder of the squad, consisting mostly of outfielders and infielders, is due in camp today.

Andy High was due last night with Frisch expected among today's early arrivals.

John McGraw ordered tardy arrivals at the New York Giant camp in San Antonio to take a light workout, but the condition of the rest of the squad was such that he declared the Sabbath a holiday.

Elsewhere in the training camp area, diamonds were deserted, and the players turned their attention to golf and fishing.

Lena Blackburn's White Sox training camp was increased by four and more were due in today when real work has been ordered.

The Grapefruit League will open this week, with Connie Mack's Philadelphia Americans participating in four games. The A's, who finished second in the race last year, play the Cards in Avon Park Thursday, then return to the Fort Meyers camp to act as host to the Redbirds and then move in on Miami Saturday for a brace of games with Jack Hendricks' Cincinnati Reds.

FARRELL REJECTS TERMS

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 4.—Dr. Eddie Farrell, one of the two Boston Braves' holdouts, has rejected the terms offered him by Judge Emil Fuchs and will leave for his home at Binghamton, N. Y., to continue his dentistry career.

Farrell's salary was cut, but he was offered a bonus which would have made his 1929 salary better than last year's in the event he had a good season, but the little shortstop turned down the proposition.

fifth time in six engagements this winter, the end of the hockey season is in sight for Pittsburgh fans.

In all probability only two more National League games will be played here, Chicago appearing tomorrow night and the New York Rangers on Tuesday night of next week. Boston is scheduled to play in Pittsburgh on March 16, but it is said that game will be transferred to the Hub.

Sam Hildreth

ANY horse's chances for victory in a mile-and-a-quarter event like the Kentucky Derby depends upon the manner in which he is trained, and it is because Harry Sinclair has a trainer of the caliber of Sam Hildreth that attaches of his Rancocas stable figure his entry will have an edge this year. "Training nominees for a Derby is a difficult job," says Frank Hackett, agent of the stable. "A horse that has been nominated for the Derby must be given a slow prep, starting about January 1. The animal must be worked out every day, rain or shine, and his workouts have got to be increased gradually. It is no easy matter to keep a horse in prime condition until the day of the race. One must be an expert in his line to accomplish this. I know of no better man in the turf world than Sam Hildreth to train a Derby eligible. Hildreth has proved this by capturing every prominent stake event in America. There are others who can train Derby horses almost as well as Hildreth, but he holds the record, and it shows him to be a step ahead of all rivals."

Pet Whistle Stolen Ref. Offers More Loot for Return

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., March 4.—O. R. Herwick, popular sports official, is downcast over the loss of a whistle he has blown on football fields and basketball courts for 12 years. He first procured it while a sergeant with the Medical Detachment, Tenth Pennsylvania Infantry, on the Mexican border in 1916. It was in the pocket of an overcoat stolen last week one night when a thief opened the front door of his room and removed the wrap from a hall rack. Herwick says he will ask no questions if the whistle only is returned and offers to throw in a cap which will match the overcoat.

BOB BERGNACK TAKES LEAD

Bob Bergnack has supplanted Blair Kuntz as leader for the medalist honors in the first annual city indoor golf championship, in progress over the downtown indoor golf links in the Smithfield Building. Bergnack turned in a sweet 70 for the 36-hole qualifying round, which was just nine strokes better than Kuntz. The new leader had a pair of 17s for a 34 on his first 18 holes, and a 29 and 16 for a 36 on the second.

Steve Martin has advanced to second place, two strokes behind Bergnack. Martin tallied 16-19—35 and 19-18—37 for a 72. Kuntz ranks third with his 79, as previously announced.

Tony Conforti comes next with 22-21—43 and 20-19—39 for an 82, while others among the leaders registered scores tse follows:

E. F. Grobian, 43-41—84; R. C. Simpson, 46-38—84; C. K. Miller, 46-40—86; Mavis, 48-40—88; J. M. Hearey, 49-49—89; R. D. Roley, 47-41—91; Casey Jones, 44-47—91; Billy Tavano, 49-44—93; J. W. Over, 44-49—93; C. K. Sauer, 46-47—93; A. S. Geiger, 53-43—96; C. A. Stewart, 49-53—102; R. W. Bell, 50-54—104.

The qualifying round closes Saturday. Post entries are still being received at the course by Manager John Martin. There is no entry fee.

PITTSBURGHERS WIN

NEWELL, Pa., March 4.—A basketball tournament was held here by teams composed of employes of the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad. The Pittsburgh Division team won the title by defeating the Monongahela Division, 38 to 21.

COACHES PICK ALL-DISTRICT CAGE TEAMS

Associated Press.

The coaches of collegiate basketball teams in this district appear to be quite of one mind when it comes to picking the leading tossers who participated in the 1929 court campaign. Asked by the Associated Press to make an all-district selection, this was the result, the players named the greatest number of times being placed on the first team, those noted the second greatest number of times finding positions on the second team, and the remainder given honorable mention:

FIRST TEAM.

Hyatt	F	Pitt
Glenn	F	West Virginia
Telfair	C	Bethany
Lewis	G	Westminster
Baker	G	Pitt

SECOND TEAM.

O'Donovan	F	Westminster
Muir	F	Allegheny
Hagberg	C	West Virginia
Ryan	G	Grove City
White	G	Waynesburg

Honorable mention—Rush, Bethany, forward; Ransom, Geneva, center; Damischroder, Bethany, guard; Saunders, Washington and Jefferson, center.

The honorable mention list is small because the coaches were so nearly unanimous in their designations, especially as concerns the first team. Hyatt and Baker of Pitt were favorites, with all the coaches except one. He picked only from the teams his squad has played during the season, and Pitt was not among those opponents. Glenn and Lewis were the choice of all except two mentors and Telfair was noted by all except three of those who responded with all-District choices.

If an All-Star Tri-State Conference team were to be segregated from the list, based on their popularity with the tosser overseers, it would appear like this:

O'Donovan	F	Westminster
Rush	F	Bethany
Telfair	C	Bethany
Lewis	G	Westminster
White	G	Waynesburg

Wisconsin, Michigan In Title Duel Tonight

CHICAGO, March 4.—(INS.)—Wisconsin rules a slight favorite to "take" Michigan in the game that probably will decide the Big Ten Conference Basketball Championship, at Ann Arbor tonight.

Each team has won nine games, but Michigan has lost two, and the Badgers have been beaten only once. It is the Wolverines' final game, whereas Wisconsin plays once more, against Chicago Saturday night.

Hennessey Beats Francis Hunter At Miami

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 4.—(AP.)—Johnny Hennessey, Indianapolis, fourth ranking tennis player in the country, defeated Francis T. Hunter, New Rochelle, N. Y., second ranking star, in the singles final of the annual Miami Beach tennis tournament, 6-3, 7-5.

Hunter and John Van Ryn, East Orange, N. J., lost their match in final of the doubles to Hennessey and Fritz Mercur, of Bethlehem, Pa., 6-4, 6-0, 1-6, 6-3.

MIELES OPPOSE PENN FIVE TONIGHT

By JULIUS LEVIN.

Strengthened by the addition of Joey Drotar, Duquesne Lafayette star, the Miele-Franchinas, of the Allegheny County League, will open an important series with the crack Penn Five, of the West Penn League, at Columbus Temple tonight.

Drotar was one of the outstanding forwards in the Allegheny County League fight and his presence in the Miele-Franchina lineup should have a tendency to improve the teamwork of the Grossmen.

Interest in the series is high and indications are that a large crowd will be on hand for the opening battle.

KNICKERS BOOKED

Tomorrow night the Miele-Franchinas will open another important series with the Knickerbockers, of the West Penn League, the first game being slated for Forresters Hall, Lawrenceville. The Knickers, winners of the first-half title in the West Penn League, are coached by Yans Wallace, former coach and star of the Slano club. Several of his old teammates are on the present Miele quintet.

The Knickers will play a return game at Columbus Temple a week from tonight. The fifth and deciding battle with the Rauhs will take place at Columbus Temple a week from next Monday night.

KEEN INTEREST SHOWN

Local followers of professional basketball are showing keen interest in the battle next Thursday night at the South Side Market House between the Original Morry Big Five, former Central League champions, and the Cleveland Rosenblums, first-half champions of the American League. The victory of the Allegheny County League All-Stars over the Rosies at Aliquippa last Friday night has given the Morrys the necessary confidence and they are determined to take a fall out of the pro leaguers.

Judging from the advance sale one of the largest crowds in the history of professional basketball will turn out at the South Side Market House.

The Morrys will have a team of experienced basketball veterans to use against the Rosies. Morry Goldman, sponsor of the game, has signed up Chick Davies, Bill Campbell, Yans Wallace, Ken Loeffler, Whitey Littell, Moon Klinsing and George Ramsay available for service.

Fans are eager to see Johnny Beckman in action here. Beckman is a veteran of 25 years of professional basketball and a great favorite in this section. Three other former Celtic stars will appear with the Rosies, namely Joe Lapchick, Dutch Dehnert and Pete Barry.

The Greenfield Club and the M. J. Conleys will clash in one preliminary, while the Goldman Vanities will meet a strong opponent.

DRIBBLES

The Duquesne Lafayettes will have the Johnstown Taxi Five as their attraction at Duquesne tonight. The County League champions expect a tough battle from the Flood City passers.

Leo Mackey, veteran tri-state official, will be in Cleveland next Thursday, Friday and Saturday to handle the railroad basketball tournament in Public Hall. Pittsburgh and Lake Erie, of Pittsburgh, is one of the entrants.

Dave Mervis, former star of the Morrys, will handle the game with the Rosenblums at the Market House next Thursday night.

East Liberty Y. M. C. A. will meet the Y. M. H. A. in an Institutional League game next Wednesday night at East Liberty.

New Ohio Sunday League Is Formed

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., March 4.—(AP.)—A new baseball league, comprising the clubs which played last year in the Eastern Ohio and Ohio-Pennsylvania leagues, has been tentatively formed here by representatives of nine teams. A committee of five was named to perfect a temporary organization. Another meeting will be held at Massillon Sunday.

Zanesville, Coshocton and New Philadelphia of the old Eastern Ohio League, and Canton, Massillon, Akron Firestones, Akron General Tires, Cleveland Tellings and Youngstown Oaklands of the Ohio-Pennsylvania League, were represented. Games would be played only on Sundays.

NEW SUPERIOR STEEL STOCK TO BE SOLD

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE Superior Steel Corporation is planning the sale of additional stock. At the annual meeting to be held at Richmond, Va., on March 18 the stockholders will be asked to approve the issuance of the entire authorized capitalization of 115,000 shares of $100 par value stock. At present 100,000 shares are outstanding.

The company has not announced the manner in which the stock is to be sold or the price to be obtained for it. These details are to be determined at the annual meeting. It is probable that the offering will be in the form of rights to present stockholders.

Improved demand for strip steel and higher prices have placed Superior Steel in a much better position from an earning standpoint than it was a year ago. The concentration of sales efforts on specialty types of products, for which the organization is particularly fitted, has also tended to broaden the margin of profit.

NET earnings in January, 1929, are estimated to have been greater than in the entire year of 1928, when $29,869, or 29 cents a share, was reported. Profit in the fourth quarter of 1928 of $46,869 also exceeded the entire year, since it was partially offset by losses earlier in the year.

Superior has been working on the perfection of some new products, the announcement of which may be made within the next few months.

Reflecting the improved condition of the company's business, the stock has shown strength during the past few months. It closed at 43 on Saturday. During the past year it has ranged between a high of 56¾ and a low of 18. The company has no preferred stock and a funded debt of only $2,006,000, part of which is held in the treasury.

THE growing aircraft industry is bringing new forms of industrial activity to this city and is adding to the business volume of many well-established organizations here.

Pittsburgh has not developed as a great manufacturing point for complete airplanes, but its share in the parts business is large, and it is steadily growing.

Standard Steel Propeller Corporation is the dominant maker of propellers. The Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt Corporation is also entering this field with a newly developed type of propeller.

The Aluminum Company of America has had a big share in the business of the aircraft makers since production of planes has been on a commercial scale. The development of special alloys has greatly aided in the perfection of both airplanes and the Navy dirigibles.

The drop-forge shop of the Union Switch and Signal Company is making crankshafts and other parts for several of the leading makers of airplane motors.

BUT there is more to the air industry than the production of planes. The fact that the number of landing fields is being more than doubled this year is bringing more work to Pittsburgh's mills and factories.

Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company has developed a complete line of lighting equipment for night landing. The steel companies are pushing the use of light structural sections for hangars. Pittsburgh will play as big a part in aircraft building as it has in the automobile industry, though it has never been an important point for the actual assembly of cars or planes.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, March 4—Raw sugar was unchanged early today at 3.71c for spots, duty paid, with no sales reported.

Raw futures opened unchanged to 2 points higher on covering and buying of distant positions by houses with trade and Wall Street connections. Trading was not very active, but offerings were light. The market continued steady throughout the remainder of the forenoon. At midday prices were about unchanged from the opening.

Advices from Cuba said production there from January 1 to February 28 totaled 2,536,000 long tons, compared with 1,870,000 long tons from January 15 to February 29, last year, and 2,130,000 tons to the end of February two years ago.

Refined was unchanged at 4.90c for fine granulated, with demand still limited to nearby requirements.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, March 4.—(AP.)—Curb market stocks today started to advance at midday after an early period of unsettlement, believed to reflect uneasiness on other exchanges over the Mexican revolution. Call money was unchanged at 8 per cent.

Alexander Industries, in which trading was begun last week, assumed the leadership of the aviation group, advancing to above 22, more than 5 points up from its initial trading price, on favorable reports of its new model plane.

Ford Motor of Canada had an 8-point rise, and Auburn Auto rallied from an early decline of 3 points.

Electric Bond and Share issues fluctuated over a 7-point range. American Superpower "A" yielded 2 points at the start, but more than recovered this loss at midday.

Humble Oil ran up 2 points in the otherwise dull oil list.

Fox Theaters after a strong opening ran into profit-taking and its gain was converted into a small loss. Fox announced over the week-end acquisition of Loews, Inc.

Newmont in the mining stocks ran up 4 points.

Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (000 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

How Business Has Sized Up Hoover; Odd "Celebration."

—By B. C. FORBES—

ISN'T this kind of funny? You will recall that all the newspapers told you before the presidential nomination that Wall Street didn't want Hoover. Now Hoover's inauguration is hailed by Wall Street as calling for a wild demonstration of bullish exhuberance!

ALMOST two months ago a member of the Durant group of operators said to me:

"Don't sell before the inauguration. You can look for a demonstration in honor of Mr. Hoover's entering the White House. It might be well to take advantage of this demonstration to turn paper profits into cash."

Well, the demonstration is on. Each individual must decide for himself whether to take advantage of it to cash in profits or hold on in the hope of seeing the market continue to soar towards the sky. The writer is not disposed to go into debt for stocks which have been marked-up extraordinarily spectacularly.

WHAT kind of a President is Herbert Hoover likely to make?

First of all, it can be concluded that he will be the actual chief executive, that he will dominate his cabinet, that he will be the real boss.

THE caliber of the new men chosen for cabinet portfolios indicates, in a sense, that Mr. Hoover possesses self-reliance. President Harding, less strongly equipped to run what is, in many respects, the greatest business organization in the world, chose veritable giants from the world of affairs as his chief lieutenants. Some of them towered over Harding as experienced executives. Not one of Herbert Hoover's new aides towers over him.

It will, therefore, be essentially a Hoover administration.

IN a greater degree than any predecessor, President Hoover combines infinite sympathy with under-dogs and brilliant business ability born of world-wide experience.

Few men have ever been in closer grips with human distress. He has been an eye-witness of the worst of human tragedies—starvation, homelessness, wreck and ruin. He could not have accomplished what he has accomplished to relieve human woes had his heart not been in his work.

CAN it not be confidently concluded by the great mass of ordinary folks in this country that their interests will not be sacrificed by Herbert Hoover as the chief executive of the nation?

THE business world and the financial world, despite all pre-nomination comments, repose absolute trust in him. The most they have ever expected from other presidents was non-interference with their activities. From President Hoover they expect more.

They expect him to originate and vigorously support ideas, plans and projects for the further development of America's resources and the upbuilding of national prosperity.

DURING the Hoover administration vast railway consolidations, as recommended, in principle, by the transportation act of 1920, are expected to be made possible. It is figured that he will seek enabling legislation. Members of the Interstate Commerce Commission, it is felt, will be left in no doubt as to his endorsement of the consolidation principle already on the statute books.

THE utility industry figures that it has nothing to fear from President Hoover but that, rather, he will favor all honorable, legitimate, efficiently-conceived plans to effect economies through large-scale operation and the interconnection of power lines.

Mergers are the order of the day and will be the order of tomorrow in many industries and in merchandising. Here, again, President Hoover is expected to be entirely sympathetic because of his inborn aversion to avoidable economic duplication, waste, inefficiency.

His first-hand international knowledge and experience are depended upon to impel him to stand squarely behind all honest efforts to strengthen America's foothold in world markets. His outspoken opposition, as Secretary of Commerce, to schemes backed by foreign governments to sandbag American consumers of materials monopolized abroad has convincingly demonstrated his vigilance, not to mention his courage, on behalf of American interests.

THE truth were known, I doubtless it would be found that Mr. Hoover would prefer distinctly less "celebrating" by Wall Street. There is something altogether shivery about the reckless swelling of the stock market value of the capital of this, that and the next corporation by tens of millions, even hundreds of millions, with lightning rapidity. "Value" added so breathlessly rapidly can melt as breathlessly rapidly.

The best thing Wall Street could do for the success of the Hoover regime would be to stop reveling in fireworks and subside to undisturbing normalcy.

Restrict Oklahoma Oil Pools.

Under an operators' agreement to restrict crude oil output of Oklahoma to 650,000 barrels daily, production in greater Seminole area is pro-rated to 75 per cent of its potential output; St. Louis pool, 73 per cent and Maud-Mission area 69 per cent, effective March 1 to March 16. Potential output for the first half of March was established at 483,713 barrels by allowing producing wells to flow wide open from 7 a. m., March 1 to 7 a. m., March 2. This gauge gave potential output of Seminole proper as 42,840 barrels; Bowlegs, 45,209; Earlsboro, 68,599; Searight, 11,649; Little River, 102,885; St. Louis, 128,947; Maud, 38,971, and Mission, 44,613. Under proration pact only 353,230 barrels daily will be produced or 117,883 under potential output.

Libbey-Owens Sheet Glass.

Federal Judge J. P. Hahn is expected to give his decision in about a month in the suit for damages totaling several millions of dollars filed against Libbey-Owens Sheet Glass Company by the German Glass Corporation, alleging breach of contract and asking an accounting since 1907. Retaking of testimony, caused by the judge who heard the case in 1927 dying before he could give his decision, has been completed.

American Cigar Net.

The American Cigar Company reports for year ended December 31 last net profit was $2,767,079 after charges and federal taxes, equal after preferred dividends to $12.11 a share on 200,000 common shares, compared with net of $2,877,943 in 1927 or $12.44 a share.

Copper Prices Unchanged.

Copper metal buying is moderate on domestic account and was around 2,500,000 pounds this forenoon on foreign account. The prices remain unchanged at 19½ cents a pound delivered on domestic shipments to the end of June, with the foreign price equivalent to 19¾ cents, cost and freight, Hamburg, Havre and London. So far as can be learned the Mexico uprising has not affected mine production.

Howe Sound Prospects.

It is now estimated that with an average price of 18 cents a pound prevailing for copper this year, earnings of Howe Sound in 1929 will be about 2½ times what they were last year. Should conditions continue as favorable as they are now in the copper, lead and zinc markets Howe Sound will have a record breaking year with earnings in the neighborhood of $13 a share. Directors are scheduled to meet the middle of this month and there is a strong possibility that the current rate of $4 annually will be ipcreased.

Gold Coin Mining.

Milton S. Englert, managing director of the Gold Coin Mining Company, has returned from an inspection of the company's copper mine and mill at Maxville, Mont. He says that the mill and leaching plant are now in full operation and the Anaconda Copper Company taking the entire output. Samples of ore taken from the new tunnel assay as high as 62 per cent. Gold Coin Mining is owned almost entirely by Pittsburgh men.

Likes Atchison Prospects.

"I am still of the opinion that our gross will run ahead of 1928 during the first half of this year," said W. B. Storey, president of Atchison Railroad system. Although wage increases will amount to between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000 for the full year, I do not believe the increase in operating expenses from this cause can absorb all the anticipated increase in first half gross and net for the period should also show a gain.

WITHEROW STEEL REACTS, OTHER STOCKS STRONG

Witherow Steel, leader in last week's advances on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange, reacted sharply from a high of 74½ and slumped to 71 in the morning trading. Later it regained most of the ground lost. During the latter part of last week the stock surged upward from a low of 65 on reports of increased earnings to be expected as a result of the company's favorable patent decision.

Other local stocks were strong. Allegheny Steel advanced to 76, a gain of 3 points from the previous close. Fractional gains were shown throughout the remainder of the list.

Arkansas Gas common was in demand. Several thousand shares changed hands in a range of 4¾ and 4⅞. Plans for the offering of rights to stockholders and the growth in earnings being shown as a result of the consolidation of operating units and expansion into new territories have given Arkansas an exceptionally good outlook for the future.

The local stocks were taken up practically at the point at which they were left on Saturday. The only price changes were in small fractions of a point in the early trading.

The most active trading was in Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt, when issued. At the opening 500 shares changed hands at 24¾, which was an advance of ⅛ from Saturday's close.

Lone Star Gas also was active with 270 shares selling at 74½, a gain of ¼ point. D. L. Clark, when issued, was in particular demand. The early transactions amounted to 420 shares at 18, unchanged from the last previous sale.

The wisdom of the establishment of the unlisted trading department on the local floor has been clearly demonstrated by the large volume of trading which has taken place in this class of stocks. Some of the most active issues have been in this department. A bright future is indicated for the local board as a result of the activity developed in many of the new stocks in which trading has recently started.

Since the introduction of the Packard Six, forerunner of today's Packard Eight, $40,199,000 have been expended for facilities useful in the manufacture and distribution of Packard cars. Because of this huge expenditure incomparably better cars have been developed, step by step, and now are offered for less than half the price of the original Packard Six.

Packard has concentrated its millions and its experience on one name and on one ideal. The public has been most gracious in its support. And as Packard has prospered, it has shared its prosperity with those who buy its cars—giving better cars at constantly lower prices.

These new low prices follow the price reduction announced but a few months ago on Packard's Custom line. They afford the public a more favorable opportunity than ever before to have the many advantages and features found only in Packard cars.

When may we demonstrate these features to you? Your used car will be accepted as cash, and if of average value will more than make the down payment on a new car. Then—a profitable and enjoyable ownership lasting four or five times the payment period, an ownership more advantageous now than at any time during Packard's thirty years of fine car building.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

STOCKS SLIDE NEAR END OF TRADING

NEW YORK, March 4.—(AP.)—A brisk selling movement in the stock market today was checked by the wave of buying which followed the publication of the Hoover inaugural message. The market opened irregularly higher, turned sharply downward in the late forenoon and then turned upward again. Early declines of 1 to 5 points were cut down, or wiped out, and a fairly long list of stocks sold 1 to 8 points higher, with about a dozen in new high ground.

Call money renewed unchanged at 8 per cent, but the supply of funds was fairly plentiful despite the calling of between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000 in loans. With the month-end demands out of the way, an easier tone is expected until the banks begin preparations for March 15 government financing and income tax payments. Firmness of prime commercial paper, now at the highest levels in several years, has revived fears of an increase in Federal Reserve rediscount rates.

Revolutionary outbreaks in Mexico were a source of deep concern in many speculative quarters. While relatively few American companies listed on the "big board" have properties which might be directly affected, fears were expressed that the news might be utilized by "bear" traders as an excuse for a general assault on the market.

Mining shares changed hands in large volume at advancing prices, with some new lead s brought forward in the low-priced group. Kennecott (new) moved up 3 points to a new high at 94⅝. One block of 12,000 shares of Mother Lode changed hands at 6⅝, followed by blocks of 7,600 at 5¾ and 22,000 at 6, duplicating the year's top. National Power & Light, Murray Corporation and Lambert moved into new high ground on gains of 3 to 5½ points.

Heavy buying of Chrysler, which quickly advanced 4 points, featured the early afternoon trading. In the morning wave of selling, General Electric dropped 4½ points, Montgomery-Ward 4 and Packard Motors, Bethlehem Steel and Wright Aeronautical 3 each.

Active selling was encountered again in the late afternoon, driving U. S. Steel, American Can, Bethlehem Steel and other favorites to the lowest figures of the day. Radio (old), slid down further to 39½, compared to its earlier price of 46, while Johns-Manville lost 5 and Allied Chemical 9 points. The closing was heavy. Sales approximated 4,500,000 shares.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, March 4.—The cotton market opened 7 to 10 points higher on continued covering by trade of speculative shorts in the old-crop position. There was a little buying on reports of rains in the South. The advance to 20.61c for May and 19.94c for the new thicker contracts met considerable realizing and later gained off 2 or 3 points, but the volume of business tapered off on the setback and the market was steady at the end of the first half hour.

Reports of a tightening spot basis in the Memphis market and favorable reports from the cotton goods trade contributed to the opening advance.

Private cables from Liverpool said trade selling and continental buying had been appolled by realizing in Liverpool and reported a fair cloth demand for India and China.

Early realizing sales were taken on slight dips and the market advanced to 20.70c for May and 19.94c for the new thicker contract during the middle of the morning, or about 12 to 17 points above Saturday's closing quotations.

Reports that sales of fertilizer tags for the seven months ended with February had totaled 1,186,905 tons against 1,728,-000 last year, probably contributed to the advance. Buying tapered off somewhat at the higher prices, which met renewed selling. The market at midday showed fractions of a or 4 points from the best.

BUGS BAER Says

AND NOT A MEATLESS MONDAY.

FOR over a century the Presidents have rolled up Pennsylvania avenue two by two.

"Bugs" Baer

George Washington is the only man who didn't have the pleasure of being escorted by his predecessor.

"We cannot recall the facts but there is no doubt that it was due to some flaw in the details.

It is a pleasant ride for both Mr. Hoover and Mr. Coolidge. After eight years of traffic jams Cal is looking forward to seeing a friendly green light.

Today is Herbert's political honeymoon. He treads a carpet of roses from the Capitol to the White House.

There have been Inaugural parades ever since 1790, those good old days when men were men and the solid South was liquid.

But Mr. Hoover's is the newest. And therefore, the most important for the next four years.

Many rulers have left many capitols in widely scattered circumstances. The longest of all Inaugural parades was that of Moses who couldn't get off a detour for 40 years.

When Nero left Rome all aglow he was quoted as saying, "My next speech will burn those guys up."

Napoleon was highly indignant on board the Bellerophon. He said, "I ordered a carriage, not a boat."

Charles the First riding with Cromwell remarked, "I, too, know what it is to be a spare tire."

Helen of Troy looked over the walls and saw the Trojan camouflage. Helen was a smart girl. She said, "There's the horse. Where's the buggy ride?"

So you can see that Inaugural speeches are not important unless you are elected.

When that ancient king of Babylonia saw the handwriting on the wall he knew that the management was not responsible for hats and overcoats.

When Hindenburg rode Unter den Linden in Berlin he was the recipient of a gracious testimonial from Holland.

It read, "I would like to be there. But one ain't a majority."

It's a wise umbrella that knows when to fold up.

The few recent Inaugurals in Petrograd have been more like stampedes than processions. When Kipling said the captains and the kings depart he forgot to mention that they didn't get rain checks.

Our America seems to be able to stage the oldtime festivals without a diminishing of pomp and glory. It is fortunate that we still have republics to maintain the traditions of autocratic monarchies.

THE BUNGLE FAMILY

Worries

WHEN I WENT INTO THE PARLOR THIS EVENING FOR THE PAPER I COULDN'T HELP NOTICING HOW MR. WHITE LOOKED AT YOU. HE'S A WONDERFUL YOUNG MAN. HIS FAMILY HAS WEALTH, CULTURE, EVERYTHING. ANY GIRL WOULD BE INTERESTED IN HIM.
YES I LIKE HIM, BUT HE'S VERY QUIET. DOESN'T CARE FOR DANCING, THINGS LIKE THAT.
THOSE MEN WHO ARE EXTRA LIGHT ON THEIR FEET ARE GENERALLY A BIT LIGHT IN THE HEAD, TOO. I USED TO KEEP COMPANY WITH THE CHAMPION DANCER OF THIS TOWN. HE TURNED OUT TO BE ONE OF THOSE MEN WHO CAN NEVER FIND WORK.
OH I'LL ADMIT JERRY IS JUST SPLENDID... IN A LOT OF WAYS, MOTHER.
WELL, PEGGY, I WOULDN'T BE TOO PARTICULAR. A GIRL DOESN'T STAY YOUNG FOREVER. YOU'LL HAVE ANOTHER BIRTHDAY, SOON. ANY NUMBER OF TIMES WOMEN WHO WANT TO GIVE ME A DIG ASK, IF YOU'RE STILL SINGLE. SMALL THINGS, BUT THEY SHOW WHICH WAY THE WIND IS BLOWING.
OH PEOPLE MAKE ME TIRED. I DON'T WORRY ABOUT BIRTHDAYS.
THE SUREST WAY TO GET OLD QUICKLY IS TO FRET ABOUT IT.
DA TA TA DA TY AH!
PEGGY, YOU'RE CERTAINLY LIKE YOUR WONDERFUL FATHER. IF THE BUNGLE FAMILY HAD A MOTTO IT WOULD BE—WE SHOULD WORRY. THE IDEA. AT A TIME LIKE THIS... THE MOST IMPORTANT IN YOUR LIFE, YOU SNAP YOUR FINGERS. AND YOUR FATHER IS 100 MILES AWAY ACTING AS A SORT OF PANTRY-BOY FOR A LOT OF GUINEA-PIGS. HA!

MR. HOOVER is said to have been opposed to all pomp in today's inauguration ceremonies—he would rather have the occasion reflect present-day ideals.

Instead of making a speech, then, why not merely read the stock market report.

I have pumped across the continent to ask Mr. Hoover to press a button which will do something to relieve the mothers of America from the strife and strain of social obligations which, too often, operate to the benefit of the leisure class."

Pittsburgh Actively in Nation-Wide Fight to Have Congress Lower Tax Burden on Earned Incomes

THERE is strong indication that Pittsburgh influence will be a prominent factor in a demand for justice for the income earner which, it is indicated, will be a problem of the new Congress inducted into office yesterday.

This influence is reflected in the views of a prominent member of President Hoover's official family and in opinion of the public at large. Secretary Mellon, although having made no recent official utterance on the matter of reduced taxation on earned incomes, believes that the earned income now shoulders too great a burden of taxation.

The public view of the matter is partially reflected in the action of the Allegheny County Bar Association. This organization voted to have a special committee make a study of the proposed reduction in tax on earnings of the individual worker, including those of the professional man, and report the result of its study at the next meeting of the association. Other Pittsburgh groups of professional folk are organizing.

As pointed out in a recent editorial article in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, the man whose earnings result from his brain or skill suffers in that he is not allowed reduction for depletion of his capacity.

This is unjust when it is considered that a property yielding income is subject to decrease of tax through charging off because "wear and tear" each year reduces its intrinsic value. A rented house wears out as the years go on and the government permits the owner to charge off the depreciation.

A man, too, wears out but the government makes no reckoning of that fact. Each year the condition of a rented house foreshadows the time when it will not earn its present income and the United States makes provision for that contingency. Each year the physical condition of a man foreshadows the time when he, too, will be unable to earn but HE CANNOT CHARGE OFF ANYTHING for the depreciation that time is working in his case.

This, obviously is neither just or wise. It is not just because, in the first place, it places property above man in importance. It is not wise because it places a discouraging burden upon the very basis of all of our created wealth. It also gives an unfair advantage to those who have been able to acquire control of our natural wealth. The latter, of course, have obtained that control legally, and there is no claim that there is any unfairness where they have done so. Only in the fact that a mine or oil well may yield a fortune many times beyond that of the total income of a professional man, and the latter does not have the privilege of the former in the matter of escape from taxation through depreciation of earning power.

A just and equitable readjustment of the tax law on earned incomes is one of the most important matters our new Congress could take up. If there be any distinction between property and man, THE LATTER SHOULD BE FAVORED. He has to depend upon his skill and learning and personal capacity in competition against men of equal fitness for life's battle. He must train himself constantly through life, struggle to get a start, and wage a fight constantly from the beginning to the end. And all the time he, too, is depreciating, even in the years when he is growing in physical and mental strength. The day he is born he begins to die.

Let us see what Secretary Mellon has to say about taxation. Mr. Mellon has written a book, published in 1924 by the Macmillan Company of New York. Its title is "Taxation: The People's Business." It is a valuable book, which should be in the library of everybody who is interested in the problem of taxation. We shall make some quotations from it.

"The problem of government," writes Secretary Mellon in the first paragraph of the book, under the chapter title, "Fundamental Principles," "is to fix the rates which will bring in a maximum amount of revenue to the Treasury and at the same time not bear too heavily on the taxpayer or business enterprises. A sound tax policy must take into consideration three factors. It must produce sufficient revenue for the government; it must lessen, so far as possible, the burden of taxation ON THOSE LEAST ABLE TO BEAR IT; and it must also remove those influences which might retard the continued steady development of business and industry on which, in the last analysis, so much of our prosperity depends."

Under the heading "Revising the Taxes" are the following significant lines:

"The fairness of taxing more lightly incomes from wages, salaries and professional services than from business or business investments is beyond question. In the first case, the income is uncertain and limited in duration; sickness or death destroys it and old age diminishes it. In the other the source of the income continues; the income may be disposed of during a man's life and it descends to his heirs.

"Surely we can afford to make a distinction between the people whose only capital is their mental or physical energy, and the people whose income is derived from investments. Such a distinction would mean much to millions of American workers and would be added inspiration to the man who must provide a competence during his few productive years to care for himself and his family when his earning capacity is at an end.

"All income under $5,000 should be considered an earned income. Under such construction, substantial justice would be done and administration of the law would be simplified. There is, of course, absolutely no reason for placing a limitation of $20,000 or any other sum on earned income. If the distinction between unearned income and the earned income is good, it is good in every bracket. One man can earn $20,000 a year just as surely as another man can earn $5,000. If the tax on unearned incomes at $20,000 is at the proper rate, then the same rate is too high for unearned incomes."

In a chapter on "Taxing Energy and Initiative" Secretary Mellon states "The vital defect in our present system is that the tax burden is borne by wealth in the making, NOT BY CAPITAL ALREADY IN EXISTENCE. We place a tax on energy and initiative; and at the same time provide a refuge in the form of tax exempt securities, into which wealth that has been accumulated or inherited can retire and DEFY THE TAX COLLECTOR."

It is plain that earned incomes do bear too great a portion of the tax burden of the nation and that the government that follows such a policy is pursuing an unwise course. The worker, who is building a nation while he is creating wealth, not by the aid of capital, but through his own initiative, not only is receiving no encouragement from his government, but is actually being FINED because he makes the greatest use of the faculties which he has developed to their fullest extent so that the government may increase the FINE.

It is an unjust system which Congress must change.

Big Educational Factor Not Changed by Years

The most important thing in education remains unchanged in the midst of changes. This thought was the high point of an address of R. B. Mellon, member of the board of trustees of the University of Pittsburgh, read at a dinner of the trustees and faculty, concluding the celebration of Pitt Charter Day and midwinter commencement. The occasion was the one hundred forty-second anniversary of the founding of the institution.

Mr. Mellon commented upon the conditions existing when the charter was granted. Then, coming to the present, he said that actual changes have outrun all imagination. "And yet," he asked, "are the changes so great? The big thing 142 years ago was the motives in those teachers, and the big thing here tonight is our motives. We wanted then, and we want now, a better Pittsburgh."

How true that reflection is! The same motive that gave impulse to the sturdy residents of a small hamlet to spread the light of education is the motive of those now overseeing the affairs of a great university in a mighty city. That motive is to guide youth into proper channels of thought to the end that the world be benefited through giving it better men and women.

Teachers do not teach but their pupils learn. Teachers lead and point and illustrate and stimulate receptive brains to acquire learning that is good. Without the teacher the brain would acquire learning anyway, but would it be of assistance to the world or a detriment? That is where the question of motives enters, and the motives of our educators still are as they were 142 years ago, as Mr. Mellon points out.

Mayor Ousts Orie After Bar Association Acts

Mayor Charles H. Kline has removed Magistrate John W. Orie. But his action did not come soon enough to save Mr. Kline from the sting of censure of the Allegheny County Bar Association for retaining in the city's police court a man convicted of violation of revenue laws of the United States.

Mr. Kline bases his action on the fact that, a new trial having been refused in the Orie case and a date for sentence set, the guilt of Orie may be assumed to have been definitely established. Evidently there had been doubt of that in the mind of the Mayor.

Mr. Kline appears to be quite devoted to a primary presumption of the law, i. e., that an accused man is innocent until he is proven guilty. This ignores the fact that men often obviously guilty may escape conviction through technicalities or the machination of one venal juror. Had Orie been exonerated in that way it seems certain, in view of Mayor Kline's attitude, that we would have still serving as magistrate a man objectionable from a moral standpoint although legally spotless.

Good Food Is Medicine

The Wrong Kind Is Poison.

Johns Hopkins University will teach young doctors something about cooking. At present the average doctor knows as much about food, how it should be prepared and administered, as the average cook knows about surgery.

This applies especially to many surgeons that will perform a major operation and let some nurse decide what the patient shall eat afterward.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

PRETTY near everything has got a lot easier since all these fine inventions got to working. There ain't much use learning to add, the adding machine can do it so well, and nobody pays much attention to their hand writing any more, because it will all have to be wrote on a typewriter anyhow.

There was a maid in a professor's house, and she was awful ignorant. The professor told her he wouldn't keep her in the house unless she went to night school and learned to read and write or something like that. So she did.

But one night when there was night school, the maid was out in the kitchen singing away, and the prof came out and says to her, "See here, what about night school?"

"Oh, professor," she says, "I don't have to go any more. It ain't necessary. They got the talking pictures now at our movie, so I don't need to learn to read."

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

LOVE is the great thing in life.

One says that so simply, in seven words, yet it is a most mysterious and stupendous truth.

Love may manifest itself in many ways. It may seem holy, or it may seem horrible. But if it is real love, beauty always burns within it and it is sacred. And whatever the costs, it always pays.

I visited a convent. I saw white faces lit with an inner flame, as though light shone through lilies. Those women loved. They loved a Man they had never seen—Jesus, the Christ. They had given themselves as brides to Christ and their lives were fragrant with that devotion. Little children gathered around their knees—babies nestled in the arms of these gentle ladies of the Lord. In His name they mothered His little ones. That is one kind of love.

I visited a penitentiary. I sat for hours with the women prisoners. Their faces were gaunt, hungry, scarred, but they, too, burned with an inner flame. They burned with the memory of love. Nearly every woman was there because she had loved. That's something to think about. Men go to prison for a great diversity of crimes. They go because of greed, ambition, uncontrolled violence, perversity. But women almost always go because of love. They have loved some man unwisely. They have sold dope or committed forgery or theft or prostitution or murder for some man.

The love that sent those women to prison is a long way from the love that sent those other women to a convent. Yet they are akin. Those women whose eyes are wells of peace and those whose faces are seared by hell have both "given their lives for a friend." Love is always a candle on the altar of God, though some of it burns with a clear, white light and some with a murky flame.

I THINK IT IS BETTER TO LOVE, EVEN THOUGH YOU GO TO PRISON FOR IT, THAN NEVER TO KNOW LOVE.

Recently a beautiful letter came to me from a man in Stanford University. He liked an article which I had written, called "Love With All Your Might." He told me of the change which had come into his life because of love. He had been restless, dissatisfied, for many years. He had worked hard and been paid for his work, but the payment did not quiet the hunger in his heart. Then, last Christmas, someone sent him a little book by Henry Drummond, called "The Greatest Thing in the World." And that changed his whole viewpoint. He saw people all about him expressing love to each other on Christmas Day and he thought how wonderful life might be if that feeling were extended through the year. He determined to try it.

"Do you know, last year was the happiest and most wonderful year I have ever lived," he writes. "Every day I started with this thought: 'Today I will live to express love in word, thought and deed and faithful, helpful human service.' I said that to myself on my way to work and I kept it in my mind all the day. I HAVE FOUND OUT AND PROVED TO MYSELF THAT LOVE GROWS AND DEVELOPS BY EXPRESSION. I CAN LOVE MORE, TEN TIMES MORE, THAN I COULD A YEAR AGO."

Her Wisdom

HER wisdom was a subtle thing
No schooling could impart,
For she had learning that could bring
A solace to the heart.

In meeting life her wisdom lay,
She faced each loss or pain
With courage shining like the day,
With trust that knew no wane.

And ever as the swift years went,
Her wisdom grew apace;
She gained new glimpses of content
Within her humble place.

She freely passed her treasure on,
Her dower, not wealth nor fame;
And left lives sad that she had gone,
But richer that she came.

President Hoover

By Herbert Kaufman

HE brings to the White House a more diversified past than any dozen predecessors.

No man has moved against as many colorful backgrounds, or viewed action from so many different peaks. His range of contracts is unparalleled.

The road, up which he came, winds from a prairie blacksmith shop—through orphanage and destitution—through choring school days—through a university career, financed with a waiter's tray and laundry commissions.

Then it detours down a mine shaft, where pick-and-shovel labor digs transportation, to the Australian goldfields.

Then it swings to China and railroad construction. Then wends to Siberia and the supervision of concessions there. Then leads to the Congo and its Belgian rubber plantations.

Then curves to London and command of allied civilian relief; trails in the wake of war and the track of famine; rescues noncombatant millions of Belgian, French, Polish, German, Austrian and Russian helpless, from starvation and extinction.

Meanwhile, it doubles back to America and Federal food administration; continues through two Cabinet posts, with a thousand varying responsibilities toward commerce, export trade, aviation, waterways, flood relief, industrial standardization, radio and electrical development, waste elimination and simplification of business practice.

From there it proceeds to Republican convention and presidential election. And thence, a survey of Central and South America; to terminate at the supreme goal of distinction, the White House.

For the first time in national history, the executive power is vested in a cosmopolite—A Jack-of-All-Experiences—an engineer and administrator—the greatest salesman and wheat-dealer of record, and the outstanding expert on grain—its markets and distribution.

The country, for the first time, is directed by a judgment tempered with knowledge of all classes and conditions of folk—working, not book knowledge—direct, not map, information.

The ruling forces of civilization—its kings, premiers and notables—including the Pope—are personal acquaintances. So are their finesses, their capacities—and their limitations.

He has served humanity and progress, earth over. His quality was tested and his caliber verified by illustrious achievement, long before America hall-marked them.

"He is a capture, not a product of politics." He wears his party's label, but neither its leash nor muzzle.

Prejudice, bigotry, "pork" seekers, and objective minorities, will neither mold his policies nor deflect his purposes.

He will take counsel with fact, God and conscience; uphold Constitution and justice, and deal with individuals and measures according to their merits.

He will exercise authority as boldly as Cleveland—use the veto as promptly as Coolidge—and wield the "big stick" as fearlessly as Roosevelt ever whacked corporate greed or congressional intrigue.

Fourteen years in Washington have shown him every trick in the deck—where the cards are pricked, and how they are forced on the Capitol and departments.

He has watched diplomacy slip its aces from the sleeve at Versailles, Locarno, Spa and Paris—as plugged-nickel and dirty-deuce passers will soon discover.

He has more private dope on public men than a newspaper morgue. The "stop-look-and-listen" bell rings through his mind all day long.

The praetorians, who have followed him from Brussels to March 4, still stand Argus-eyed guard over his fortunes.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 4.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Awake and in a fret over having to pay $9 for eleventh row theater seats plainly marked $6 albeit not for myself. To breakfast of hominy cakes with sorghum molasses and Bernard Sobel outfumbled me for the check.

So afoot about town and had a photograph taken for Aunt Betty, who is the most charming lady I know. Then stopped at a theater rehearsal where a group of Malays sang chanting songs, monotonous but very sad, and home to my drudgery.

In the evening with my wife to walk along the park wall of upper Fifth avenue, stopping to talk to George Worts, the tayle writer, and also Mary Harriman Rumsey, E. H.'s daughter, and back to our tavern. To bed reading a hair-raising book, the wind shrieking delightfully.

Experts say the increasing number of apartment houses with dining room service on each floor is the answer to New York's what-to-do servant problem. Smaller cities, due to scarcity of jobs, are not confronted with such difficulties. The New York servant for years knew he could walk from one job to another and became a shade or so uppish. Now it is different.

* * *

So many have given up private homes—upper Fifth avenue is an example—domestic servants are a glut on the market. Employment agencies can fill all demands. Country homes are sold by hundreds and a number are buying places abroad where servants are easier to handle.

There are also enough chauffeurs for private families, whereas the demand a few years ago exceeded the supply. Thousands of car owners have abandoned automobiles for the expert rental service New York offers. They can secure any make of car, manned by uniformed drivers. In a few moments, and thus avoid the burden and upkeep of a privately owned auto.
